Council approves increase in property tax exemptions for qualified seniors, those with disabilities

By Kristine Coulter

The City Council approved the increase in exemptions on property taxes for senior citizens and those with a disability with a limited income who qualify.

"We're raising the maximum income up to the county number that is used," said City of Beacon Mayor Lee Kyriacou. The public hearing was held on the first Monday of the month.

City of Beacon Administrator Chris White said during one of the council's meetings in Jan., "Our exemption levels have not gone up in many years."

He added, "We're going to be proposing to standardize what some of the other communities have."

Kathy Martin, City of Beacon Assessor, stated during the Jan. 13 meeting, "I'm really excited to bring this information to you, I'm hoping will be received well."

Martin remarked that the economy has changed, and market values have changed. "This exemption has not been adjusted in quite some time. I hope we could be out sliding scale up to bring in adjustment" with other communities in Dutchess County, stated Martin.

She noted, "This exemption truly helps people stay in their homes." Martin stated that the exemption can possibly cut taxes in half for some seniors on a limited income.

The disability exemption as well, she added.

A few hundred people receiving the senior exemptions, according to officials. Not as many are receiving exemptions for having a disability.

"With the low-income seniors, we have to include the whole income – total amount from pension, Social Security, any rental income," said Martin, emphasizing it one's whole income.

"I think a lot of people that are currently receiving it, [this] will only be helping them," she remarked.

Martin suggested one come into her office and apply. The idea, she said, is for those who "just missed it by a little bit, we will be able to get those people in it (exemptions)."

"This would encompass a lot more people, I would imagine," said Martin. She estimated about 100 more people.

These property tax exemptions work differently than the STAR exemptions, it was stated.

"With senior citizens, whatever less money is gathered that does get spread about among the whole city, but that's a fraction" explained Martin.

People are just starting to come in for their exemptions now, according to Martin. She also mentioned, "This law was recently changed. It used to be the immediate year statement but now they can bring in 2023. This would go into effect this year. The deadline for all exemptions is March 1 every year."

Lucy and Tony Desantis have been married for 59 years. The Wappingers Falls couple will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary on April 24th.

"I really believe that the two of us got together because we're a match," said Lucy.

Tony immigrated to the United States in Feb. of 1955 from Italy. Lucy also immigrated to America with some of her fami-

Castle Point temporarily closes Acute Inpatient Unit

Earlier this month, the Castle Point VA Medical Center temporarily closed a portion of the facility.

"Beginning February 1, Castle Point VA Medical Center in Wappingers Falls closed a section of its facility – the acute inpatient unit – for 120 days as part of an effort to re-evaluate staffing needs. Patients with acute medical conditions will continue to be treated in urgent care, and those requiring hospitalization will be sent to the nearest community or VA medical facility," stated David Marshall, LCSW, Executive Assistant to the Director at VA Hudson Valley Health Care System, via email to Beacon Free Press on Feb. 4.

"This is outrageous, and a fundamental breach of the sacred duty we have to care for our veterans who've put their lives on the line for our country," said

When Tony arrived, he was 20 years old, and he began working with his uncle, John. He also began working part-time at The Bleachery in Wappingers Falls. Lucy was a student at the time and was enrolled in school.

Then in 1957, Tony began working for Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp. Later, Lucy began working for Central Hudson too. It was there that they met and went to the company's Christmas party.

"I tell him that was his lucky day," Lucy said laughing.

Their first date was to see a movie at the movie theater in Poughkeepsie.

Lucy and Tony Desantis in their Wappingers Falls home last month.

Tony noted it was drizzling the morning of their wedding.

After the reception, the newlyweds left by train to New York City. They then took a flight the next morning to Florida for their honeymoon.

"I got a terrible sunburn," said Lucy, who noted Tony's skin tans and does not sunburn.

The couple have two sons, Anthony and Joseph "Joe." Anthony is a doctor and lives in Seattle with his wife, Megan. He is a graduate of the University of Notre Dame. Joe is an Audit & Insurance partner at a leading accounting firm. He also graduated from Notre Dame. Their grandson Nicholas, who is a Syracuse University graduate, works and lives in New York City.

Tony and Lucy both said they wanted to have their children graduate from college. "Anthony always wanted to be a doctor," said Tony.

"We're proud of both of them. They did very well," said Lucy.

They still live in their Wappingers Falls house Tony built for them. Tony retired after 39 years with Central Hudson. Lucy still works part-time for a local auditing company. "They treat me so well. I can't leave; that's the problem," she remarked.

"I wouldn't change him for anything. If I had to do it all over – I wouldn't change a thing," said Lucy.

Tony agreed, "I wouldn't change it either."

Lucy said her advice to couples getting married this year is to "love each other but respect each other. And to pretty much have the same values – that's very important." She continued, "I know there's going to be arguments, but you should make peace before you go to bed." One's faith is also important, she said.

"These grants will help create and enhance spaces where kids can explore their interests, develop new skills, and form positive connections with mentors and peers. By investing in these opportunities, we're not just funding programs — we're fostering an environment where every child in Dutchess County can thrive."

The YOU Drop-In Center Grants are a one-time capital funding opportunity available to community-based organizations, local libraries, and other youth-serving nonprofits with a primary mission aligns with providing a service or administering a program consistent with one or more of the County's Path to Promise Domains. Eligible applicants can request between $10,000 and $75,000 for expenses that help establish or enhance drop-in centers where youth can engage in positive activities outside of school hours.

"We know that positive, enriching environments can have a profound impact on a young person's development," said Karmen Smallwood, Assistant Commissioner for Youth Services. "The YOU Drop-In Center Grants give local organizations the resources they need to create safe, engaging spaces where youth feel supported and encouraged to reach their full potential. By investing in these centers, we are strengthening our community's ability to provide meaningful resources and connections that help shape a brighter future for our young people."

Eligible expenses include:

Furniture and equipment – Tables, chairs, couches, desks, bookshelves, and recreational equipment to make drop-in centers comfortable and functional.

Technology and supplies – Computers, tablets, printers, internet equipment, art and music supplies, board games, and other interactive materials that support youth engagement.

Castle Point temporarily closes Acute Inpatient Unit

Congressman Pat Ryan in a press release on Feb. 4, which included local, state and federal leaders' statements. "Our community has always taken up the call to have our veterans' backs, including just a few years ago when Castle Point was under threat of complete closure. Now is the time for all of us to stand up and FIGHT alongside our veterans with urgency again. We need to be loud, we need to be strong, and we need to be direct: this unit must be reopened immediately."

Congressman Mike Lawler also commented in a statement. His partial statement reads: "Our veterans didn't make the incredible sacrifices they did to be short-changed in services here at home." Lawler added, "I'm proud to join a bipartisan group of elected officials demanding that this facility stay open - anything less is unacceptable."

Dutchess County Executive Sue Serino said in the release that she was "deeply disturbed" by the temporary closure.

Serino noted, "It isn't just a facility; it's a lifeline for our veterans between Albany and the Bronx, especially for those here in Dutchess County. I know firsthand that this unit saves lives, providing critical inpatient care and preparing veterans for rehabilitation. With so many already facing barriers to mental health support, this decision puts our heroes at even greater risk."

Adam Roche, Director of Dutchess County Office of Veteran Affairs commented in the release. A portion of his statement stated, "This is absolutely unacceptable."

"As a Veteran who utilizes Castle Point services, and an advocate for Veterans in Dutchess County who are receiving services, I wholeheartedly disagree with this decision and the secretive nature around it," said Alyssa Carrion, Veterans Program Director, Veterans Services, MHA Ulster County, Pleasant Valley.

"This would be a disastrous decision for the thousands of veterans in the Hudson Valley who depend on the VA for healthcare. Our veterans desperately need more healthcare options, not less. They earned it. We can all agree our veterans have made incredible sacrifices for our nation, yet they are being given cutbacks and empty promises in return," said Tommy Zurhellen, Former Commander, VFW Post 170 and Founder of VetZero, a veteran service program in Poughkeepsie, in the release.

"I'm very concerned about the recent decision to temporarily close the Acute Inpatient Unit at Castle Point VA Medical Center. This unit provides critical, life-saving care to our veterans that is vital in preparing them for the next phase of treatment and rehabilitation," said Peter Maraday, Hudson Valley Regional Manager, Clear Path for Veterans, in the release.

"Once again, we see Veterans living in rural communities subjected to potential cuts and closures at Castle Point. Directly affecting their healthcare and quality of life by reducing access to critical services. These cuts not only impact the Veteran, they impact the Hudson Valley," said Kevin Keaveny, President of the Hudson Valley Center for Veteran Reintegration.

Marshall stated, "This will not affect any of the other services provided to our Veterans, who will still be able to receive primary care, specialty care, outpatient mental health services, and other services elsewhere in the facility. In addition, Castle Point's Community Living Center will remain open and operational."

An alternative to traditional education

To the Editor:

As a local historian with a long interest in the education of our children, I wish to share with you an alternative for traditional education with the reopening of St. Mary's School in Wappingers Falls. It is well worth "a look."

Successful open houses were held January 23rd and January 30th. St. Mary's was honored to be named NYS Spotlight School for pre-K.

I've been a volunteer at many local schools and was employed for 20 years at Myers Corners Elementary School. Having great experience in local schools, I would like to recommend St. Mary's if you are looking for an alternative school. St. Mary's has "before and after" care, busing, and financial assistance is available.

St. Mary's has been renovated and is beautiful. There are openings for all grade levels. I am hoping to volunteer again.

Mount Gulian Historic Site honors James F. Brown during Black History Month

To the Editor:

Mount Gulian Historic Site, in Beacon, is the repository of many fascinating stories about our area's rise from a frontier backwater to cosmopolitan region. We celebrate and interpret our Dutch colonial past, the American Revolution, the Civil War and the Gilded Age.

But no story we tell is as dramatic and compelling as that of James F. Brown. Mr. Brown was an enslaved man who escaped to freedom with the help of the Verplanck family. He worked at Mount Gulian for decades, all the while keeping the only extant journal of daily life in Dutchess County, as written by a free Black person. Mr. Brown was Mount Gulian's trusted property manager and master gardener, whose journal recounts horticultural and weather records, chores of daily life, as well as family and important current events.

Most compelling was his drive to become a full citizen and vote. Before the Civil War, four million people were enslaved and very, very few Black men in Free States could vote, as there were many restrictions imposed. But James F. Brown saved the money he earned in order to buy property, so that he could pass the $250 "real estate test" and legally vote.

His journal has this glowing entry: "November 8, 1837: The election at Fishkill took place this day at which place James F. Brown voted for the first time." Mr. Brown's journal is housed at the NY Historical Society in Manhattan. But, as a free perk for those interested, Mount Gulian has an easily accessible, short video about James F. Brown on our website: <https://mountgulian.org/virtual-tours/james-f-brown-virtual-tour/>.

Think about it – Is this really what we voted for?

To the Editor:

Is this really what we voted for?

Trade wars with our largest trading partners that will spike the costs of building materials, food, cars, oil, and most everything else we use in our daily lives? Territorial threats to our friends and allies who shed the blood of their soldiers in support of us in Iraq and Afghanistan? Abandoning Ukraine to Russia by withholding aid and trying to impose a cease-fire deal which will only allow Russia and its medieval barbarisms to come back stronger and try again? An unelected billionaire oligarch running amuck causing chaos and destruction?

Deportation of both legal and illegal immigrants leaving food to rot in fields spiking prices? Muzzling of the CDC and NIH with bird flu a mutation or two away from infecting and being transmitted by humans? The downloading of sensitive personal data of anyone on Social Security, Medicaid, or anyone who has filed income taxes? The list goes on and on.

I have always appreciated the good common sense of our Dutchess County friends and neighbors, and while I recognize that it is still early in 2025 and that this is a smallish corner of America, looking at the first three weeks of the new administration, I find myself asking, is this really for what we voted?

In the last decade, we have largely bade farewell to the WWII generation whose banners hang from every utility pole in our communities. They knew that 'Never Again' should have meant 'Never Again.' They simply did that which had to be done, and I can imagine that they would have viewed this world as too ominously resembling the one which they fought against. They have moved on, taking their wisdom with them, leaving us to decide in what type of world we want to live.

It is early, but it is not too early to ask ourselves what makes America truly great, and what does our great storehouse of common sense dictate?

Beacon National Guard Soldier receives new rank, new responsibilities

Major General Ray Shields, the adjutant general for the state of New York, announces the recent promotion of members of the New York Army National Guard in recognition of their capability for additional responsibility and leadership.

Adan Rivas Paredes from Beacon, and assigned to the 719th Transportation Company, received a promotion Jan. 27 to the rank of specialist.

Beacon's Rheyen Cader inducted into Eastern New York Hall of Fame

By Randy Vogt
Director of Public Relations, Eastern New York Youth Soccer Association

The Eastern New York Youth Soccer Association (ENYYSA) is pleased to announce that Beacon's Rheyen Cader has been inducted into the Eastern New York Hall of Fame. The induction ceremony took place at the Hall of Fame Banquet on Saturday, Jan. 25 at Marina del Rey in the Bronx.

As a kid growing up in Zimbabwe, Rhey played soccer for Arcadia United and Prince Edward Academy plus the Zimbabwe Youth National Team before emigrating to New York in 1998.

Rhey then started coaching his oldest son's intramural team in the Beacon Soccer Club, quickly moving them to travel and eventually a State Cup championship. He has continued coaching travel teams for nearly three decades, long after his own children aged out. He recently started coaching a Boys-Under-10 squad that had no coach so that the team did not have to disband.

The good people of the Beacon Soccer Club saw Rhey's potential early on and recruited him to volunteer on the Board of Directors and he soon became President, a position that he has held for the past 15 years. Rhey revitalized the club and has grown registrations to nearly 700 children.

Rhey created an Angel Fund to provide financial assistance to those who would otherwise not be able to play and he started Volunteer Recognition Awards plus a Beacon Hall of Fame which has contributed significantly to increasing volunteerism. He leads by example and can often be found lining fields, working the snack bar and negotiating with vendors. He is a very much respected volunteer in the Hudson Valley soccer community.

Additionally, Rhey was honored as Eastern New York's Personality of the Month in October 2015 and inducted into the Hudson Valley Youth Soccer League (HVYSL) Hall of Fame in 2019 for his many contributions to youth soccer.

Council approves increase in property tax exemptions for qualified seniors, those with disabilities

"Currently the City only goes down to 20 percent I'm proposing going down to 5 percent as well," she said. "It does help a lot of people."

Martin suggested one can either download an application at the NYS Tax and Finance website (Form number RP467B). Bring a copy of that form with one's driver's license and a copy of one's 2023 income tax or all year-end statements to the Assessor's Office before March 1. If one is in the program, forms will be sent out.

Kyriacou explained last week during the Council's meeting, "The levy is the levy. When we approve a budget there is a total bill that is called the levy, that's around \$13, \$14 million dollars. And then it's just a question of how it's divvied up, right? And so, if there's 100 properties and 2 of them are only taxed at  $\frac{1}{2}$  the rate...it's divvied up amongst the rest of the community for a slightly greater amount that is not collected from those taxpayers."

The mayor noted it does not extend to library and school tax bills.

Both the increased exemptions for seniors citizens and those with a disability with limited income were passed unanimously.

Law enforcement, local stakeholders learn how to identify human trafficking and prevent abuse

The Dutchess County Department of Community and Family Services (DCFS) last week hosted its second annual Human Trafficking Awareness Forum at Dutchess Community College's (DCC) James and Betty Hall Theatre in Poughkeepsie. More than 100 attendees, representing law enforcement, medical professionals, social service providers and community groups, attended this highly impactful event, which raised awareness of this national epidemic, discussed strategies to identify trafficking in all forms and connected attendees with resources.

Dutchess County Executive Sue Serino said, "Many people think trafficking only happens in big cities, but sadly, it can happen anywhere, even in our own community. Dutchess County remains vigilant and continues to raise awareness and protect victims of all ages, especially children. Today's forum, and efforts like it, help spread awareness and can save lives. I appreciate everyone who joined us today, and Dutchess County looks forward to continuing our work with these dedicated partners."

The Dutchess County Task Force

Against Human Trafficking is a diverse team of professionals dedicated to combating human trafficking by collaborating to increase awareness, identify potential victims and deliver comprehensive, trauma-informed support. The task force's initiatives include educational programs on trafficking prevention for youth and a variety of resources for the community, such as resource guides, hotline numbers, service directories and fact sheets debunking common trafficking myths.

Human trafficking, defined as the unlawful trade of individuals through force, fraud, or coercion for exploitative purposes, includes crimes such as forced labor, sexual exploitation and involuntary servitude. The International Labour Organization estimates more than 40 million people worldwide are victims of human trafficking. In 2024, the Dutchess County Task Force Against Human Trafficking received 31 local referrals of suspected trafficking cases – including referrals received from probation officers, youth service providers and staff at shelters for runaway and homeless youth.

This year's forum presented attendees with a variety of offerings regarding human trafficking in all its forms, how to identify it and how to prevent it, including:

- a discussion with two adult female trafficking survivors, who shared their personal stories;
- a presentation by Homeland Security Investigations, which plays an integral role in combating human trafficking by working with its law enforcement partners to deter, disrupt and dismantle the criminal networks that engage in it;
- a presentation from Special Agent Pao Mei Fisher with the FBI's Hudson Valley Safe Streets Task Force; and
- a case study presentation from DCC Professor Matthew Greenstein, a retired Connecticut detective and member of Dutchess County's Human Trafficking Task Force.

Dutchess County is part of New York State's Safe Harbour Program, which supports counties in developing their capacity to identify youth who have been trafficked, sexually exploited or are at risk of victimization, and to meet identified service needs of these youth. Attendees will also receive an overview of Dutchess County's Safe Harbour Program and Center for Victim Safety and Support.

DCFS Commissioner Sabrina Jaar Marzouka said, "Trafficking violates human rights, and this abusive crime must be confronted and eradicated. We are grateful to those in Dutchess County who courageously protect vulnerable individuals of all ages from such injustices. The partnerships formed at today's forum will surely contribute to a safer future for many in our community, and we thank all who attended and presented."

Residents can report suspected cases of trafficking 24/7 to the County's Human Trafficking Hotline at 845-452-7272. Additional information about Dutchess County's efforts to prevent human trafficking, as well as a resource guide for services providers, law enforcement and attorneys to develop a collaborative, trauma-informed response to identifying and responding to cases of suspected human trafficking is available on DCFS' Human Trafficking Task Force webpage.

NYS Comptroller report touts 'success' of DC's proactive approach to homelessness

A new report from the New York State Comptroller's Office highlights the success of Dutchess County's proactive approach to addressing homelessness, including street outreach, extensive case management and the most recent addition of two licensed social workers. The report, which examine homelessness trends across the state, showed the Poughkeepsie/Dutchess County Continuum of Care had the lowest rate of increase in homelessness in New York State, with an 11% rise compared to the statewide average increase of 113% for 2022 to 2024.

Dutchess County Executive Sue Serino said, "Dutchess County has taken a multi-faceted approach to addressing homelessness, and the Comptroller's report confirms that our efforts are making a real impact. We are committed to strengthening our outreach system by expanding resources, enhancing coordination, and integrating mental health professionals to better serve those in need."

According to the report, neighboring areas, including Newburgh, Middletown/Orange County, Kingston/Ulster County, and Columbia/Greene Counties, saw significantly higher increases of 130%, 51% and 39% respectively, underscoring Dutchess County's success in mitigating the crisis.

The report is a testament to the work of the Dutchess County Department of Community & Family Services' (DCFS) social welfare workers and case managers who work tirelessly to prevent homelessness and find housing solutions for those in need. DCFS took over case management at the PODS shelter in August from the former shelter operator, with an 8-person case management team who work with every guest to assess their needs and develop individualized independent living plans. The County's latest efforts is the addition of the two licensed social workers, who began working in December 2024, further enhancing Dutchess County's commitment to providing critical support to individuals experiencing homelessness. These skilled professionals are embedded with the DCFS team and bring extensive experience in harm reduction, street outreach, and working with unhoused populations. Together, the team offers mental health support, crisis intervention, and personalized care to address barriers to housing while helping to secure housing and benefits and promoting mental health and well-being through individual and group sessions.

Dutchess County's efforts have been multi-faceted to help individuals in need access temporary emergency housing and help work with them toward permanent housing. The addition of the social workers strengthens this network, enhancing the County's ability to support individuals in crisis while addressing the root causes of homelessness. The number of people housed at the PODS has declined 33% for December 2023 compared to December 2024.

Serino added, "The work we're doing in Dutchess County is about more than just providing shelter — it's about ensuring that every individual has access to the services and support they need to rebuild their lives. The Comptroller's report reinforces the importance of our comprehensive approach, and we remain dedicated to expanding these efforts to serve our community better."

To learn more about Dutchess County's emergency housing services, click here. Individuals in need of housing can contact DCFS at 845-486-3300 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. on weekdays, or should call 211 or local law enforcement for emergency placement after hours.

County and local leaders congratulated the 18 recruits who graduated from the 28th class of the Dutchess County Law Enforcement Academy (DCLEA). The ceremony was held at the Culinary Institute of America in Hyde Park on Feb. 6.

Recruits will now move on to complete field training with their various agencies, including the Dutchess County and Putnam County Sheriff's Offices, the City and Town of Poughkeepsie Police, the City of Beacon Police, and the Town of Lloyd Police.

176 new State Troopers graduate

Governor Kathy Hochul joined NYS Police Superintendent Steven G James in honoring 176 new State Troopers as they graduated on Feb. 6 from the 216th session of the Basic School of the New York State Police Academy. The ceremony was held at the Empire State Plaza Convention Center in Albany. Today's graduation increases the State Police ranks to 5,034 sworn members.

"I commend these 176 new troopers for dedicating themselves to public service, and their commitment to protecting the people of New York State," Hochul. "The members of the New York State Police put their lives on the line each day to keep the rest of us safe — in a world where their mission has grown more challenging and complex. On behalf of all New Yorkers, I want to thank the graduates for their hard work and perseverance — and welcome them to the long gray line."

James said, "Today's graduation is the culmination of six months of difficult class-work, physical training, and sacrifice, and we now welcome our newest members to one of the most prestigious and well-respected law enforcement agencies in the nation. I am confident they are equipped to carry out our mission to serve our communities with the same professionalism and pride the State Police have exhibited for the past 107 years."

The new Troopers will report for field duty on February 7 or February 10, depending on their platoon. For the following 10 weeks, the new Troopers will be evaluated under a field-training program supervised by senior Field Training Officers.

Below is a list of local graduates listed alphabetically (Troop assignments are pending):

Israel Diaz, east Fishkill; Frank Difusco, Poughquag and Richard Finn, Pleasant Valley.

Dutchess County Sheriff Kirk Imperati, in conjunction with the New York State Sheriff's Association, announced that the Dutchess County Sheriff's Office is adopting the Blue Envelope Program. This new initiative is an important safety program for drivers and other vehicle occupants, including children, with autism.

Sheriff Imperati said "There are many county families who are living with autism. Some of these residents drive our roads, so it is important for us as law enforcement to be able to better serve them. As law enforcement we should recognize that a driver's physical movements or verbal responses, which would normally be appropriate during a traffic stop, may be beyond an autistic driver's control. Without proper training and awareness there could be interactions where the officer could misinterpret an autistic driver's actions or their failure to appropriately respond to requests or directions. These are instances we want to avoid, helping to keep everyone safe."

To address this problem, law enforcement agencies around the country have begun adopting the Blue Envelope Program. These agencies are encouraging drivers with autism to obtain a Blue Envelope to store all the relevant documents that a Deputy would request during a traffic stop — such as their license, registration, and insurance card. In this way, when the Deputy Sheriff sees the Blue Envelope, they are alerted to the driver's autism and can adjust their own actions or reactions to fit that situation.

The New York State Sheriffs' Association is promoting this program statewide and many Sheriff's Offices are rolling out the program, including the Dutchess County Sheriff's Office.

Sheriff Imperati asks that interested members of the community contact Sgt. Montanya at amontanya@dutchessny.gov or call 845-486-3834 to learn more. The Sheriff is encouraging his Deputies and other law enforcement officers in the county to be aware of the significance of the Blue Envelope if one is presented by a driver during a traffic stop.

Valentine Crazy

There are many ways to show your love that don't necessarily come in a package.

On a recent stroll down the grocery aisles, I felt an unmistakably familiar sensation. It crept up my spine, heightening my senses, and it was as if an alarm went off in my brain. As my eyes darted about to find the source of this distress, I understood what I was feeling. There were hearts and pink and red everywhere. It seems the marketing world has turned its pumpkin-spice crazed minds to yet another holiday and is now saturating us with Valentine treats. Here we go again.

I get it. I worked in marketing, and I know the drill. You want to entice people to buy, and that takes strategy. Trends are a huge part of life now more than ever; so if you can't start one, you want to be in on it. But I also get that doing so to the extreme creates a band wagon some of us just don't want to jump on.

For some of us, saturation has the opposite effect. I'm one of those, if you couldn't guess. Case in point, my aversion to all things pumpkin spice (but that was another article).

I remember in years past suddenly seeing red heart-shaped boxes of chocolates popping up in stores. You'd see them near registers and in a special display near the entrance — a pretty pop of red in a sea of otherwise drabness, strategically placed to entice you to buy for someone you love. It was flirtatious and fun in a way. You know, like love is supposed to be.

When I was a little girl, it was exciting to see them, and even as a bigger girl, it made me smile. I'm a hopeless romantic. In spite of what you might think based on what I'm saying, receiving a beautiful, old-fashioned heart-shaped box of chocolate still makes my heart flutter, but that's a nod to many fond memories of getting them in the past.

Now, though, subtlety is right out the window, so it's less like flirtation and more like getting tackled by a bear. You can walk down just about any aisle and see hearts everywhere, and all the red and pink packaging is enough to make your head spin.

Don't get me wrong, it's great to have options, and we're lucky we do. Besides, not everyone likes chocolate. And if I'm honest, it's amusing to see how companies have shoehorned their products to fit the Valentine mold. I never thought I'd see heart-shaped boxes of Skittles, jelly beans, Oreos, Goldfish crackers (strawberry shortcake graham flavored, no less), Sour Patch Kids, Lunchables or Life Savers Gummies. And who knew M&Ms would show up to the party with names like Cupid's Mix and Strawberries & Crème. Classic Kisses now come in dark chocolate filled with strawberry goo (sorry, Chocolate Dipped Strawberry), Milk Chocolate Meltaway and milk-and-white chocolate striped Hugs (not new but adorably named).

You'll find heart-shaped snack cakes, pretzels, fruit snacks, cheeses, pasta, cookies, chicken nuggets, hash browns and cereal. Speaking of cereal, Cheerios offers a limited edition Chocolate Strawberry version for your sweetie. With so many options, you can bombard them with pre-packaged love all day.

True, Valentine's Day food trends are nowhere near the level of pumpkin spice, but give it time. I suspect companies will be ramping up their offerings in the future, as there seem to be more showing up every year.

Alright, so I'm being snarky, more than a bit cynical and too harsh in my criticism. After all, I should just be grateful that there even is a holiday dedicated to love. I guess what upsets me about the whole thing — and why I'm writing about it at all — is that romance shouldn't be about convenience. It should take thought and planning and really knowing what someone you love wants. Anyone can one-stop shop love now and at the last minute, and that makes me sad.

With our attention spans dwindling by the day, technology replacing genuine human contact and a seemingly endless supply of goods delivered to our doors within 24 hours, it seems more important than ever to make a little effort to do things the old-fashioned way: pay attention and show your love in ways that can't be bought on the fly just because you think you're supposed to.

If you really want to show how much you love someone, show them you know them. Maybe she's fine with prepackaged grocery store roses and a heart-shaped box of Skittles, but then again maybe what she'd really like is an hour to herself to knit or read or get a manicure. Or some quality alone time with you made more special with her favorite food or bottle of wine. Sure, you may think he's OK going to a crowded restaurant, but maybe he'd secretly love a classic cocktail and a home-cooked meal or favorite dessert.

Love isn't what others tell us it should be. Love is what it is, and that's a beautiful thing if you embrace it and give it the time it deserves. In other words, maybe start your own trend when it comes to Valentine's Day. Only you should know best how to say I Love You. Enjoy.

Astor Services expands home-based crisis intervention program

Astor Services, a leading provider of quality mental and behavioral health and education services for children, young adults and their families, has announced that its Home-Based Crisis Intervention Program (HBCI) is now available in New York's Westchester, Rockland, Putnam, Columbia and Greene counties.

HBCI is a unique clinical service funded by the New York Office of Mental Health (OMH), focused on preventing unnecessary psychiatric hospitalizations for youth ages 5 to 20. Astor Services has been providing HBCI services for more than 30 years, initially in Dutchess County and then in Ulster County and, with the addition of these five counties served, has become the largest provider of HBCI services in New York State.

"HBCI services are an intensive form of treatment that allows children who are at risk of psychiatric hospitalization to receive high-quality mental health care at home instead," said Astor Services CEO Yvette Bairan. "Through the services of HBCI, Astor aims to reduce the trauma of a child being separated from their family and provide the structure and resources for treatment to be successful where they live. Plus, these services are completely free thanks to funding from the New York Office of Mental Health (NY OMH) and weeks of treatment, services provided include intensive individual counseling, family therapy, parental coaching and care coordination. Additionally, 24/7 crisis support is offered to address safety concerns, including suicidal and self-harming behaviors, as well as impulse control and physical aggression challenges. Astor's HBCI teams have a track record of delivering excellent results, typically preventing hospitalization for at least 90% of youth served with client satisfaction rates that exceed 90%.

Recognizing this success, in mid-2024 NY OMH selected Astor Services through a competitive proposal process to expand HBCI from Dutchess and Ulster counties, to Westchester, Putnam, Columbia and Greene Counties. By September 2024, Astor onboarded HBCI staff for these counties and started accepting new client referrals. In October 2024, Rockland County also selected Astor Services as an HBCI provider through a competitive proposal process. Astor's expanded HBCI team is now the largest in New York, providing essential crisis mental health services for children and families for more than 2 million residents across seven counties.

local county partners. Families do not even have to have insurance to be able to enroll in HBCI, which aligns with Astor's mission of expanding access to care."

HBCI services are primarily provided in-person in the client's home, school and community to address challenges where they are occurring. During four to six

Local eggs

The bird flu epidemic has raised awareness of the 'buy local' egg movement

Kinga and Kristian Terepka moved from Brooklyn to Lagrangeville right after the Covid pandemic, fixed up an abandoned house on 11 acres and started farming. They figured it would be a better environment for their two little daughters, Olivia and Emily. Now their 11 Kettle Farm is on the front line of the "buy local" egg movement.

In the midst of skyrocketing egg prices and the bird flu epidemic, people are wondering where their eggs come from and how they are produced. This is not a new phenomenon. Nobody wants egg-laying hens to be squashed into tiny cages where they can't even turn around. In 2022, California outlawed the sale of eggs from hens held in individual cages. Nine other states have followed suit. Bills in the N.Y. Senate and Assembly would require, and define "free range" and "cage free" egg productions.

On its website, 11 Kettle Farm boasts that the chickens "roam freely on vibrant pastures, enjoying the simple pleasures of life." During my recent visit, 50 hens were indeed roaming freely, but I didn't observe any "vibrant pastures" in early February. Their shelter is a large coop on wheels, which Kristian assured me is hauled around the property to provide fresh pasture once the grass starts to grow. In the meantime they're fed organic grain from Stone House Farm in Hudson. 11 Kettle Farm is "dedicated to organic agriculture," but not certified organic. I've noted that many of the farms that sell locally don't bother with the cost and hassle of a federal organic certification, because they know their customers trust them, with good reason. I can't imagine Kinga and Kristian spraying chemicals. The eggs, by the way, are delicious, as advertised. Check the website for availability.

I asked about the blue eggs in my package. They're from black hens which are included in the flock. It seems that hawks are scared of black hens because they look like crows. I don't know – I always thought hawks had pretty good eyesight.

Here are some labels you might see on your egg cartons:

- Local – The USDA defines "local" as food produced within 400 miles of its final destination. I personally limit "local" to the Hudson Valley, or maybe also the Rondout Valley, or even the Wallkill Valley.

- Organic – The federal government certifies a product as organic if it meets strict standards, often disputed by traditional farmers who consider themselves organic. The "USDA Organic" label is important for organic farmers selling to distributors or big supermarkets.

- Cage free – The N.Y. senate bill under consideration defines "cage free" as an environment where a hen is "free to roam unrestricted except by exterior walls."

- N.Y. Grown and Certified – Eggs produced in N.Y. state, from a farm meeting department of health regulations and participating in an Agricultural Environmental Management Program.

- Vegetarian Fed – The hens are fed a vegetarian diet. This is tough for pasture-

Why did the chicken cross the road? Because it was a "free range" chicken!

Paul W. Hait and Jo-Ann P. Hait

Paul W. Hait, 63, and Jo-Ann P. Hait, 65, of Wappingers Falls, NY, passed away tragically on Sunday, January 26, 2025, at their home.

Paul was born on July 29, 1961, at Vassar Brothers Hospital in Poughkeepsie, NY to Malcolm and Ann Henion Hait. A 1979 graduate of Roy C. Ketcham High School, he earned two bachelor's degrees and built a lifelong career at IBM, where he held various roles, primarily as a Semiconductor Engineer. Beyond his professional achievements, Paul was deeply committed to his community. He served as a volunteer firefighter with the Hughsonville Fire Department and was a dedicated board member of the Wappingers Rural Cemetery, following in the footsteps of his brother, father and grandfather.

Paul had a profound love for the history of Wappingers Falls, often walking the neighborhood and village with their beloved dog, Lady Madonna, greeting everyone along the way with a smile, a laugh, and a great story. As he fought some tough health problems over the last few years he never got down. He remained positive and took one day at a time. Yoga became a very important part of his life and helped him tremendously as he faced his health battles. He made many friends through his journey with yoga and on yoga retreats. He was currently working on getting his Yoga teacher certification.

Jo-Ann was born on May 15, 1959, at St. Joseph's Hospital in Yonkers, NY to Joan R. and Edward B. Fresenius. She grew up in Northern Westchester County with her three brothers and graduated from Somers High School in 1977 before attending Berkley Secretarial School. She began her career at Union Carbide in Armonk, NY, and later dedicated over 18 years to the Arlington School District's Transportation Department. However, her most cherished role was being a mother. Her greatest pride and joy were her son, daughter, and granddaughter.

Jo-Ann nurtured lifelong friendships, treasuring the bond she shared with her close girlfriends. Their regular getaway weekends were a source of joy, laughter, and sisterhood that she held dear to her heart.

On October 7, 1984, Paul and Jo-Ann married in Somers, NY and this past October, they celebrated 40 years of marriage. Jo-Ann and Paul had a special love that they shared throughout their lives. Their kindness and generosity was felt by many. They lived their lives helping others by spreading peace and love. Knowing they are together is our only comfort.

Family was always their top priority, and they embraced every opportunity to create lasting memories. Whether it was vacations to Long Beach Island, trips to Florida, or trips to Antigua later in life they loved traveling together. From late spring to early fall, Paul and Jo-Ann spent most of their time on the Hudson River. They loved the peacefulness of the river. "Picture yourself in a boat on a river with tangerine trees and marmalade skies."

Their love of boating and embrace of all those they came in contact with through their time on the water made them the cornerstones of whatever marina they called their summer home. Whether you were stopping by for sage or salty advice, mechanical help, a belly laugh, or an evening of great conversation, they were always there with open-arms. They were dearly loved and cherished by their boating community and it is where they made so many wonderful relationships. There was nothing better than sitting on the aft deck of their boat, listening to music and raising a glass to the sunset, or friendship, or whatever the toast of the evening was.

Music was a constant in their lives, with the Beatles holding a special place in their hearts. Paul, a talented musician, played the piano, harmonica, keyboard, ukulele, and guitar, and together, they believed in the power of music to heal the soul. "Someday we'll find it, the rainbow connection, the lovers, the dreamers, and me."

Paul and Jo-Ann are survived by their beloved son, daughter, and granddaughter. Paul is also survived by his sisters, Gail Scotto (Louis) and Susan Hamilton, along with several nieces, nephews, and cousins. He was predeceased by his parents, his brother Donald Hait, his brother-in-law Barry Hamilton, his Uncle Gerald Hait and his Aunt Sandra Hait. Jo-Ann is survived by her three brothers, Jeff (John), Tom (Suzanne), and Barry (Anna Marie) Fresenius, as well as many nieces and nephews. She was predeceased by her parents.

In accordance with the family's wishes, services and interment will be private. A celebration of life will be held in early April, with details to be announced at a later date.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be sent in Paul Hait's name to support Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center at <http://mskcc.convio.net/goto/paulhait> or in Jo-Ann and Paul's name to the ASPCA.

Arrangements are entrusted to Straub Catalano & Halvey Funeral Home. To send the family a personal condolence, please visit our website at www.StraubCatalanoHalvey.com.

Gwendolyn Olive Cardarelli

Gwendolyn Olive Cardarelli, 83, an area resident for 62 years, died unexpectedly on February 2, 2025 at Vassar Brothers Medical Center. Gwen always said, "You've got to participate in life!" and that she did. Every day of her life was full.

Gwen was born in Schenectady, NY on May 17, 1941, the youngest of 4 children born to John Henry Albert Tomkins and Olive (Stephens) Tomkins. She is predeceased by her siblings John "Jack" Tomkins, Keith Tomkins, and Sheila Lindsay.

She was raised in a very musical family with the strong religious influence of the Salvation Army. She described having a wonderful childhood playing, climbing trees, and singing. She went to Bryant College in Providence, RI where she met the love of her life, John Cardarelli, who would blow up her teetotaling upbringing and give her new ways to share her energy and love. They were married on September 1, 1962 and went on to start their family in Dutchess County having 3 daughters. John died on June 4, 1994.

Gwen achieved her Master's Degree in social work in 1983 with most of her professional life as a Social Worker at Vassar Brothers Hospital. She was an active member of various organizations including the New Hackensack Reformed Church, Adirondack Mountain Club, Hudson Valley Ski club, and Mid-Hudson Bicycle Club. She volunteered for Meals on Wheels, the Boardman Library, and a host of other groups over the years.

Gwen was the picture of gregarious. Everywhere she went she saw someone she knew, and if she didn't know anyone, she would make a friend before she left. She was always sports and activity focused as a kid and this never slowed down. From Jazercize in the 80's, skiing, bicycling - including weeks long cycling tours in Europe and other destinations - to hiking, bowling, golfing, kayaking, and pickleball. She was probably most known for dancing, often 4 nights a week and having no hesitation to drive an hour or more to go. She was known for hearing a song and saying, "I know a dance to that one!" And when shoe shopping she had to try a pair on and do a little shimmy to make sure she could dance in them.

Gwen was always up for a shopping trip or an art gallery, movie or concert, an educational talk or lecture. She regularly took adult learning courses and loved to share the fascinating things she learned. She was interested in everything and loved to read and learn. She took tap dancing lessons, piano lessons, Italian, painting, just to name a few. Her energy, excitement for life, and constant interest in learning paired well with traveling. A typical question for her daughters was "Where is your Mom? What's she up to now?" The answer was often another country, sailing the south of France, ziplining in Costa Rica, camping on the Mexican Baja, bicycling through Europe, or something of the like. Everyone wanted to "be like her when I grow up!"

Gwen was exceptionally thoughtful and generous, always thinking about what she could do for someone else. She would often cook or bake something to bring to someone, sometimes for no particular reason. She never went anywhere "empty-handed." She always wanted to help, to make people feel better. She did that. She made people feel good, better, everywhere she went.

Perhaps her greatest joy was being a mother. She told her daughters always that they were her blessings, her treasures, that she couldn't have imagined her life without them. She showered them with endless love in endless ways. She is survived by her daughters, Beth Donohue and her husband, Matthew, Sharon Strack, and Janet Cardarelli and her husband, John Audi. Her endless love was also extended to grandchildren, Matthew Donohue and his wife Destiny, Ryan Donohue, Jesse Strack, Estelle Strack, and her great-grandchildren, Jonathan and Carmen Donohue.

Because you are reading this, there is still time to be like her when you grow up. Calling hours were held at the McHoul Funeral Home, Inc., 895 Route 82, Hopewell Junction. There was a celebration of her life.

In Gwen's memory, her family has asked that everyone "pay it forward" by donating in her memory to an organization that would mean something special to her.

Alfred J. Gallo

Alfred J. Gallo (Al, Freddie to his family) died on February 8, 2025 at his home.

Born May 13, 1928 in Clarksburg, West Virginia, he was the son of Dominick Gallo and Gladys (Phyllis) Boffi. He married Nora Rita Riggleman Feb. 3, 1951, who predeceased him on July 24, 2017.

He was also predeceased by two brothers, Michael Gallo and Rocco Gallo; two sisters, VityAnn Hauver and Rosemary Talbott; and also one grandson, William Odell.

Survived by his brother, Sandy Ciancio; his daughter, Phyllis Odell (Robert), Hopewell Junction, NY, three sons, James Gallo, Poughkeepsie, NY, Joseph Gallo, Stormville, NY, and Michael Gallo (Linda), Stormville, NY. Several grandchildren, great grandchildren, one great great grandchild, and his cat, Gatta.

At the age of 13, Al started working in the West Virginia coal mines.

He served in the U. S. Army as Quartermaster at the end of World War II. Afterwards, he was self-employed for several years in Clarksburg, WV.

After moving to New York State, he was employed by Mid-Hudson Chevrolet for eight years, then he worked for the City of Poughkeepsie Department of Public Works as shop supervisor until he retired in 1992.

Al was always helping out in the community. Though not a member of Stormville Fire Company, he put in countless hours over the years helping with the vehicles and helping at work details to renovate the buildings.

He always stopped to help stranded motorists along the highway. He is remembered by many young men in our community as the gentleman who taught them to do oil changes and other routine maintenance on their cars in his front yard mechanic classes.

He loved his family, his garden and his steel guitar. A loving husband, dad, grandpa and Big Papa! Al was a good man! We're grateful for the many years we got to spend with him.

Calling hours will be held on Friday from 4-7pm at the McHoul Funeral Home, Inc., 895 Route 82, Hopewell Junction.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to: Stormville Fire Company or Hudson Valley Hospice.

Award-winning author to discuss WW II photograph, book at DCC

The Dutchess Community College Foundation (DCCF) will host an illuminating lecture by renowned historian Dr. Wendy Lower, supported by the Greenspan Trust-Handel Foundation Endowed Chair in Holocaust and Genocide Studies. The event will take place on Thursday, Feb. 13, at 7 p.m. in the James & Betty Hall Theatre.

Dr. Lower, the John K. Roth professor at Claremont McKenna College and director of the Mgrublian Center for Human Rights, will share insights from her 10-year investigation into a rare photograph that captured a harrowing moment in history—a family's murder in Ukraine during the Holocaust. Her research revealed the identities of the individuals in the image and uncovered new details about the atrocities of the Nazi regime, open-air massacres and efforts toward postwar justice.

Her findings, chronicled in the award-winning book "The Ravine: A Family, a Photograph, a Holocaust Massacre Revealed," delve into the role of family and ideology in history. Dr. Lower is also the author of "Hitler's Furies: German Women in the Nazi Killing Fields," a finalist for the National Book Award.

This lecture is free and open to the public. It is facilitated by Dr. Werner Steger, DCC professor of history and recipient of the Greenspan Trust-Handel Foundation Endowed Chair in Holocaust and Genocide Studies. For more information, visit www.sunydutchess.edu/endowed-chairs or contact the Dutchess Community College Foundation at 845-431-8407.

If you require sign language interpreting services or other accommodations, please submit your request at least two weeks in advance by contacting Linda Bertolozzi at 845-431-8058 or bertoloz@sunydutchess.edu. Visitors are encouraged to park in Lot D (GPS address: 97 Cottage Road, Poughkeepsie, NY 12601).

BAU February exhibits open

Exhibitions at BAU Gallery in Beacon are through Sunday, March 2, at 506 Main St., Beacon. Saturdays and Sundays noon-6 p.m. or by appointment.

Gallery 1: BAU Open First Prize Exhibition Briana Babani: Stuff and Nonsense

Babani's work is rooted in rigorous material exploration and labor-intensive technique. Repetitive gestures and motifs are a recurring theme, as are dualities between graphic and textural, playful and restrained, familiar and strange. She is interested in toying with notions of familiarity, functionality, and value — to that end, ubiquitous materials and forms provide a critical point of departure.

Briana Babani is an award-winning artist and designer currently living and working in New York's Hudson Valley. She grew up in the Midwest, received her BA in painting from Yale University, and then lived and worked in New York City's fashion district before earning her Master's Degree in Interior Architecture at the Rhode Island School of Design.

Gallery 2: BAU Open Awardees Exhibition Irja Bodén and Choro Leslie Meyers: Elemental Terrain

Elemental Terrain is an exhibit of ceramic sculptures by Irja Bodén and ink drawings by Choro Leslie Meyers. The artworks beckon viewers to engage with its colors, lines, and textures while also encouraging reflection on the urgent issues of climate change and environmental destruction. Choro Leslie Meyers Elemental. Meditation in art form. This body of work brings nature to the page. Mountain is here. Earth, Air, Fire, Water and Space are here. Seasons and Time are here. Magic and the Goddess are here. Reflecting the interconnection of all beings, I invite you to look deeper, to touch into presence, and to find peace and freedom in the color and the lines.

Irja Bodén Irja Bodén's ceramic sculptures feature stacked forms that are both embossed and layered, complemented by a multi-colored glaze surface. Her creative process begins on the wheel, where she transforms clay into abstract sculptures that tell a narrative. These works draw on "chthonic" references—connecting to the earth—and weave together themes of place, memory, and loss, reflecting personal and universal experiences. Bodén's art challenges the distinctions between craft and fine art.

Beacon Room: Reframing Memory, Pamela Vlahakis with guest artist Sile Marrinan

In this exhibition, two photographers have joined together to use visual storytelling to reimagine the memories of their mothers through the lens of their own family lives today. The photographers use light, space and material to add new layers to the memories of their mothers, who have passed, and to explore an inter-generational bond that transcends time and loss. Through their work, they investigate how photography, as a bridge between past and present, can help us reconnect with our histories and shape our sense of self in the here and now. Pamela Zaremba Pamela Zaremba is a photographer who lives and works in Westport CT, and is a member of the Beacon Artists Union Gallery in Beacon, NY. The driving force behind her work is her desire to help others to see the beauty in subjects that might otherwise seem ordinary. Her photos serve as snapshots of a memory, and allow the viewer into an intimate conversation with the photographer and subject. Sile Marrinan Sile Marrinan is a photographic artist drawn to the subtle, ethereal qualities of light. Her

The heavy lines indicate areas, called cages, from one to five squares in size. Fill each cage with unique digits, counting up from 1. So for example a 2-square cage contains the numbers 1 and 2; and a 5-square cage contains the numbers from 1 to 5. Adjacent (touching) squares, even ones that touch diagonally, may never contain the same number.

Greater Newburgh Symphony Orchestra set for February 15 in Newburgh

The Greater Newburgh Symphony Orchestra (GNSO) continues its 2024/25 season on Saturday, Feb. 15 at 4 p.m. at Aquinas Hall on the Mount Saint Mary College campus in Newburgh, Orange County. In collaboration with a partner of many performances, Moxart, they will present Concert of Concertos.

Maestro Ger shared his insights on this performance, "Concertos are such a dynamic and exciting form. It is all about me versus us, us versus them. It is a dialogue between the group [orchestra] and the individual [soloist]. Sometimes this dialogue is amenable and cooperative, sometimes conciliatory, sometimes competitive, and sometimes an outright confrontation."

GNSO's concertos will include Tchaikovsky's First Piano Concerto, which is "filled with all the sweeping melodic fervency for which Tchaikovsky is so justly famous". The next piece, Aaron Copland's Clarinet Concerto couldn't be further from this: "gentle and melancholic to start, the concerto opens with understated softness, chords delicately rocking back and forth, over which the clarinet quietly pours its sad song". And lastly, we have Rachmaninoff's First Piano Concerto, filled with extraordinary pianistic bravura and astonishing technical virtuosity, which is sure to bring the house down.

Ticket prices are - Balcony $80, Center Reserved $65, General $55, Senior Citizen (62+) $35. Students (with current Student ID) are $10 for general seating. They can be purchased at the door, by visiting www.newburghsymphony.org or calling 845-913-7157.

The Greater Newburgh Symphony Orchestra is celebrating its 30th anniversary as one of the leading cultural institutions of the Hudson River Valley. It was founded in 1995 by Dr. Wooyoung Choe and its first president, the late George Handler, who was followed as president after 10 years by the late Fred McCurdy. In addition to six regular subscription concerts, the Orchestra performs special engagements, including the summer concert at Boscobel House and Gardens.
