Uncertainty on federal funding: County officials monitoring reports

Dutchess County officials are monitoring the situation regarding federal funding.

By Curtis Schmidt

Concern over proposed cuts in federal spending by the current presidential administration - and the uncertainty surrounding that issue - has many individuals worried about impacts on county governments and programs therein that receive federal funding.

With those thoughts in mind, we decided to take an educational look at the 2025 Dutchess County budget with the help of Budget Director Jessica White. She is quick to point out (as of 3-14-25) "To date, we have not been notified of any federal reductions that would impact our funding. We are monitoring reports and guidance from our State agencies, the New York State Association of Counties (NYSAC), and the National Association of Counties about any possible funding changes."

White noted that federal funding supports just over $51 million in programs, services and administration in the Dutchess County 2025 operating budget.

She added that "through conservative fiscal management and spending constraint, Dutchess County has a strong financial foundation, including a healthy fund balance. Should it be necessary, our fund balance will help us absorb any unexpected changes, while providing us time to carefully analyze the specific impacts and make necessary adjustments."

White did note that the County operating budget does also have significant state funding - and federal changes could lead to decisions at the State level that are costly to the County, such as Medicaid payments. She added, "But that is a much longer discussion."

County Executive Sue Serino said, "Despite recent uncertainty, we are confident Dutchess County's strong financial position will help us weather any unexpected changes. We are grateful to our County departments for their dedication to continuing to provide the programs and services that our residents rely on, and to our Budget Office team for closely monitoring this evolving situation."

DC Health Commissioner advises residents to 'take seriously' measles virus

Measles cases are on the rise in the United States, including cases confirmed in New York State. While there have been no reported measles cases in Dutchess County, the Dutchess County Department of Health (DCDOH) urges all residents to have the Measles, Mumps and Rubella (MMR) vaccination, as it is the best-known way to stop the spread of measles.

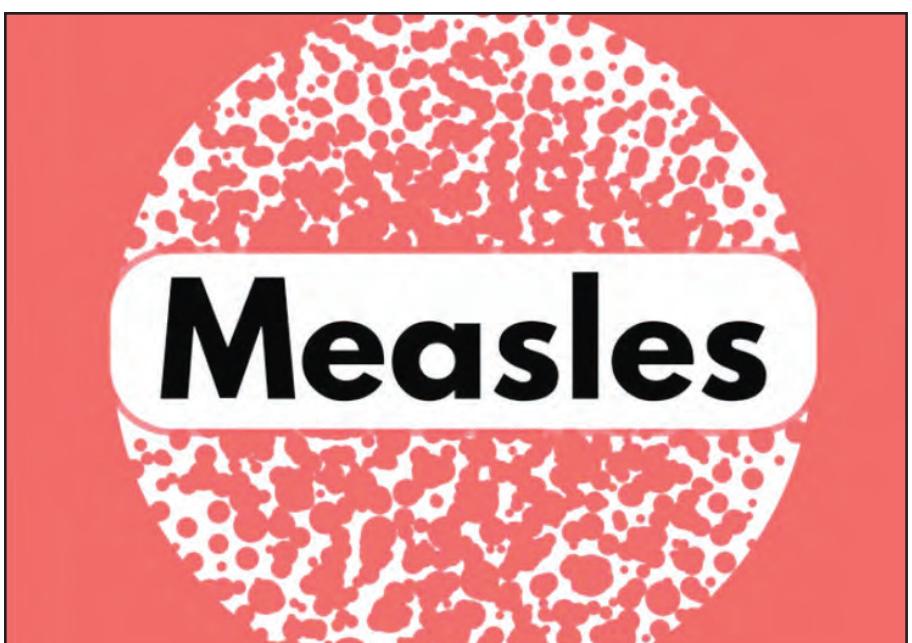

Dutchess County Health Commissioner Dr. Livia Santiago-Rosado said, "It is very important that all residents take this seriously as the measles virus is very contagious and spreads quickly. Already this year, the number of nationwide measles cases has surpassed the total for all of 2024. I encourage all residents to consider vaccination for measles and other respiratory viruses, as it is the most effective way to stop individuals from contracting and spreading these viruses. Together, we can help safeguard the well-being of our loved ones and local community members."

Measles is a very contagious respiratory virus. An individual can catch the disease by breathing in the virus or touching an infected surface and then touching the eyes, nose, or mouth; the virus can live on surfaces for up to two hours. Up to 90 percent of non-immunized people who are in close proximity to a person with measles will be infected. Among unvaccinated people who contract measles, 1 in 20 will develop pneumonia, 1 in 5 require hospitalization. Individuals who received measles vaccination between 1957 and 1967, and anyone born in 1968 or later who has not received a measles attenuated virus vaccine may be susceptible. Others who are vaccinated do not need to take further action at this time.

Two doses of MMR vaccine are 97 percent effective at preventing measles. Children should get their first Measles, Mumps and Rubella (MMR) vaccine at 12 through 15 months of age. The second dose is usually given between ages 4 years and 6 years. Because the measles vaccine contains an attenuated virus, it is not recommended for pregnant or immunocompromised people. To protect these at-risk individuals, it is important for anyone who may be in contact with them to be immunized.

Approximately 175 trees have been tapped this year, said Stanley.

"We have had a three-week run of sap starting in late February. Maple season has a short window of opportunity when the temperatures at night drop below freezing, and daytime temperatures rise above freezing. We currently have lots of sap, and are bottling syrup daily. This season looks to be better than last year," noted Stanley.

According to the Governor's Office, "New York State continues to rank second in the nation in maple production, and in 2024, maple production increased to 846,000 gallons, up nearly 100,000 gallons of maple syrup from the 2023 season."

"We tap 40 Black walnut trees that we make black walnut syrup from. It is boiled in small batches like maple syrup and a truly unique specialty syrup. We typically only make 4-5 gallons of syrup in season. The oxen pull our buckets and equipment through the forest as we tap the trees in mid-February," explained Stanley.

"Maple Month is officially underway, offering New Yorkers from every corner of the State the chance to support the hardworking producers of this sweet agricultural crop," Governor Kathy Hochul said in a statement on March 10. "New York State has a long history with this delicious crop, and continues to be home to a thriving community of maple producers making some of the most delicious and innovative maple products in the world. I encourage all New Yorkers to participate in Maple Weekends to sample some of the world-class items that New York's maple community has to offer."

What feedback was received after last year's Celebration? Stanley replied, "Last year it rained all day long. Everyone who attended enjoyed the day, but everyone wishes for better weather this year. It is March, so the weather on the day of the event is anybody's guess. People love the event and as we have seen, even come out in the worst weather."

The staff and educators "love teaching" people about how maple syrup is made, Stanley remarked. "They love having people enjoy the outdoors and this is celebration of the end of sugar season and the beginning of spring," he said.

Stanley said the organizers "hope to see old and new friends as we celebrate

Dr. Edward L. Hunt, Pastor of the Bethel Missionary Baptist Church in Wappingers Falls, who offered the invocation.

“County government is at its best when it’s working for the people,” concluded Serino. “From expanding mental health services to creating more childcare opportunities, our focus is always on the people we serve. The progress we’ve made is just the beginning, and I know we will accomplish even more in the year ahead.”

Council begins to discuss priorities for 2025

By Kristine Coulter

The Beacon City Council discussed how to prioritize what they would like to accomplish in 2025 during the meeting on March 10.

“We’re working through these things. Seeing what we can tee up next. What are we going to tee-up next? That’s where you all sort of have some say,” stated Mayor Lee Kyriacou.

To comment on a communication plan was added to the list, said the mayor.

“What might we do sooner rather than later? Longer term what do we prioritize?” Kyriacou commented.

He added, “The one I will say is the communication plan, you put some money in the budget. (City Administrator) Chris (White) and I already started talking about that.” It’s an expenditure of time – not an expenditure of money, said the mayor.

White noted one of the things talked about is information for digital and paper for everything – such as when is Christmas tree picked up? Where do I license my dog?

“We literally can think about doing something that is a resource guide,” said White, who continued maybe to have someone on staff who is a graphic artist, probably some overtime work, could do the project.

The resource guide would be updated once a year – and would drive people to the City’s website where the information can be updated, he stated.

Council member-at-large Amber Grant said, “I don’t necessarily think we want to design this here. [It is] something the community is asking for and needed.”

Grant suggested if the handling of the resource guide could be outsourced, it would be a better use of City employees’ time.

Grant asked, “How do we get a plan in place to make sure we’re supporting the City in the best way we can?”

White said, “I understand what your priorities are. We are trying to get as much done as possible while being fiscally responsible.”

He noted there have been more than 100 contracts made. “We’re running as fast as we can. I never say ‘oh we haven’t don’t enough,’” remarked White.

Kyriacou said, “We put things in our hopper, and they may not become reality and that’s OK.”

Councilmember George Mansfield said to do an inventory of what “we hope to have in the city.”

“You look at the 10 years old comprehensive plan that is so ‘old’ Beacon,” said Councilmember Pam Wetherbee. “So, what should we have teed up?” she asked.

“These are topics we’re not doing tomorrow,” said Kyriacou. The mayor noted, “We haven’t talked about some of the big projects – or simply going to wait.”

“We do think ahead many years. The practical reality is to get these projects done sometimes I’m grabbing resources from wherever I can...,” said White.

The order of importance, communication sidewalks, mobility, “I think I’m hearing that order,” said Kyriacou. “Maybe as a Council start to define what mobility means, I hear bike lanes (for mobility).”

Grant said maybe break down what one means by communication plan and mobility.

White remarked, “When it comes to these kind of Council priorities. Every week I ask the mayor what do you want on the agenda. There are like 8 things. You can’t put them all on at once... which one of these do you want to put on the agenda next. Pick one and we’ll try and prepare.”

Councilmember Jeff Domanski said, “We can have structured conversations around concepts [that we] have common ground on.” He added, “We can have structured and timely conversations to move these things forward.”

“We’ll do something to tee up the communication discussion with Council,” said Kyriacou, “and see if we can define it now, so we know as a group what we’re looking for.”

'Support each other through these uncertain times'

To the Editor:

As a resident of the village of Wappingers Falls for 12 years and now a Town resident for 31 years, I know this community is one that respects and embraces equal treatment of our residents, regardless of race, gender, sexual orientation, religion, country of origin or immigration status.

Our local law enforcement provides safety for our community, investigates dangerous and criminal activity, apprehending those responsible, as well as interacting with us, the people they serve. I have never been let down. The local patrol of the Dutchess County Sheriff's Office saved my life and the life of my husband by getting us out of a fully involved house fire in 2003.

The Federal Government is required by law to enforce federal immigration laws. I believe the residents of Wappingers Falls support ICE in lawfully removing undocumented persons convicted of crimes, dealing with them at the federal level.

Hopefully our local law enforcement will not question, investigate or arrest anyone based on actual or suspected immigration or citizenship status, a civil immigration warrant, administrative warrant or an immigration detainer.

I am additionally hoping that Wappingers Falls will disseminate information to make all residents, undocumented and citizens alike, aware of their rights pertaining to possible situations involving ICE during these unsettling and unpredictable times.

We are a community and can support each other through these uncertain times.

Get together and 'let our voices be heard'

To the Editor:

Are we really going to let Trump lie his way straight into an Oligarchy without any significant fight from our elected officials and those of us who are not consuming the daily Fox Entertainment propaganda? We sat through an election season with Republicans throughout the country lying about the Biden economy which was recovering nicely from the disaster left by the previous administration.

Number 47 was left two Democratic recovering economies which had to be rebuilt from disastrous Bush and Trump terms in office. When will we learn that Democrats are for giving a hand up to all Americans, while 47 and the Republicans are only for their Billionaire Buddies.

We absolutely must stand up to the hatred, bigotry, cheating and all the other despicable things that 47's White House stands for. We must get together and let our voices be heard through the noise. Please join your local groups that are working tirelessly to figure out ways to stop this madness.

As a retiree, I was hoping to spend my days reading, relaxing and ruminating. Unfortunately, now is not the time.

What happened to my country?

To the Editor:

When the US entered WW II, the man who eventually would become my father volunteered to serve his country and fight fascism. He and the tens of thousands of men and women who served, as well as their family members, would be appalled at the US switching political allegiances and now aligning with fascists.

In the last few weeks in a UN vote the US sided with Russia, Iran, China, and other "former enemies" refusing to agree that Russia started the war in Ukraine.

More recently, more than 30 countries had a meeting to discuss preserving and strengthening the "free world" and providing more assistance to Ukraine. The previously acknowledged leader of the free world, the United States, was not even invited to the meeting because of the current administration's policy decisions.

The "Five Eyes" intelligence community is reported to be fearful of sharing intelligence with the Trump administration because they don't think they can be trusted.

This is NOT the America that my father's generation fought to save. Please contact your representative and senators to let them know that you want the United States to be the respected leader of the free world again! We need to side with democracy over fascism.

NYS enacts Burn Ban until May 14

As dry, windy conditions continue, the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) has issued a Burn Ban for Dutchess County as well as the lower Hudson Valley region. This is an extension of the agency's annual statewide ban on burning that took effect on March 16th. The burn ban is in effect now through May 14.

Since Sunday, March 9th, more than 10 brush fires have been reported, and contained, in Dutchess County. This extension of the DEC's annual ban, which has been March 16-May 14 annually since 2009, will help prevent wildfires and protect communities as increased conditions for the rapid spread of fires continue across the county and region.

The burn ban prohibits the starting of outdoor fires for purposes of brush and debris disposal, as well as uncontained campfires, and open fires used for cooking. Backyard fire pits and contained campfires less than three feet in height and four feet in length, width, or diameter are allowed, as are small, contained cooking fires.

According to the DEC, open burning is the "single greatest cause" of wildfires in

Photographer Margaret DeMott Brown: An Artful Documentarian

By Bill Jeffway

In recognition of Women's History Month, we look through the lens of local photographer Margaret DeMott Brown (1880-1959) and her partnership with four women in particular. Brown had important collaborations with local historian Helen Wilkinson Reynolds and DCHS, Vassar College Botanist Edith Roberts, and two generations of consecutive local theater leaders who were Vassar Professors: first Gertrude Buck and then Hallie Flanagan.

Brown arrived in Poughkeepsie from the mid-West in 1917 to open a professional photographic studio near Vassar College. She was described in newspapers as having an interest in the style of "pictorialism" and would offer "home portraiture and art photographs." Pictorialism was, and remains, a form of photography that is highly artistic with strong moods and soft muted focus; sometimes described as counter to a literal documentary style. Before her local arrival she had studied with one of Pictorialism's great photographers, Clarence H. White. But much of the work done in the examples we explore have an important documentary role which reveals Brown's ability to navigate the two styles.

Helen Wilkinson Reynolds

Brown's most consistent collaborator was the local historian, researcher/writer Helen Wilkinson Reynolds (1875-1943) with whom she maintained a close personal relationship. When Reynolds died, Brown put her photographic business aside and relocated to Massachusetts to spend the rest of her life with family.

The Dutchess County Historical Society was formed in 1914 and differed from many organizations at the time by inviting the participation of women (unlike the Dutchess County Society in the City of New York, for example). This gave Brown and Reynolds a platform they put to good use for nearly three decades.

Two collaborations were published in 1924 where Brown's photographs had a supporting role: "Poughkeepsie: The Origin and Meaning of the Word and Old Gravestones of Dutchess County," which was a transcription of nineteen thousand entries. In two subsequent books, Brown's photographs were at least as important as the text: in 1929, "Dutch Houses in the Hudson Valley Before 1776" (with an introduction by FDR) in 1929; and "Dutchess County Doorways," in 1931, were published as books with a major focus on photography.

In 1938, Brown and Reynolds expanded their partnership to include Vassar College's head of the Department of Botany, Edith Roberts. They produced the landmark publication "The Role of Plant Life in the History of Dutchess County." Far ahead of its time, in what would today be called advocacy for the protection of native species and plants, the publication outlined the idea of a succession of plant associations, to help a broader general public understand the dynamic relationship of plant life over generations. Brown's other collaborations with Roberts involved just the two of them.

Edith Roberts

Edith Roberts (1881-1977) was a pioneering ecologist and eminent scientist who grew up in rural New Hampshire, graduated from Smith College in 1905, and then obtained a Ph.D. from the University of Chicago. Roberts worked for three years as an associate professor at Mount Holyoke College. When World War One broke out in 1917, she became a field representative for the U.S. Department of Agriculture, traveling the county to advise women managing farms while their husbands were serving in the war in France.

In 1920, Roberts created the first ecological laboratory in the United States at Vassar, which remains in operation today. Brown documented the workings of the laboratory and farm, as well as individual plants and plantings. Prior to the major work, "The Role of Plant Life in the History of Dutchess County," Brown and Roberts collaborated on "American Plants for American Gardens," in 1929, and "American Ferns: How to Know, Grow and Use Them," in 1935.

Several hundred photographs of ferns by Brown in "DCHS Collections" reflect both the documentary (where rulers mark sizes and date stamps mark time) as well as the most artistic (one of which for example was the cover of the Poughkeepsie Garden Club's 1933 annual booklet).

Gertrude Buck

The earliest innovator of local theater at Vassar College was Gertrude Buck (1871-1922), who was equally involved with the local Poughkeepsie Community Players. She first joined Vassar in 1897 and grew beyond the role of English professor to embrace local theater.

In part prompted by her early death, a campaign led by Vassar College President MacCracken resulted in the national publication by Macmillan of a play Buck had been working on locally. "Helga and the White Peacock" was written by Cornelia Meigs, who worked with Buck and the Poughkeepsie Community Players. The photos in the book by Brown are of the local production in her early pictorialist style (see image) which emerged as the premiere to what was a subsequent successful round of schools putting on the performance nationally.

Hallie Flanagan

Hallie Flanagan (1889-1969) was very specifically recruited to replace Gertrude Buck in the role of developing local theater. But the generational change could not have been more profound. Europe was emerging from the trauma of World War One in the 1920s with a growing interest in a radical new approach to theater. Flanagan spent a year at Vassar in 1925 before touring Europe in 1926, where she met up with Poughkeepsie-born Lee Miller, who was just about to emerge as a "modern" photographic powerhouse. Miller came back with Flanagan and introduced people she had worked with in Paris like Ladislas Medgyes (who spoke at Vassar in 1927), and invited their participation locally.

An important part of this modern movement was clear, spare geometric stagecraft, which gave Brown an entirely different platform to capture (see image).

Home portraiture

The promotion of Brown's practice upon her local arrival in 1917 promised "home portraiture." At the time she was likely not aware that her home portraiture would come to include the family of a US President, Franklin Roosevelt; and US Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau of Fishkill. Although Brown never married or had children, descendants of her family through an aunt have generously shared many of the images in their private collections. Reports of Brown being close to the Roosevelt and Morgenthau families is preserved in handwritten notes to Brown from each of them, inscribed on family photos Brown had taken of each family.

Beacon student completes Eagle Scout composting project at Stony Kill

By Kristine Coulter

Fifteen-year-old Victoria Lee McKay has completed her Eagle Scout Project, the highest rank in Scouting.

"I first thought about what entity I could do something nice for and quickly realized that Stony Kill Farm (SKF) would be a great entity to serve as the benefactor of my Eagle Project," explained Victoria, a town of Fishkill resident, in an email. "I then consulted with the people there as to what I could do to assist them in their educational mission and also be of use to them. Because one of the purposes that the volunteers undertake there is to educate the public about how to protect the environment and because SKF had only one old, small compost bin, I thought that I could construct a much larger one for my Eagle project. Having a newer and larger compost bin would enable SKF to compost on a much greater scale than they had undertaken previously and which would allow them to encourage others to compost their disposables to reduce waste and build healthy soil."

Victoria, who attends Beacon High School, explained how she broke her project down into three stages.

"I first needed to decide what I was going to do and then decide how to go about achieving it, including securing the materials and volunteers. Secondly, I needed to round up the appropriate volunteers whom I could lead on the project to construct the 9 foot long, three section compost bin that I had decided upon. Thirdly, I then needed to direct my volunteers on the construction and then delivery of the compost bin. With each step I marveled at how I was getting closer to becoming an Eagle Scout while enjoying how I was going to be able to give something back to SKF, a place that I have visited numerous times since I was a very young child."

Allen McKay, Victoria's father, shared, "My wife and I are very proud of our daughter for being able to give back to SKF, a place that she holds near and dear to her heart because of her great childhood experiences there - visiting the animals in the barn, hiking its trails, and going to its festivals over the years. We knew that she already possessed the leadership qualities to be able to direct her adult and child friends as well as some fellow scouts in constructing and delivering to SKF the sizable compost bin, but this clearly demonstrated that she could execute upon her plan."

Mckay noted, "Completing her Eagle project was all the more exciting for us because we knew that she was then well underway to becoming the first girl in her (Boy) Scout troop to become an Eagle Scout and that she was also about to become one of only a very small number of girls to attain the rank of Eagle Scout in Dutchess County as girls have only recently been allowed to join what was previously called the Boy Scouts."

While in Scouts, Victoria has served in various leadership positions including as a Den Chief for a Den in Cub Scouts Pack 3001, and as Senior Patrol Leader and Assistant Senior Patrol Leader for the girls in Scouts Troop 86. Victoria's brother, Allen, also was an Eagle Scout.

Victoria stated that completing her Eagle Scout project, she learned "I can lead a group of people to achieve a common goal no matter how much older or younger they are than me."

"For my Eagle project, I needed to have at least one person who could safely cut pieces of wood to their appropriate sizes and other people who could fasten together all of the pieces of wood and screening. I also learned how to break down the overall project into smaller pieces so that completing the entire project was not as daunting when all I needed to do was complete each component part. This process of breaking down the overall project into component parts is very much like becoming an Eagle Scout – where one needs to achieve the various ranks – the smaller steps – to complete the overall goal – becoming an Eagle Scout," remarked Victoria.

McKay said, "She has now been awarded her Eagle Scout rank, the highest rank in the Boy Scouts, and her next plan is to complete her Gold Award, the Girl Scouts' highest rank."

Uncertainty on federal funding: County officials monitoring reports

The cover of the 2025 Dutchess County Adopted Budget, which could be impacted by proposed federal cuts.

From a historical perspective, County Comptroller Dan Aymar-Blair said in a report, "We found that federal programs represent a little over 10% of our expenditures, not including COVID-19 relief. In 2023, this amounted to $65 million, including over $25 million in direct aid such as food stamps and home energy assistance. Federal dollars also support core County functions: adoption and foster care supports, emergency and disaster preparedness, workforce investment, child support enforcement, buses, roads, sidewalks and more."

Looking at the situation from a statewide perspective, Dutchess County Legislature Chairman Will Truitt said, "During a recent trip up to Albany for the NYSAC Annual Conference, it was clear that the leadership of NYSAC is concerned by proposed federal cuts and the subsequent potential impacts on county governments across New York State. At this time, there is general sense of uncertainty as we have not yet lost any federal revenue. I am aware that NYSAC is lobbying New York's Congressional delegation to advocate on behalf of county governments to ensure we do not suffer a loss of federal dollars. This is precisely the reason we in Dutchess County have placed such a high value on maintaining a solid fiscal fund balance of 1-2 months of operating funds in reserves in order to protect our taxpayers in the instance of challenging economic times or a sudden loss of revenue."

Here are Federal Operating Funds included in the Dutchess County 2025 Operating Budget. All of the dollars listed are projected funds – based on prior and continuing funding allocations and confirmed grant awards. Not included are "off budget funding, such as Community Development Block Grants, for which the allocation is not known from year to year.

- Public Transit - $6,816,205
- Public Health Grants - $573,909
- Early Intervention, Pre-school Special Education and Special Needs - $1,097,535
- Mental Health Grants - $448,750
- Office for the Aging - $1,224,199

Remember that Renegade?

By Morgan E. Maier

For over 30 years, fond farewells have been the driving force in the Hudson Valley baseball. Hundreds of players have moved up Major League Baseball ranks while Dutchess County cheers them on. These days, Hudson Valley Renegades will go on to Somerset, Wilkes-Barre, the Bronx and beyond. Many paths await our Renegades once they leave High-A baseball. So let's check in on some of our backyard ballplayers and see where they are today.

Evan Longoria, 3B (2007)

In the summer of 2007, the centerfield trees turned to watch an Evan Longoria home run sail overhead. Dutchess County legend says that ball still hasn't touched the ground. "Longo" was a Renegade for just a week, ripping through the Tampa Bay Rays organization on his way to being named the 2008 Rookie of the Year. In his 15-year career, he appeared in two World Series with Tampa Bay and the San Francisco Giants. Since Longoria left the Rays in 2018, nobody has worn #3 for Tampa Bay.

Stephen Vogt, C (2007)

Before he was an unlikely fan favorite in Oakland, Stephen Vogt was the first Renegades catcher to reach the majors. A two-time All-Star with the A's, Vogt was essential in the team's seemingly-random playoff run of 2013. Following a short retirement in 2022, he joined the Seattle Mariners as a clubhouse and quality control coach. Known for a positive dugout presence in each of the six organizations he played for, Vogt was the Cleveland Guardians' top choice as Terry Francona's managerial replacement. After earning the top record in the American League Central (92-69), Vogt beat out his former Renegades skipper Matt Quatraro for the 2024 AL Manager of the Year crown.

Josh Smith, INF (2021)

As a Hudson Valley Renegade, Josh Smith hit .324 with 9 home runs and 17 stolen bases. After his successful High-A stint, Smith was part of a package traded to the Texas Rangers for Joey Gallo in 2021. Smith became a mainstay in the 2023 World Series champion team. In 2024, he received a Silver Slugger award as the American League's best utility player, posting career highs in home runs, batting average, and RBIs. In Arlington this season, Smith eyes the Gold Glove in the same category.

Jasson Domínguez, OF (2022)

Nicknamed "El Marciano" (the martian) by a scout at spring training, Jasson Domínguez has been a highly-awaited prospect. After light years spent bouncing between AAA and the bigs, the outfield prospect will finally get phoned home. After a late call-up for the Bombers' World Series run, this top pinstriped prospect is likely to make the Opening Day roster. Hear it in these pages first, Renegades fans. Snatch some Number 12 merchandise from the Renegades team store. You may be sorry when they hit auctions later.

Jared Serna, SS (2022)

Before shortstop Jared Serna was traded to the Miami Marlins last July, his 22 games with 2-plus hits led all Renegades. His multi-hit madness increased his stock, and the Marlins' affections. Down in the Sunshine State, Serna went 4-5 with four RBI's in his AA debut as a Pensacola Blue Wahoo, continuing his offensive tear after being promoted to AAA Jacksonville to close the season. In 2025, the 22-year-old leads all hitters in Marlins spring training camp, batting .571 in five games.

George Lombard Jr., INF (2024)

When former first-round pick George Lombard Jr. arrived in the area last August, the Hudson Valley summer got a bit hotter. In the closing month of the 2024 season, Lombard's bat helped Hudson Valley reach the South Atlantic League championship series. At the Yankees 2025 Spring Training, Lombard showed a drastic improvement as a non-roster invitee. He put on weight, increased his power, and evened out his swing. Most of all, Lombard proved he can hit MLB pitches, sending a 96 mph sinker into the seats at George M. Steinbrenner Field in Tampa. Some are calling him the Yankee third baseman of the future. Could he make his pinstripes debut this season?

Marist, DCC basketball teams end seasons in tournaments

By Morgan E. Maier

What's the opposite of trifecta? On March 13, next season began for each of Poughkeepsie's "Big Three" college basketball teams. The defining moments of each team's season, though, are not the final game outcomes. In the final day of their seasons, the Marist University Red Foxes were twice snared in the Mountaineers' trap, and the Dutchess Community College Falcons' historic run ended in foul play against the Dallas College - Richmond Thunderducks.

Don't cry for me, A.C.

This would be a different story but for Marist's ugly regular season finish. The spirit squad kept the crowd in the game on the boardwalk in Atlantic City. Even Frankie Fox took the pom poms for a spin. But Marist couldn't capitalize on their defensive stops and Mountaineer missteps, losing the first men's quarterfinal to eventual MAAC champions of Mount St. Mary's University. On the heels of John Dunne's best season to date, Marist can look back on this season with pride. Next year just means just a little more. Expect Josh Pascarelli to pop off for his senior season after a career year filled with honors and career highs. With the exit of senior center Jackson Price, keep an eye on the development of freshman center and Middletown, N.Y. native, Tarik Watson.

First-round exit cannot clip Falcons' wings

One of two New York basketball teams to be ranked #1 nationally, the DCC Falcons had a lot to be proud of this season. With seven departing sophomores, we will be seeing a new-look Falcons squad next year. The freshmen won't forget the feeling; it will fuel them next year. From team alumni to fans, family and friends, DCC will remember the nationally-recognized 2024-25 Region XV champs fondly.

2,460 seconds

If only they had an extra minute. Marist women would have completed the comeback if basketball games were 41 minutes, not 40. In the final quarter, Marist's fire would have burned up the boardwalk. After Mount doubled up Marist 54-27, the MAAC Championship's first quarterfinal seemed decided. But Marist spent the final quarter erasing the deficit. And showing fans that the program is in great hands.

They nearly completed the third-largest comeback in the history of NCAA women's basketball history. Marist showed their fight, turning up the heat at Jim Whelan Boardwalk Hall. It was ten straight minutes of forcing Mountaineer mistakes before the final buzzer bailed out St Mary's. Chasing down loose balls, forcing bad passes, and pulling one another from the hardwood, our girls were one point shy of a 64-64 tie. Marist lost the heartbreaker 68-65, but Erin Doughty and the Red Foxes showed us why they've stolen the hearts of fans from McCann to Maryland. If next season brings anything.

We have Falcons, Red Foxes, and student-athletes everywhere to thank for getting us through another Hudson Valley winter. From every HV hoops fan who tuned in to watch the MAAC and NJCAA, it's been a joy to watch our mid-major and junior college student-athletes. March Madness will tide us over for now. See you in October.

Renegades showcase Yankees' future in Spring Breakout Game

Former Renegades' star Spencer Jones hit two homers during a Spring Breakout Game over the weekend.

By Morgan E. Maier

With 44-year-old Nick Swisher coaching New York Yankees rookies from the first base line, baseball's past and future collided in Sarasota, Fla. this weekend at Ed Smith Stadium. Top Yankees and Baltimore Orioles prospects faced off for the second annual Spring Breakout, a single-game showcase of the league's finest farm talent. Seventeen Renegades alumni were selected to show their skills, and our boys did not disappoint this Spring Breakout. What better way to spend a long weekend than some rookie baseball in the sun?

Big, bad Spencer Jones looked like the 2023 Rising Star that the Hudson Valley remembers fondly. If you have his bobblehead from last season's giveaway, get the display case ready.

Jones put on a memorable display in the inaugural Spring Breakout, sending two pitches above the outfield fence. This time around, Jones was plunked in his first two at-bats, finishing 1-2 with an RBI, a double and a run scored on the day.

The defensive gem of the day came by 3B Jesús Rodríguez ('23, '24), who is more known for power hitting than fielding prowess. He robbed Jud Fabian of a 5th inning hit, sliding across the third-base line before making a strong one-hop throw to first. Rodríguez hit a bouncing single that split the middle infielders in the first inning, and Jones flew home from second base. Rodríguez finished with two RBIs and a hit in his five plate appearances.

With the average age just under 22, the Yankees held the AL East's second youngest Spring Breakout roster. Nineteen-year-old George Lombard Jr. picked up a couple bases as the leadoff hitter, setting up scoring opportunities for his prospect teammates.

The bases were loaded with 2024 Renegades in the 8th inning. Josh Moylan singled, Garrett Martin walked, then Lombard Jr.'s rallied a two-out infield single. Nowhere to go for fellow 2024 alum Jackson Castillo. The second pitch of Castillo's at-bat sailed over the catcher's shoulder, scoring Moylan easily.

The previous inning showed a familiar Eric Reyzman ('24), who is arguably the Bombers' most slept-on pitching prospect. Reyzman pitched a scoreless seventh frame to keep the game tied at 3 apiece. Reyzman gave up two hits in six appearances for the Renegades, putting up a 0.00 ERA in 9 innings. If he stays healthy, Reyzman will likely get called up to the Yankees' regular season roster.

Former Yankees prospects Agustín Ramírez ('23) and Jared Serna ('23, '24) also showcased some Spring Breakout talent. Serna and Ramírez appeared for the Miami Marlins down in Jupiter, FL. Ramírez was hitless in five innings, but impacted the game on the basepath, with a run scored and a walk.

The looming presence of 6'7" righty Carlos Lagrange got the start for the Yankees. After a shaky first frame, Lagrange responded by retiring 11 batters in a row. With a heater maxed at 101 mph according to the stadium reader, Lagrange clocked 100 consistently, to wagging tongues in the bullpen and cheers from the crowd. Righty Ben Hess fanned three batters over two relief innings in his professional debut. Dominican-born Lagrange and 2024 first-round pick Hess have yet to emerge from the rookie leagues, but we should see them at Heritage Financial Park sooner than later.

Grinnell Library highlights the artwork of Fatima-Ezzahra in March

Artwork by artist Fatima-Ezzahra can be seen at Grinnell Library in Wappingers Falls throughout March.

-Courtesy image artist, Grinnell Library

Fatima-Ezzahra is an artist who develops artwork that expresses her deepest thoughts and emotions in a very creative and unique way. Fatima-Ezzahra also known as "Tima" is originally from Morocco and came to America in 2014 after marrying her husband PJ. Although she has enjoyed art and painting since she was a child, she really started focusing on living her dream as an aspiring artist beginning in 2014. Since then, she has sold many pieces of artwork online and now, she has had the opportunity to have it displayed in Poughkeepsie. Her goal and objective is to gain recognition and one day have her artwork displayed around the world.

So much time, effort and emotion go into each canvas she paints. She wants to leave behind breathless representations of the emotions women go through in their efforts to stay ahead of the current times. When one looks at Tima's paintings...pause & then reflect. Only then will one see the true beauty that lies within each brush stroke of paint laid down on that canvas.

Fatima-Ezzahra's work will be on display throughout March. For more information, contact the library at 845-297-3428. Grinnell Library is at 2642 East Main Street in Wappingers Falls.

I have written many stories about working with my father in the restaurant. My father still is tough. He still is relentless. He might have slowed down, but he still produces. At 92 years old, he still is an incredible chef and he still comes in every day. Every single day. Only for a couple of hours, but still, every single day.

The other day, my father came into the restaurant. It was a Sunday, and Sunday is my last day before my day off. Needless to say, Sundays are a little rough because I am usually on my last leg and I am not the most pleasant person to be around. On Sundays, Pop usually comes in later, after noon mass, to make dinner for himself. He's full of energy for his age and always ready for me.

So when Pop comes in I have already put in around 5 hours of work with only 8 more to go, and I've got my eye on the prize. I'm trying to stay focused and not lose my cool.

So Pop comes in and he sees me, and right away he starts.

Pop: Quello che un viso brutto (What an ugly face) Hai mangiato limoni stamattina? (Did you eat lemons this morning?)

Me: Why do you say that?

Pop: Come on, it's a morning and you already in a bada mood?

Me: No, Pop, I'm not in a bad mood.

Pop: Whya you looka that way?

Me: I don't know. I'm busy and I'm trying to get all my work done.

Pop: Maka sure the bread crumbs are done.

Me: What? Huh? (sigh) Yes, Pop.

Pop: Maka sure you no tak the sauce off the fire too soon.

Me: (sigh) Yes, Pop.

Pop: Youa sure youa ok?

Me: Yes, Pop. I'm fine.

Pop: OK. Do you still need me to maka the Tira mi Su?

Me: No, Pop. We ran out so I had to make it.

Pop: What?! Nowa you no needa me no more?

Me: No, Pop. We ran out. I had to make it.

Pop: Nowa youa the chef, right? Youa no need me to bea the chef?

Me: (sigh) No, Pop. That's not true. I just needed to make one for today. You can make it for tomorrow.

Pop: (pauses as he stares at me) Youa maka it the righta way?

Me: Yes, Pop. I followed your recipe.

Pop: Youa usa the brandy?

Me: Yes, Pop.

Pop: Anda the Kahlua?

Me: Yes, Pop.

Pop: Youa make the custard the righta way?

Me: Yes, Pop, just like you showed me.

Pop: Youa...

Me: Pop, please. Stop. I'm tired. I've got to finish the day, so I can take tomorrow off.

Pop: Oh youa tired?

Me: (sigh) Yes, Pop, I'm tired.

Pop: How many days youa work this week, huh?

Me: Oh no ... 6, Pop.

Pop: Six? You tak the sauce off the fire too soon.

Me: No, Pop.

Pop: You gotta everything done?

Me: Almost, Pop. It'll be done by the end of the day.

Pop: Good. (pause) Youa worka too hard.

He kissed me on the cheek and slapped my other cheek. He turned away from me and went into the walk-in cooler to get his ingredients for dinner. At that moment I thought my head was about to explode. I could almost hear Frank Sinatra singing "The Impossible Dream." I wasn't sure, but I think he paid me a compliment.

Tira Mi Su Ingredients

6 egg yolks
3/4 cup white sugar
1 1/2 cup milk
1 1/4 cups heavy cream
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 pound mascarpone cheese
1 cup strong brewed coffee, room temperature
4 tablespoons brandy
4 tablespoons Kahlua
4 (3 ounce) packages ladyfinger cookies
1 tablespoon unsweetened cocoa powder

Method

In a medium saucepan, whisk together egg yolks and 1 cup of sugar until well blended. Whisk in milk and cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture boils. Boil gently for 1 minute, remove from heat and allow to cool slightly. Cover tightly and chill in refrigerator 1 hour.

In a medium bowl, beat cream with vanilla until stiff peaks form. Whisk mascarpone into yolk mixture until smooth. Add chilled custard and gently whisk until blended.

In a small bowl, combine coffee, 1/2 cup sugar, brandy and Kahlua. Dip ladyfingers into the coffee mixture.

Arrange half of soaked ladyfingers in bottom of a 7x11 inch dish. Spread half of mascarpone mixture over ladyfingers. Sprinkle with cocoa. Repeat layers and again sprinkle with cocoa. Cover and refrigerate 4 to 6 hours, until set.

To serve, cut into a 3-inch square and garnish with whipped cream.

Luigi Coppola is one of five brothers born to Francesca and Antonio Coppola. The Coppola family came to America from Naples, Italy in 1954. Antonio and his brothers opened their first restaurant in Poughkeepsie in 1961. Luigi and his brothers Nick, John, Antonio and Vincent have carried on the family tradition in the way their parents taught them, using classic recipes taught to them at their apron strings. VETERANS NEWS WITH ADAM ROCHE

Veterans Affairs wants to hear from you

We hope respondents' answers will offer insight such as:

identifying any of our programs that could be adjusted or administered in a more effective manner;

how we can more effectively distribute resources to address the most pressing needs of our veteran community;

identifying possible gaps in any of our services;

how we can increase community engagement and future participation in the activities and events we sponsor;

identifying policy issues that we may need to meet with our county, state and federal representatives to discuss.

We want veterans in Dutchess County to feel they have a measure of ownership regarding the services we offer, and also know they part of the decision-making process. I believe working together to make this project a success can help us achieve that and further strengthen the strong relationship we have already developed over the years. You all have different life experiences and perspectives, and offering your unique insights will be invaluable.

I invite you to thoughtfully look over the questionnaire and answer the questions as honestly as possible. It is confidential and is designed to allow you to answer as candidly as possible. All answers will be kept anonymous and used only to discover new ideas and determine how to better serve you. The survey will be available online and we will also be following up with traditional paper surveys.

As you can imagine, with approximately 13,000 veterans in Dutchess County, with even modest participation from our veteran population, we expect to get a wide range of responses that will take a considerable amount of time to analyze. So we ask you to help us make this endeavor a success by supplying your answers and returning them to us as early as you can.

You can access the questionnaire on our website at www.dutchessny.gov/veterans and in the coming weeks, we will also be distributing the survey by email, mail and at various community events. Help us spread the word and share the survey with fellow veterans so we can get as much feedback as possible. We appreciate your help!

As always, if you have any questions, please contact our office at the Dutchess County Office of Veterans Services at 845-486-2060 or visit www.dutchessny.gov/veterans.

We're excited to hear from you.

Tree removal at Breakneck Ridge to begin this week

Tree removal will begin to take place in the Breakneck Ridge corridor, on the west side of Route 9D, just north of the Breakneck tunnel in the Town of Fishkill this week, according to the Hudson Highlands Fjord Trail (HHFT).

This work is in preparation for construction of the Breakneck Connector and Bridge, which is slated to begin later this spring, stated HHFT.

An Environmental Stewardship Biologist with the New York State Office of Parks, Recreation and Historic Preservation (OPRHP) conducted a field determination that there are no active raptor nests in the area of work.

Ultimately, these trees will be replaced with 2,080 shrubs, 430 trees, and thousands of additional native plants to foster more early successional forest, dense shrub, and grassland habitat, which will better serve native wildlife in the Breakneck corridor, stated HHFT.

Obituaries

Phillip Randazzo

Phillip Chris Randazzo, a resident of Beacon, NY, formerly of Peekskill and Mount Kisco, passed away on February 4, 2025 at Putnam Hospital at the age of 81.

He was born in Passaic, NJ on July 31, 1943 to the late Christopher and Pearle (Pizzulo) Randazzo.

His high school years began at Peekskill Military Academy and finished as a graduate of Clifton High School, Class of 1961. It is there where he met his high school sweetheart whom he married and together they had Christopher, David, Todd, and Tracy, before separating. He played clarinet for the Mustang band and marched in the Rose Parade in California in 1960 and played football in high school.

He started out working for his father as a senior project manager in the family construction company, Randall Construction before becoming an independent contractor and starting P.C. Randazzo Construction Company. While working for his father at Randall Construction, his work took him all around the NY/NJ area for such companies as IBM, UniRoyal, and many libraries, public schools and government buildings at Picatinny Arsenal in Dover, NJ and the U.S. Post Office in Newark, NJ.

Phil had the opportunity to attend the New Jersey State Police Academy with extremely high marks on his entrance exam, but ultimately he enjoyed working with his dad and stayed on at Randall, running major construction projects. He was extremely talented at overseeing complicated projects and managing the many workers of varying trades required to get the job done. He was meticulous with numbers and calculations. Phil was incredibly proud of starting his own business, P.C. Randazzo Construction Company. He continued working in construction until a back injury made the strenuous physical work too difficult.

Later, Phil had another son, Joseph, and was especially passionate about coaching him in baseball and bowling. Phil was an avid golfer and bowler. He loved few things more than the NY Yankees. He loved cars and his midnight blue 1964 GTO drop top with white interior was a special point of pride.

In his later years, he was PopPop to his grandchildren, pursued passion projects, spent time with friends, and always had a story to tell. He left an indelible impression on all who knew him and will be very much missed.

Phil Randazzo was larger than life to all who knew him and passed peacefully after making an unforgettable mark on this world.

Survivors include his son, Joseph Randazzo & his wife Christina of Wappingers Falls; his son, Christopher Randazzo & his wife Pamela of Millville, NJ; his daughter, Tracy Shinaberry & her husband Craig of Defiance, OH; his son, David Randazzo & his wife Maryann of Millville, NJ; his son, Todd Randazzo of Millville, NJ; his grandchildren: Kate, Rory, Stephanie, Christina, Lara, and Linnea; his great-grandchildren: Steven, Jonathan, Kayden, Kora, and Kooper; his siblings: Patrick Randazzo & his wife Patricia and Christine Donofrio; as well as several nieces & nephews and many other loving relatives & friends.

Phil was preceded in death by his parents as well as his brother, Paul Randazzo, and brother-in-law, Michael Donofrio.

Calling hours will be held on Saturday, April 12, 2025 from 1:00 p.m. – 3:00 p.m. followed by a service at 3:00 p.m. at the McHoul Funeral Home of Fishkill, Inc., 1089 Main Street, Fishkill, NY.

William A. Cross

William "Bill" A. Cross, 93, passed away on March 3, 2025, in Redmond, WA.

Born December 23, 1931, in Beacon, NY, he was the son of the late William and Myrtle (Root) Cross.

He attended New York City College and graduated in 1951.

On November 22, 1954, he married Helen Veronica (Clee), who passed away on January 7, 1979. He married Lois (McAllister) on June 18, 1983, losing her on December 11, 2018.

In his younger days, Bill was an avid hunter and fisherman who enjoyed the mountains and streams of the Hudson Valley. Later he took up tennis, which he played regularly with his children. He also enjoyed the arts, growing bonsai, playing the piano, and listening to classical music. He had a great sense of humor and loved telling stories, particularly of growing up in Beacon.

Bill was an accountant and general manager throughout his career, assisting multiple businesses, which necessitated moving back and forth across the country. He finally retired at the age of 83 from Corporate United Van Lines in Washington in 2014. He also sat on the board of directors for several charitable organizations.

He is survived by his seven children: William (Laurie) of McHenry, IL, Joe (Patty) of Buckeye, AZ, Tom (Anne Wehrly) of Carnation, WA, Veronica Ryan (Bruce Pyles) of Mill Creek, WA, Robert (Sally) of Fox Island, WA, Edward of Tucson, AZ, John (Rose Brant) of Junction City, OR, and two stepchildren, Ross McAllister of Redmond, WA, and Megan (Mike) Johnson of Clancy, MT. He also leaves behind 22 grandchildren and 26 great-grandchildren.

Along with his two wives, Bill was preceded in death by his sister, Theresa Travis, and his brother, Francois Cross.

A brief graveside service will be held at the New St. Joachim's Cemetery, Beacon, NY, at 11:30am on April 4th. There will be a reception following at the Southern Dutchess Country Club.

Lilia P. Zani

Lilia P. Zani, a beloved resident of Wappingers Falls, peacefully passed away at her home on March 6, 2025, at the age of 92, leaving behind a rich legacy of love, family, and dedication. She was born on December 20, 1932, in Groppodulosio, Italy to the late Sovvenire Perini and Dusolina Della Bartolomea.

Lilia was educated in Italy, Switzerland and the United States. She was born and raised in Italy, where she grew up on a farm before meeting Sabino Zani. They left their home and traveled to the United States, married on February 24, 1957, and raised seven children until his passing on March 24, 2020.

Lilia hired a tutor to help her improve her English writing and speaking skills, and she excelled. She was a busy homemaker and entrepreneur, working as a floral designer for Rosemary Flower Shop while also starting her own business, Flowers by Lilia. She enjoyed cooking and baking and was known for her homemade bread, ravioli, and special foods unique to her home in Italy as she treasured the moments spent teaching her grandchildren the joy of food.

Lilia, an outstanding gardener with a passion for vibrant flowers and thriving vegetable gardens, also mastered the art of mushroom foraging from her childhood in the hills of Tuscany. In her later years, she embraced a more relaxed lifestyle, spending time watching her favorite shows like Days of Our Lives, Mike and Molly, Last Man Standing, Lifetime, and Little House on the Prairie.

Lilia was a devoted wife and mother to her children: Mauro Zani (Sandra) from Raleigh, NC; Franco Zani (Elaine Rivera) from Highland, NY; John Carlo Zani (Diane) from Poughkeepsie, NY; Gina Zani-Palome (Michael) from Wappingers Falls, NY; Nancy Rini (John) from Beacon, NY; Angelo Zani from Saugerties, NY; and Sabino Zani (Magan) from Raleigh, NC. Lilia cherished her grandchildren including: Andrea, Kristina, Alexander, Arianna, Franco Jr., John Anthony, Francesca, JohnCarlo, Parker, and Jane Frances. She leaves behind her sister, Adele (Perini) Tavaroni of Italy, her brother Pietro Perini, and countless nieces and nephews also in Italy.

A memorial service is scheduled for Saturday, March 29, 2025, at 10:00 A.M. at St. Mary's Church, 11 Clinton Street, Wappingers Falls, NY. The mass of remembrance is devoted to Lilia's late husband, Sabino Zani, and her deceased parents, Sovvenire Perini and Dusolina Della Bartolomea.

Diane D'Albro

Diane died peacefully on February 24, 2025, at home, surrounded by her family. She had just been enrolled in Hospice after several years battling two rare and aggressive cancers. Although she lost that battle, she has won the "imperishable crown" of Eternal Life in the arms of our loving Savior. Diane was born in Manhattan, NY, on May 8, 1949, and grew up in Brooklyn, NY. She attended her parish's (St. Edmund's) elementary and high school. After graduation she earned certification as a dietary and nutrition manager from New York University and used her training and skills to care for the nutritional needs of hospital and nursing home patients in Connecticut. Her care, concern, and creativity brought comfort and joy to patients and staff alike.

In recent years, Diane spent many hours at The Lunch Box of Dutchess Outreach, Poughkeepsie, providing lunch and dinner to the poor and homeless of Poughkeepsie, and also offering best practices to the staff. Second only to her family was her love and devotion to her spiritual family at Mt. Alvernia Retreat Center, Wappingers Falls. She attended daily Mass there and donated many hours replacing candles in the chapel, helping with bingo and tag sales, and baking her scrumptious chocolate pumpkin bread and other goodies for many occasions. But the highlight of her association with Mt. Alvernia came with her decision to apply for admission as a Secular Franciscan. After a couple of years of study, she was formally enrolled in January 2024, as a member of the Stigmata Fraternity of the Franciscan Order. For her, this moment was a genuine peak experience in her spiritual life. Surrounded by her natural family and her new spiritual family, Diane experienced a peace and trust that helped her immeasurably to deal with the uncertainty and suffering that two rare cancers would inflict on her.

Diane is survived by her two sons, Brian Macfarlane of Providence, RI, and Thomas (Stacy) Macfarlane of South Windsor, CT, on whom she has showered unconditional love, as well as encouragement, advice (and occasional admonishment) throughout their lives. She is also survived by her brothers: James (D'Anne) of Los Osos, CA; and Thomas of Wappingers Falls. There are numerous cousins scattered throughout the country. She was predeceased by her parents, Vincent James and Rose Riccobono.

The Wake service was on Monday, March 3, 2025, at Delehanty Funeral Home, Wappingers Falls. The Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated on Tuesday, March 4, at St. Martin de Porres Church, Poughkeepsie. Burial followed at the Wappingers Rural Cemetery, followed by a reception for family and friends at Mt. Alvernia Retreat Center. Memorial donations may be made to Mt. Alvernia Retreat Center, Habitat for Humanity (Poughkeepsie), or Dutchess Outreach, Poughkeepsie.

- The heavy lines indicate areas, called cages, from one to five squares in size. Fill each cage with unique digits, counting up from 1. So for example a 2-square cage contains the numbers 1 and 2; and a 5-square cage contains the numbers from 1 to 5. Adjacent (touching) squares, even ones that touch diagonally, may never contain the same number.

Spring & Science: Two that are better together

Just like cocoa needs marshmallows and Kermit's wit is ever enhanced by his longtime love, Miss Piggy, spring and science make a super pairing. Is the coupling of an academic subject and a season comparable to the 1940s romance of Bogie and Bacall? Is the bond closer to the flavorful marriage of peas and carrots? The unwavering acceptance of Forrest Gump and Jenny? Read on to see why spring and science go hand-in-glove.

Late March through May are months when themes such as biological cycles, pollinators, diversity, and many others are particularly relevant due to weather patterns. Those topics all relate to ecology and Earth Day (April 22) as the academic year draws to a close. Classroom teachers and homeschoilers can try these science activities which are easily done in the spring. Try them out and you will agree that spring and science is better than peanut butter and jelly or a pen and paper.

Extract chlorophyll from plant leaves

Springtime leaves are bright green. Grind them up and soak them in alcohol to extract the green pigment. The process is a way to learn about plant molecules involved in photosynthesis. Chlorophyll can be used for a chromatography investigation, or teaching younger children about the seasons.

Examine stomata

Stomata are pores which allow the passage of CO₂, O₂, and H₂O. Most stomata are on the bottom of plants' leaves. The number of stomata on the epidermal surface can tell you a lot about a plant. Plants that grow in different climates have stomata adapted to their location.

Observe lichens

Lichens are typically seen growing on rocks. They are considered pioneers because they have few ecological requirements for life. Over time, they prepare conditions for other organisms through the biodeterioration of rocks and the accumulation of nutrients. Colonization of an area by lichens is an important first step in the succession of barren locations and areas devastated by disasters. Meet the Lichens is a FREE sample "Do Now" activity which teaches about the symbiotic nature of lichens. "Do Nows" can be used at the beginning of classes or as a "fill-in" to help with the comprehension of science concepts. The activity is available at: <https://www.teacherspayteachers.com/Product/SAMPLE-DO-NOW-MEET-THE-LICHENS-ECOLOGY-6679549>.

Dissect a flower

Flower dissection is a hands-on way to teach flower structures, or as a part of a unit on reproduction. The best flower types to dissect include lilies, tulips, daffodils, asteroemeras and gladiolus. Avoid daisies, asters, calla lilies, roses, and iris since their floral structures are not as easy to view.

Read 'A Thief in Pollinator Paradise' or 'A Thief in the Meadow'

Both tales deal with the coevolution of flowers and their pollinators. The characters discuss symbiosis, photosynthesis and respiration. The mystery at the heart of both stories encourages the meadow-dwelling characters to make observations and collect evidence so they can identify the thief!

Spring blooms allow easy access to foliage for obtaining chlorophyll and examining stomata. Greater sunlight and warmer temperatures permit pleasant outings for observing lichens and gathering blossoms for dissection. And, for those of us familiar with Poets' Walk in Red Hook, you will notice that views of that location are part of the meadow setting in the two "Thief" books mentioned above. The meadow is in Dutchess County, overlooking the Hudson River.

Those are just some of the reasons why I think Spring and Science is a pairing that rivals that of Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall!

Francine Wizner is a native of the Hudson Valley. She grew up in the Catskills of Greene County and spent over 3 decades teaching in Ulster County. She creates science-themed instructional materials and books, as well as being a Citizen Scientist in the management of her current home in an enchanted woodland of Dutchess County. Find her at <https://medium.com/@wiznerf>, <https://substack.com/@gkatzchronicle>, and <https://www.pleasantvalleymaplelodging.com/>.
