Acute Inpatient Unit at Castle Point temporarily closed

Earlier this month, the Castle Point VA Medical Center temporarily closed a portion of the facility.

"Beginning February 1, Castle Point VA Medical Center in Wappingers Falls closed a section of its facility – the acute inpatient unit – for 120 days as part of an effort to re-evaluate staffing needs. Patients with acute medical conditions will continue to be treated in urgent care, and those requiring hospitalization will be sent to the nearest community or VA medical facility," stated David Marshall, LCSW, Executive Assistant to the Director at VA Hudson Valley Health Care System, via email to Southern Dutchess News on Feb. 4.

"This is outrageous, and a fundamental breach of the sacred duty we have to care for our veterans who've put their lives on the line for our country," said Congressman Pat Ryan in a press release on Feb. 4, which included local, state and federal leaders' statements. "Our community has always taken up the call to have our veterans' backs, including just a few years ago when Castle Point was under threat of complete closure. Now is the time for all of us to stand up and FIGHT alongside our veterans with urgency again. We need to be loud, we need to be strong, and we need to be direct: this unit must be reopened immediately."

Congressman Mike Lawler also commented in a statement. His partial statement reads: "Our veterans didn't make the incredible sacrifices they did to be short-changed in services here at home." Lawler added, "I'm proud to join a bipartisan group of elected officials demanding that this facility stay open - anything less is unacceptable."

Dutchess County Executive Sue Serino said in the release that she was "deeply disturbed" by the temporary closure.

Farming couple Marjorie & Hal Fountain: It's all about love & patience - for 65 years

Editor's note: Each year we at the Northern Dutchess News honor Valentine's Day by interviewing a couple who have been married for more than 50 years.

By Curtis Schmidt

The farming life has always held a special attraction for Marjorie and Hal Fountain of Clinton Corners. They both grew up on farms and discovered they loved the lifestyle - so much so that they started their own Hibernia Hill Farm and raised a family with five children - and lots of horses.

As Valentine's Day approaches, Marjorie and Hal are celebrating 65 years together and taking a look back at how it all started.

Highlights? How about a National Cherry Pie Baking Championship for Marjorie? And Hal? He remembers getting fired for dating Marjorie and later being chased by angry swans. And they both remember that special Christmas gift of an engagement ring in 1958.

Hal's father raised draft horses on a farm near Gloversville. He rented them out for logging, plowing and the like and even shipped them by train to nearby states. That lasted until about 1946 when tractors forced him out of business and he went to work at a tannery.

But Hal's roots were in farming, so he attended college at Cornell and graduated in 1955 with the goal of working with farmers as a county extension agent.

Marjorie's family had one of the largest pheasant farms in the country and it was located in the Town of Milan. Many were sold to area gun clubs and many more just as meat birds (like chickens). They also had a great business with pheasant eggs.

How Marjorie and Hal actually met can be traced back to Marjorie winning the National Cherry Pie Baking Championship in 1955. As a 4-H club member and senior at Red Hook High School, she won the Dutchess County 4-H title and then the New York State crown before winning the U.S. event in Chicago.

"My family ended up eating a lot of cherry pies as I was practicing," said Marjorie. She also gave credit to her mother and Swedish grandmother "who were great bakers and great teachers."

And her winning secret? "The pastry crust was very important and I used lard, while most of the other contestants used

Black History Month program to explore 'Economic Diversity of Dutchess County's Black Community in the 19th Century'

In honor of Black History Month, Dutchess County joins the nationwide celebration of Black Americans' contributions. County Executive Sue Serino announced today the County's Division of History is sponsoring a free virtual event, hosted by the Dutchess County Historical Society (DCHS), on Thursday, Feb. 20 at 7 p.m. This presentation will discuss major new findings that reveal the economic diversity of the local Black community in the 19th Century.

Dutchess County Executive Sue Serino said, "The Black community has played an important part of Dutchess County's history, and we are proud to honor the community's ongoing achievements. This virtual educational event will talk about the economic differences in the local Black community during the 1800s – from the success of capitalist barons to the struggles of free Blacks in the Civil War era. I encourage all residents to sign up for this insightful online presentation and explore how the local Black community helped shape Dutchess County."

Led by DCHS Executive Director Bill Jeffway, the virtual event, entitled "Navigating Wealth & Poverty: The Economic Diversity of Dutchess County's 19th Century Black Community," will explain how global trade and a Wall Street aristocrat intersected with local merchants and the working class through the tumultuous period of the 19th Century and U.S. Civil War. Through never-before-published diaries, virtual attendees will hear firsthand observations of the post-Civil War Black communities in Dover and eastern Dutchess County, in particular, where resourcefulness and adaptability played a crucial role in managing everyday challenges.

Registration for this free event is available at dchsn.org/feb20, and registrants will receive a Zoom link to join the event.

Valentine's Day Love Story: Marjorie & Hal Fountain

shortening," said Marjorie. She also used local cherries, a special flour and almond extract.

During the competition, she connected with judges from Iowa State College who were obviously impressed with her talents. "I was also very impressed with the home economics program at Iowa State and decided to attend college out there," she said.

Her goal was to work as a 4-H agent and just prior to her senior year, she obtained an internship in Cortland, NY (near Ithaca) – and guess who was working in the same Courthouse Building as the Assistant County Extension Agent.

It was Hal. "She was very good-looking and I was immediately attracted to her," he said. The two started dating and Hal noted the adage of "courting her in the courthouse in Cortland."

Their first date was a trip to an outdoor drive-in movie theatre in Cortland. "We did a lot of talking and got to know each other very well on those first dates," said Marjorie.

But there was just one problem: Dating among employees, particularly in regard to 4-H interns, was against the rules in that courthouse. And Hal was fired. "We knew the rules and we knew we were taking a chance. We were both outlaws," Marjorie said with a laugh.

So Hal went back to Gloversville and she was taking the train back to Ames, Iowa. But it time for a decision. They made a commitment to each other – and he caught the train in nearby Fonda and they traveled to Iowa together with the plan of Hal taking courses to complete his master's degree.

All went well and the only issue that came up was Marjorie's parents being worried that she would not finish college. But she did graduate and they immediately liked Hal when he came to visit in Milan. But the swans on the farm? Not so much.

Marjorie and Hal Fountain are pictured with their five children: Julia, Suzanne, Phillip and David. Left: Hal and son David Fountain are pictured "Four in Hand" with four of the family's Percheron draft horses at the Dutchess County Fair in 1988. "Four in Hand" means you are holding the reins of all four horses in your hands as you drive them. These four horses were all born on the family farm in Clinton Corners. Hal's father raised and sold draft horses until tractors forced him out of business. "They chased him right away when he got out of the car, especially the male swan," said Marjorie. "It was pretty bad, but it was simply someone they didn't know." Hal said he "just did a lot of kicking" to fight them off.

They dated for about a year and Hal presented Marjorie with the engagement ring at Christmas in 1958. They were married on Sept 12, 1959 at St Anthony's Catholic Church in Pine Plains.

The honeymoon was a short trip to Vermont and around New England. "We didn't have much time or money," said Hal.

After a couple of years in New Jersey, they purchased the home and farm where they still live in Clinton Corners. Hal began a career in real estate appraisal, while Marjorie was at home with three young children.

Marjorie and Hal have five children, nine grandchildren and one great grandson.

After buying the farm in 1963 and they added the first of many Morgan horses the next year.

"We always wanted horses," said Marjorie. "We both enjoyed riding horses and teaching our children to ride. And we did get to see the birth of lots of foals." They raised Morgan horses until 1988, and then changed to Percheron draft horses pulling carriages, wagons and showing at the Dutchess County Fair.

They also believe in giving back to the community. Hal served on the Clinton Town Board for several years in addition to the Board at the Rhinebeck Bank. Marjorie was a 4-H club leader for many years, teaching sewing, baking and home economics to many children.

On the secrets to a happy 65 years together, Marjorie and Hal have three keys – love and respect, plus a lot of patience.

"You have to have patience and understanding," said Marjorie. "Raising kids and working day-by-day – that takes a lot of patience."

A LOOK BACK AT 2015

Historic Red Hook diner celebrates 32 years

By Curtis Schmidt

Editor's note: This is a reprint of an article from 2015.

The staff of the Historic Village Diner, at 7550 North Broadway in Red Hook, celebrated 32 years in business on Valentine's Day. County Executive Marc Molinaro was on hand with a proclamation proclaiming Feb. 14, 2015 as "Historic Village Diner Day" throughout Dutchess County.

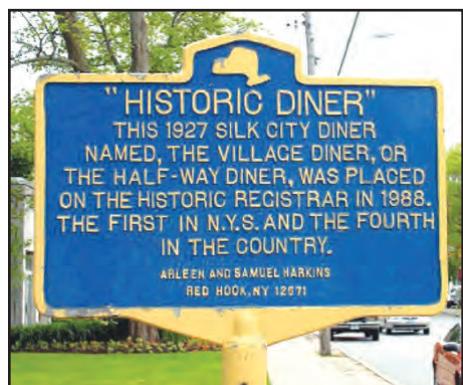

Ten years later, the Historic Diner is still going strong.

In celebration of their anniversary and St. Valentine's Day, the diner owners and staff offered sweetheart chocolate candies, strawberry mimosas and a special complete Prime Rib dinner. Historic Village Diner owners include Arleen and Sam Harkins and Melissa Wambach. The Historic Village Diner is significant as a distinctive example of early-20th century American roadside architecture surviving exceptionally intact from its date of manufacture in the 1920s. It embodies distinguishing characteristics of the type and period in its streamlined metal railroad dining car inspired design, which was intended to evoke, at once, the ideas of travel, food cleanliness and modern efficiency. The diner is additionally significant as a representative example of a Silk City Diner, a highly popular prefabricated dining car line manufactured by the Paterson Vehicle Company of Paterson, N. J., from the 1920s to the 1950s.

Moved several times to adapt to changing travel patterns, the history of the diner also recalls the growth and development of the regional transportation system during the early automobile age. After years of catering to travelers on Dutchess County's major highways, the Historic Village Diner now enjoys continued popularity as a community-oriented restaurant and the focal point of much local nostalgia.

By Kristine Coulter

The annual 27th "Freezin' for a Reason" Polar Plunge at Sharpe Reservation in Fishkill will take place on Saturday, Feb. 15. The "Cool School Challenge" Polar Plunge will be on Friday, Feb. 14.

"Taking the Special Olympics New York Polar Plunge means jumping into cold waters to raise money for our Special Olympics NY athletes. The Polar Plunge is a fundraiser that supports year-round sports training, competition, and other programs for people with intellectual disabilities. Truly a great time to be had by all," said Teresa Gilli, Special Olympics New York Hudson Valley Region Director of Development. So, what about getting there? Do participants and attendees have to take buses this year?

"Yes! Only buses are allowed up to Sharpe Reservation (those needing special access due to a handicap must reach out to Gilli personally at tgilli@nysyo.org or 845-262-6011)," said Gilli. Attendees and participants should park in the Dutchess Community College parking lot Fishkill, 461 Rt. 9, in Fishkill. There, one can ride on one of the buses that will drive everyone up to Sharpe Reservation.

"We will have a food truck at the parking area called Hooked Seafood to serve food and hot beverages for everyone. They will donate a portion of the proceeds to us," remarked Gilli.

Participants should remember to schedule a time for Saturday.

'plunge' being two days is fine because "we enjoy having Special Olympics." He noted it will be interesting to see how thick the ice is on the lake.

Gilli said she is hoping to reach 500 participants this year.

"We are always looking for people to register (and can register day of). The more the merrier," she added.

The goal is to raise $250,000 this year for the Special Olympics. "But I personally would love to reach $300,000 supporting 500 athletes for the entire year. Always hoping for the best and this community has always come through for us for so many years. We are blessed and I am happy with any donations that support our wonderful athletes! They are why we are 'Freezin' for a Reason!" said Gilli.

Think about it – Is this really what we voted for?

To the editor:

Is this really what we voted for?

Trade wars with our largest trading partners that will spike the costs of building materials, food, cars, oil, and most everything else we use in our daily lives? Territorial threats to our friends and allies who shed the blood of their soldiers in support of us in Iraq and Afghanistan? Abandoning Ukraine to Russia by withholding aid and trying to impose a cease-fire deal which will only allow Russia and its medieval barbarisms to come back stronger and try again? An unelected billionaire oligarch running amok causing chaos and destruction?

Deportation of both legal and illegal immigrants leaving food to rot in fields, spiking prices? Muzzling of the CDC and NIH with bird flu a mutation or two away from infecting and being transmitted by humans? The downloading of sensitive personal data of anyone on Social Security, Medicaid, or anyone who has filed income taxes? The list goes on and on.

I have always appreciated the good common sense of our Dutchess County friends and neighbors, and while I recognize that it is still early in 2025 and that this is a smallish corner of America, looking at the first three weeks of the new administration, I find myself asking, is this really for what we voted?

In the last decade, we have largely bade farewell to the WWII generation whose banners hang from every utility pole in our communities. They knew that 'Never Again' should have meant 'Never Again.' They simply did that which had to be done, and I can imagine that they would have viewed this world as too ominously resembling the one which they fought against. They have moved on, taking their wisdom with them, leaving us to decide in what type of world we want to live.

It is early, but it is not too early to ask ourselves what makes America truly great, and what does our great storehouse of common sense dictate?

Says 'benefit of the doubt' can't apply to Gaza

To the editor:

As a U.S. veteran, I have always given the benefit of the doubt to my country. The millions killed in Korea and Vietnam in the 1950s and 1960s just could have been the fault of U.S. weapons makers, eager to trade body counts for corporate profits.

And then there were the millions slaughtered in the misguided U.S. invasions of Iraq and Afghanistan. Like the previous conflicts, the invasions were all based on dirty little lies about defending our country or spreading freedom to the Third World.

But America's unrelenting butchery in Gaza has nothing left to cover its war crimes. The Palestinian children are dying with no food, no water and no shelter from the storm. The empire has decided it needs these human sacrifices for some arcane geopolitical advantage. And the savagery is now going into its second year.

We are finally coming to realize that the empire and its grubby, bloodstained ally, Israel, are the true impediments to world peace. Most countries already know this, judging by the huge numbers of UN member states that castigate the U.S. and Israel for their ongoing war crimes and crimes against humanity.

Only the American people stand in the way of the worst genocide since the Third Reich. It is a simple choice: demand an end to our country's mass murdering of children or become part of it. Insist that our venal Congress stop accepting millions in Israeli bribes, blood money that supports this most grotesque of all apartheid colonies.

County hosts 2nd annual Human Trafficking Awareness Forum

Law enforcement, local stakeholders learn how to identify and prevent abuse

The Dutchess County Department of Community and Family Services (DCFS) recently hosted its second annual Human Trafficking Awareness Forum at Dutchess Community College's (DCC) James and Betty Hall Theatre in Poughkeepsie. More than 100 attendees, representing law enforcement, medical professionals, social service providers and community groups, attended this highly impactful event, which raised awareness of this national epidemic, discussed strategies to identify trafficking in all forms and connected attendees with resources.

Dutchess County Executive Sue Serino said, "Many people think trafficking only happens in big cities, but sadly, it can happen anywhere, even in our own community. Dutchess County remains vigilant and continues to raise awareness and protect victims of all ages, especially children. Today's forum, and efforts like it, help spread awareness and can save lives. I appreciate everyone who joined us today, and Dutchess County looks forward to continuing our work with these dedicated partners."

The Dutchess County Task Force Against Human Trafficking is a diverse team of professionals dedicated to combating human trafficking by collaborating to increase awareness, identify potential victims and deliver comprehensive, trauma-informed support. The task force's initiatives include educational programs on trafficking prevention for youth and a variety of resources for the community, such as resource guides, hotline numbers, service directories and fact sheets debunking common trafficking myths.

Human trafficking, defined as the unlawful trade of individuals through force, fraud, or coercion for exploitative purposes, includes crimes such as forced labor, sexual exploitation and involuntary servitude. The International Labour Organization estimates more than 40 million people worldwide are victims of human trafficking. In 2024, the Dutchess County Task Force Against Human Trafficking received 31 local referrals of suspected trafficking cases – including referrals received from probation officers, youth service providers and staff at shelters for runaway and homeless youth.

This year's forum presented attendees with a variety of offerings regarding human trafficking in all its forms, how to identify it and how to prevent it, including:

- a discussion with two adult female trafficking survivors, who shared their personal stories;
- a presentation by Homeland Security Investigations, which plays an integral role in combating human trafficking by working with its law enforcement partners to deter, disrupt and dismantle the criminal networks that engage in it;
- a presentation from Special Agent Pao Mei Fisher with the FBI's Hudson Valley Safe Streets Task Force; and
- a case study presentation from DCC Professor Matthew Greenstein, a retired Connecticut detective and member of Dutchess County's Human Trafficking Task Force.

Dutchess County is part of New York State's Safe Harbour Program, which supports counties in developing their capacity to identify youth who have been trafficked, sexually exploited or are at risk of victimization, and to meet identified service needs of these youth. Attendees will also receive an overview of Dutchess County's Safe Harbour Program and Center for Victim Safety and Support.

Residents can report suspected cases of trafficking 24/7 to the County's Human Trafficking Hotline at 845-452-7272. Additional information is available on DCFS' Human Trafficking Task Force webpage, which can be accessed via www.dutchessny.gov.

Black History Month program...

Among the local Blacks who will be discussed in the virtual presentation:

• Jeremiah Hamilton, known as the "Black Baron of Wall Street" and the nation's wealthiest Black, made significant investments in Poughkeepsie, including Mansion Square and Union Landing, through his relationship with the Improvement Party.

• Paul Cuffee was a celebrated and successful whaling captain with an all-Black crew. Recently discovered records detail his trading in a rare Brazilian wood for use at Poughkeepsie's dye factories.

• Uriah Boston, who emerged as a member of the very successful and high profile Black middle class. A popular and successful barber, Boston invested in his own local property, acquiring political gains as a result.

The Dutchess County Department of History works to preserve, study and promote the stories from Dutchess County's past; coordinate the Dutchess County Historical Community; and support other government offices and partner organizations in the continuing development of our county.

County Historian William P. Tatum III said, "The indelible mark that Blacks have made on Dutchess County and our history is both astounding and ever-evolving, and we are proud to recognize these contributions."

The department continually expands access to digitized historical resources, including the Ancient Documents Collection. More information is available on the Department of History webpage, dutchessny.gov/history.

Serino noted, "It isn't just a facility; it's a lifeline for our veterans between Albany and the Bronx, especially for those here in Dutchess County. I know firsthand that this unit saves lives, providing critical inpatient care and preparing veterans for rehabilitation. With so many already facing barriers to mental health support, this decision puts our heroes at even greater risk."

Adam Roche, Director of Dutchess County Office of Veteran Affairs commented in the release. A portion of his statement stated, "This is absolutely unacceptable."

"As a Veteran who utilizes Castle Point services, and an advocate for Veterans in Dutchess County who are receiving services, I wholeheartedly disagree with this decision and the secretive nature around it," said Alyssa Carrion, Veterans Program Director, Veterans Services, MHA Ulster County, Pleasant Valley.

"This would be a disastrous decision for the thousands of veterans in the Hudson Valley who depend on the VA for healthcare. Our veterans desperately need more healthcare options, not less. They earned it. We can all agree our veterans have made incredible sacrifices for our nation, yet they are being given cutbacks and empty promises in return," said

Tommy Zurhellen, Former Commander, VFW Post 170 and Founder of VetZero, a veteran service program in Poughkeepsie, in the release.

"I'm very concerned about the recent decision to temporarily close the Acute Inpatient Unit at Castle Point VA Medical Center. This unit provides critical, life-saving care to our veterans that is vital in preparing them for the next phase of treatment and rehabilitation," said Peter Maraday, Hudson Valley Regional Manager, Clear Path for Veterans, said the release.

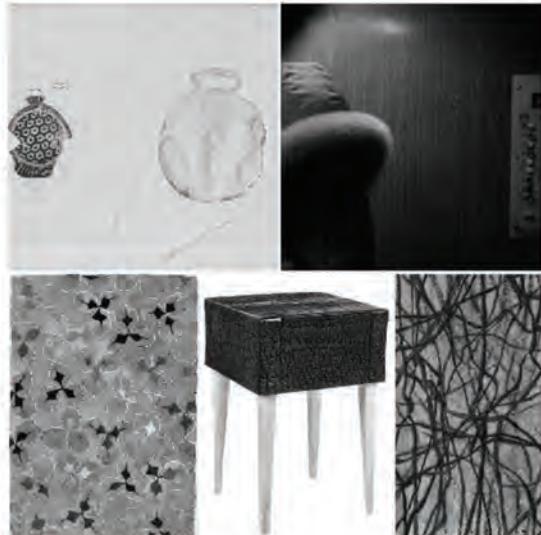

"Once again, we see Veterans living in rural communities subjected to potential cuts and closures at Castle Point. Directly affecting their healthcare and quality of life by reducing access to critical services. These cuts not only impact the Veteran, they impact the Hudson Valley," said Kevin Keaveny, President of the Hudson Valley Center for Veteran Reintegration.

Marshall stated, "This will not affect any of the other services provided to our Veterans, who will still be able to receive primary care, specialty care, outpatient mental health services, and other services elsewhere in the facility. In addition, Castle Point's Community Living Center will remain open and operational."

Astor Services expands home-based crisis intervention program

Astor Services, a leading provider of quality mental and behavioral health and education services for children, young adults and their families, has announced that its Home-Based Crisis Intervention Program (HBCI) is now available in New York's Westchester, Rockland, Putnam, Columbia and Greene counties.

HBCI is a unique clinical service funded by the New York Office of Mental Health (OMH), focused on preventing unnecessary psychiatric hospitalizations for youth ages 5 to 20. Astor Services has been providing HBCI services for more than 30 years, initially in Dutchess County and then in Ulster County and, with the addition of these five counties served, has become the largest provider of HBCI services in New York State.

"HBCI services are an intensive form of treatment that allows children who are at risk of psychiatric hospitalization to receive high-quality mental health care at home instead," said Astor Services CEO Yvette Bairan. "Through the services of HBCI, Astor aims to reduce the trauma of a child being separated from their family and provide the structure and resources for treatment to be successful where they live. Plus, these services are completely free thanks to funding from the New York Office of Mental Health (NY OMH) and local county partners. Families do not even have to have insurance to be able to enroll in HBCI, which aligns with Astor's mission of expanding access to care."

HBCI services are primarily provided in-person in the client's home, school and community to address challenges where they are occurring. During four to six weeks of treatment, services provided include intensive individual counseling, family therapy, parental coaching and care coordination. Additionally, 24/7 crisis support is offered to address safety concerns, including suicidal and self-harming behaviors, as well as impulse control and physical aggression challenges.

Astor's HBCI teams have a track record of delivering excellent results, typically preventing hospitalization for at least 90% of youth served with client satisfaction rates that exceed 90%.

Recognizing this success, in mid-2024 NY OMH selected Astor Services through a competitive proposal process to expand HBCI from Dutchess and Ulster counties, to Westchester, Putnam, Columbia and Greene Counties. By September 2024, Astor onboarded HBCI staff for these counties and started accepting new client referrals. In October 2024, Rockland County also selected Astor Services as an HBCI provider through a competitive proposal process. Astor's expanded HBCI team is now the largest in New York, providing essential crisis mental health services for children and families for more than 2 million residents across seven counties.

Dutchess County 4-H members travel to Atlanta

This winter, a group of four Dutchess County 4-H members made their way to Atlanta, GA to represent New York at the National 4-H Congress. The group included Mackenzie Phillips, Clara Sundlof, Julia Raskopf and Lyris Pennock.

Since 1922, delegates from across the U.S. have gathered at a designated conference space to network, share ideas and learn and grow together. This year's theme, "Courage to Grow, Heart to Serve" embodied the characteristics that the 4-H program strives to instill into its members.

The National 4-H Congress prioritizes personal growth by providing multiple motivational speakers, featuring names such as Dan Clark, Dr. Laymon Hicks and John Beede, Everest mountaineer. An International Dinner & Dance featured dances from the Hawaiian and Puerto Rican delegations.

According to a study conducted by Tufts University, 4-Hers are four times more likely to give back to their communities. Mackenzie Phillips, a Goats & Glory and Stony Ground 4-H Club member, helped the Parkland Elementary School prepare for their Christmas pageant by making decorations. Reflecting on her experience, Mackenzie said, "I enjoyed getting to know the students and sharing my 4-H experience with them. I had fun making paper snowflakes alongside them while learning about their home of Atlanta."

Delegates immersed themselves in an "Evening of Culture" at the Atlanta History Center, learning about a myriad of time periods and cultures. Flock of Feathers 4-H Club member Clara Sundlof said, "The History Center was probably my favorite event. We got to learn different dances from two completely different cultures, Victorian and West African. We even sang with a Bluegrass band!"

Ag Literacy Week is set in March

From March 17 - 21, Dutchess County 4-H works in classrooms, libraries and community groups across the county to bring a taste of agriculture to over 2,800 elementary children.

This year's book is "The Pie that Molly Grew" by Sue Heavenrich, illustrated by Chamisa Kellogg.

Staff, 4-H volunteers and youth, and community members read the book and work with 1st – 3rd grade children, using a fun, hands-on activity to engage them in learning. Each group receives a book along with a toolkit to continue the lessons. Want to be a reader? Contact Emma elj57@cornell.edu

Valentine Crazy

There are many ways to show your love that don't necessarily come in a package.

On a recent stroll down the grocery aisles, I felt an unmistakably familiar sensation. It crept up my spine, heightening my senses, and it was as if an alarm went off in my brain. As my eyes darted about to find the source of this distress, I understood what I was feeling. There were hearts and pink and red everywhere. It seems the marketing world has turned its pumpkin-spice crazed minds to yet another holiday and is now saturating us with Valentine treats. Here we go again.

I get it. I worked in marketing and I know the drill. You want to entice people to buy, and that takes strategy. Trends are a huge part of life now more than ever; so if you can't start one, you want to be in on it. But I also get that doing so to the extreme creates a band wagon some of us just don't want to jump on.

For some of us, saturation has the opposite effect. I'm one of those, if you couldn't guess. Case in point, my aversion to all things pumpkin spice (but that was another article).

I remember in years past suddenly seeing red heart-shaped boxes of chocolates popping up in stores. You'd see them near registers and in a special display near the entrance – a pretty pop of red in a sea of otherwise drabness, strategically placed to entice you to buy for someone you love. It was flirtatious and fun in a way. You know, like love is supposed to be.

When I was a little girl, it was exciting to see them, and even as a bigger girl, it made me smile. I'm a hopeless romantic. In spite of what you might think based on what I'm saying, receiving a beautiful, old-fashioned heart-shaped box of chocolate still makes my heart flutter, but that's a nod to many fond memories of getting them in the past.

Now, though, subtlety is right out the window, so it's less like flirtation and more like getting tackled by a bear. You can walk down just about any aisle and see hearts everywhere, and all the red and pink packaging is enough to make your head spin.

Don't get me wrong, it's great to have options, and we're lucky we do. Besides, not everyone likes chocolate. And if I'm honest, it's amusing to see how companies have shoehorned their products to fit the Valentine mold. I never thought I'd see heart-shaped boxes of Skittles, jelly beans, Oreos, Goldfish crackers (strawberry shortcake graham flavored, no less), Sour Patch Kids, Lunchables or Life Savers Gummies. And who knew M&Ms would show up to the party with

The Franklin D. Roosevelt Presidential Library and Museum presents a Presidents Day Weekend conversation and book signing with Megan Gorman author of "All The Presidents' Money: How The Men Who Governed America Governed Their Money," at 1 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 15. The event will be held in the Henry A. Wallace Center at the FDR Presidential Library and Home in Hyde Park, and streamed live to the official FDR Library YouTube and Facebook accounts. This is a free public event, but registration is required to attend in-person. Visit fdrlibrary.org to register.

Was Harry Truman really our poorest president or simply a man up at 2 a.m. struggling with financial anxiety? Did Calvin Coolidge get bad advice from his stockbroker to buy stocks in 1930 as the market continued to crash? Is it true George Washington enhanced his net worth by marrying up?

We often think of the US presidents as being above the fray. But the truth is, the presidents are just like us: worried about money, trying to keep a budget, and chasing the American financial dream. While some presidents like Herbert Hoover and Gerald Ford became wildly successful with money, others like Thomas Jefferson and Joe Biden struggled to sustain their lifestyle. The ability to win the presidency is no guarantee of financial security, although today it's a much easier path to monetize.

In "All The Presidents' Money," tax attorney and wealth manager Megan Gorman takes us on a journey to understand the different personal money stories of the presidents. Grit, education, and risk are just some of the different ways that the presidents over the last 250 years have made (or lost) money.

Gorman is the founder and managing partner of Chequers Financial Management, a female-owned high-net-worth tax and financial planning firm in San Francisco, California. Her clientele ranges from entrepreneurs to corporate executives to inheritors of family wealth. She spent the first twelve years of her career as a Vice President at Ayco, A Goldman Sachs Company, and was also a Vice President at BNY Mellon Wealth Management. A senior contributor at Forbes, writing on personal finance and income tax, she is frequently quoted across prominent financial media outlets, including the Wall Street Journal, the Washington Post, CNBC, and US News. Megan is currently serving on the Board of Trustees for the National Endowment for Financial Education (NEFE) and chairs the Investment Committee. She has a BA in History from Bryn Mawr College and a JD from Rutgers School of Law.

names like Cupid's Mix and Strawberries & Crème. Classic Kisses now come in dark chocolate filled with strawberry goo (sorry, Chocolate Dipped Strawberry), Milk Chocolate Meltaway and milk-and-white chocolate striped Hugs (not new but adorably named).

You'll find heart-shaped snack cakes, pretzels, fruit snacks, cheeses, pasta, cookies, chicken nuggets, hash browns and cereal. Speaking of cereal, Cheerios offers a limited edition Chocolate Strawberry version for your sweetie. With so many options, you can bombard them with pre-packaged love all day.

True, Valentine's Day food trends are nowhere near the level of pumpkin spice, but give it time. I suspect companies will be ramping up their offerings in the future, as there seem to be more showing up every year.

Alright, so I'm being snarky, more than a bit cynical and too harsh in my criticism. After all, I should just be grateful that there even is a holiday dedicated to love. I guess what upsets me about the whole thing – and why I'm writing about it at all – is that romance shouldn't be about convenience. It should take thought and planning and really knowing what someone you love wants. Anyone can one-stop shop love now and at the last minute, and that makes me sad.

With our attention spans dwindling by the day, technology replacing genuine human contact and a seemingly endless supply of goods delivered to our doors within 24 hours, it seems more important than ever to make a little effort to do things the old-fashioned way: pay attention and show your love in ways that can't be bought on the fly just because you think you're supposed to.

If you really want to show how much you love someone, show them you know them. Maybe she's fine with prepackaged grocery store roses and a heart-shaped box of Skittles, but then again maybe what she'd really like is an hour to herself to knit or read or get a manicure. Or some quality alone time with you made more special with her favorite food or bottle of wine. Sure, you may think he's OK going to a crowded restaurant, but maybe he'd secretly love a classic cocktail and a home-cooked meal or favorite dessert.

Love isn't what others tell us it should be. Love is what it is, and that's a beautiful thing if you embrace it and give it the time it deserves. In other words, maybe start your own trend when it comes to Valentine's Day. Only you should know best how to say I Love You. Enjoy.

Local eggs

The bird flu epidemic has raised awareness of the ‘buy local’ egg movement.

Kinga and Kristian Terepka moved from Brooklyn to Lagrangeville right after the Covid pandemic, fixed up an abandoned house on 11 acres and started farming. They figured it would be a better environment for their two little daughters, Olivia and Emily. Now their 11 Kettle Farm is on the front line of the “buy local” egg movement.

In the midst of skyrocketing egg prices and the bird flu epidemic, people are wondering where their eggs come from and how they are produced. This is not a new phenomenon. Nobody wants egg-laying hens to be squashed into tiny cages where they can’t even turn around. In 2022, California outlawed the sale of eggs from hens held in individual cages. Nine other states have followed suit. Bills in the N.Y. Senate and Assembly would require, and define “free range” and “cage free” egg productions.

On its website, 11 Kettle Farm boasts that the chickens “roam freely on vibrant pastures, enjoying the simple pleasures of life.” During my recent visit, 50 hens were indeed roaming freely, but I didn’t observe any “vibrant pastures” in early February. Their shelter is a large coop on wheels, which Kristian assured me is hauled around the property to provide fresh pasture once the grass starts to grow. In the meantime they’re fed organic grain from Stone House Farm in Hudson. 11 Kettle Farm is “dedicated to organic agriculture,” but not certified organic. I’ve noted that many of the farms that sell locally don’t bother with the cost and hassle of a federal organic certification, because they know their customers trust them, with good reason. I can’t imagine Kinga and Kristian spraying chemicals. The eggs, by the way, are delicious, as advertised. Check the website for availability.

I asked about the blue eggs in my package. They’re from black hens which are included in the flock. It seems that hawks are scared of black hens because they look like crows. I don’t know – I always thought hawks had pretty good eyesight.

Here are some labels you might see on your egg cartons:

- Local – The USDA defines “local” as food produced within 400 miles of its final destination. I personally limit “local” to the Hudson Valley, or maybe also the Rondout Valley, or even the Wallkill Valley.

- Organic – The federal government certifies a product as organic if it meets strict standards, often disputed by traditional farmers who consider themselves organic. The “USDA Organic” label is important for organic farmers selling to distributors or big supermarkets.

- Cage free – The N.Y. senate bill under consideration defines “cage free” as an environment where a hen is “free to roam unrestricted except by exterior walls.”

- N.Y. Grown and Certified – Eggs produced in N.Y. state, from a farm meeting department of health regulations and participating in an Agricultural Environmental Management Program.

- Vegetarian Fed – The hens are fed a vegetarian diet. This is tough for pasture-raised hens, because chickens are naturally omnivorous, eating worms and bugs.

- Pasture raised – The crop and its outdoor enclosure are moved around the property to fresh pastures of grass.

- Free Range – The hens have access to the outdoors and natural daylight.

- Why did the chicken cross the road? Because it was a “free range” chicken!

The Dutchess Community College Foundation (DCCF) will host an illuminating lecture by renowned historian Dr. Wendy Lower, supported by the Greenspan Trust-Handel Foundation Endowed Chair in Holocaust and Genocide Studies. The event will take place on Thursday, Feb. 13, at 7 p.m. in the James & Betty Hall Theatre.

Dr. Lower, the John K. Roth professor at Claremont McKenna College and director of the Mgrublian Center for Human Rights, will share insights from her 10-year investigation into a rare photograph that captured a harrowing moment in history—a family's murder in Ukraine during the Holocaust. Her research revealed the identities of the individuals in the image and uncovered new details about the atrocities of the Nazi regime, open-air massacres and efforts toward postwar justice.

Her findings, chronicled in the award-winning book "The Ravine: A Family, a Photograph, a Holocaust Massacre Revealed," delve into the role of family and ideology in history. Dr. Lower is also the author of "Hitler's Furies: German Women in the Nazi Killing Fields," a finalist for the National Book Award.

This lecture is free and open to the public. It is facilitated by Dr. Werner Steger, DCC professor of history and recipient of the Greenspan Trust-Handel Foundation Endowed Chair in Holocaust and Genocide Studies.

Applications for Youth Opportunity Union Drop-In Center Grants due by Feb. 28

Dutchess County Executive Sue Serino announced last week that applications are now open for the County's newly established Youth Opportunity Union (YOU) Drop-In Center Grants. First introduced in her 2025 Executive Budget presentation, this $250,000 initiative will provide funding to create and enhance safe, welcoming spaces where young people can gather, access resources, and build supportive relationships.

"For so many young people, having a welcoming place to go outside of school — somewhere they can feel safe, build friendships, and access support — can make all the difference in their lives," said Dutchess County Executive Sue Serino. "These grants will help create and enhance spaces where kids can explore their interests, develop new skills, and form positive connections with mentors and peers. By investing in these opportunities, we're not just funding programs — we're fostering an environment where every child in Dutchess County can thrive."

The YOU Drop-In Center Grants are a one-time capital funding opportunity available to community-based organizations, local libraries, and other youth-serving nonprofits with a primary mission aligns with providing a service or administering a program consistent with one or more of the County's Path to Promise Domains. Eligible applicants can request between $10,000 and $75,000 for expenses that help establish or enhance drop-in centers where youth can engage in positive activities outside of school hours.

"We know that positive, enriching environments can have a profound impact on a young person's development," said Karmen Smallwood, Assistant Commissioner for Youth Services. "The YOU Drop-In Center Grants give local organizations the resources they need to create safe, engaging spaces where youth feel supported and encouraged to reach their full potential. By investing in these centers, we are strengthening our community's ability to provide meaningful resources and connections that help shape a brighter future for our young people."

Eligible expenses include:

- Furniture and equipment — Tables, chairs, couches, desks, bookshelves, and recreational equipment to make drop-in centers comfortable and functional.

- Technology and supplies — Computers, tablets, printers, internet equipment, art and music supplies, board games, and other interactive materials that support youth engagement.

- Sports and fitness equipment — Athletic uniforms, balls, weights, and other fitness-related gear to promote physical health.

- Transportation assistance — Funding to help youth access drop-in centers, ensuring they remain an accessible resources for all.

Organizations may not use grant funding for salaries, operational costs, fundraising efforts, or scholarships.

Applications are due by Feb. 28, at 4 p.m. and must be submitted through the Dutchess County Grant Portal. Awards will be announced in April, and grant funds must be expended by Dec. 31.

GOLDEN LIVING

Every year, in the Summer issue of our quarterly THRIVE60+ newsletter, we honor Dutchess County's centenarians and couples married 70 years or more. And it's getting crowded at the top. The number of centenarians and ultra-long-term married couples keeps growing. It's a trend we really like to see, and a testimony to all the things our older adults are doing to maximize their chances of long, happy, independent lives.

So what's their big secret?

We ask this question of as many of our oldest adults as we can find. They've given us some diverse and intriguing answers as to how they've been able to stick around for so long, and how we might follow if we did this same. They've sworn by good nutrition, strong faith, 9 golden raisins soaked in gin, regular exercise, a sense of purpose ... wait, can we go back to that third one, the one with the raisins?

It's a common European folk remedy, where the raisins are soaked, sometimes for weeks, in whatever the popular local spirit may be. There's no science that we're aware of to support the longevity claims, but we weren't about to get into an argument with a 107-year-old. As always, it's best to consult with a healthcare provider before attempting to treat yourself with any therapy that has not been prescribed for you.

We've been in touch with centenarians' families, some for several years. When their centenarian family member passes away, they've often said something we never expected: we were surprised. How can that be?

The answer lies in a phenomenon that may be even more impressive than their long lives: how so many of them remained physically and mentally active, in many cases until the day they died. They were not only extending their lifespan; they extended their "healthspan," the amount of time living in good health, free from chronic disease and disabilities associated with aging. And so, their next of kin tell us things like "He just mowed the lawn three days ago" and "She came in from the garden, sat down in her favorite chair, and passed away."

OFA is again looking for Dutchess County centenarians or 70+ year married couples. We honored 36 centenarians in 2024; and if current trends continue, we may honor 40 or more this year. If these unique examples of successful aging turn 100 or more, or celebrate their milestone anniversary at any point this year, we'd love to know about it and honor them in the Summer 2025 THRIVE60+ newsletter.

Tax season is open: Don't miss out on valuable credits

The New York State Department of Taxation and Finance urges New Yorkers to take advantage of valuable tax credits. This year marks the 50th anniversary of Earned Income Tax Credits providing a financial boost to working taxpayers.

"Earned Income Tax Credits put money in the pockets of working taxpayers," said NYS Department of Taxation and Finance Acting Commissioner Amanda Hiller. "Eligible New Yorkers can get money back when they file their tax returns – even if they don't owe tax."

The Earned Income Tax Credit is a refundable credit for eligible taxpayers who earn less than $66,819. Taxpayers can get a refund if the credit amount is more than what they owe in taxes.

Earned Income Tax Credit amounts depend on a taxpayer's income and number of children – and single New Yorkers can also qualify. Combined federal, New York State, and New York City Earned Income Tax Credits can be worth up to $12,528 for a family with three or more qualifying children.

Every year, many New Yorkers qualify for the Earned Income Tax Credit for the first time because of changes to their financial situation, filing status, or personal life. For New York State eligibility requirements, see the Tax Department's Earned Income Credit (New York State) webpage via www.tax.ny.gov. For federal qualifications, see the IRS Earned Income Tax Credit webpage via www.irs.gov.

Taxpayers must file tax returns to receive the credit. E-filing is the easiest and safest way to file tax returns, as well as the fastest way to receive tax refunds. Taxpayers who qualify for the Earned

Income Tax Credit are also likely to be eligible for free tax filing options available through the Tax Department:

Direct File

New York State Direct File (<https://www.tax.ny.gov/pit/efile/direct-file/>) is a free, easy-to-use e-file option for eligible taxpayers that can be accessed from a smartphone, laptop, tablet, or desktop computer.

Taxpayers with 2024 wages less than $200,000 – or $250,000 if filing jointly – may qualify. To check eligibility, go to New York eligibility for Direct File.

Free File

Taxpayers may be eligible to use Free File software (<https://www.tax.ny.gov/pit/efile/freefile.htm>) to e-file federal and state income tax returns at no cost through the Tax Department website.

Information about Free File is available in multiple languages.

Other e-filing options

Taxpayers who don't qualify for Direct File or Free File may be eligible for other free filing options. See other e-file options for personal income tax to learn more (<https://www.tax.ny.gov/pit/efile/other-efile-options.htm>).

Need assistance?

The Tax Department's Taxpayer Assistance Program can help taxpayers who earn less than $84,000 to electronically prepare and file federal and state income tax returns at no cost.

Tax Department representatives help guide taxpayers through free tax preparation software, step-by-step, as they complete and file their own tax returns.

To register for a free session, go to Taxpayer Assistance Program at <https://www.tax.ny.gov/tap/>

Scenic Hudson protects two Columbia County farm & forest properties

Conserving important farmland and forests and safeguarding the historical significance of the Hudson Valley, Scenic Hudson recently worked with partners and private landowners to protect 600 acres across two properties in Columbia County. Both are part of an important belt of climate-resilient forests and farmlands connecting the Catskills to the Berkshires, and are now protected with permanent conservation restrictions known as conservation easements.

Supporting farms and food for life

Nearby, Scenic Hudson also protected 400 prime foodshed acres in a designated agricultural district in the Town of Taghkanic; these lands have been used as a working farm since at least 1858. Albert Christiana, who has lived on the property his entire life and has been stewarding the property since the 1950s, is now the sole owner. He had been concerned about the decline of open space in the Hudson Valley, and says now that the farm is saved he can breathe a sigh of relief.

Lyn Main, who protected the 300-acre Berkshire Valley Dairy farm in Copake with Scenic Hudson and partners in 2020, leases part of the property to grow hay and other crops. The property includes over 180 acres of forest, while approximately 57 acres of freshwater wetlands drain into the Taghkanic Creek, contributing to the City of Hudson's drinking water supply.

Both the heavily-forested Christiana and Steepletop properties have considerable carbon sequestration potential, meaning the trees absorb damaging carbon dioxide from the air.

Brookmeade establishes scholarships at DCC

By Kate Goldsmith

The Dutchess Community College Foundation (DCC Foundation) reported in its January 2025 newsletter that The Community at Brookmeade, a nationally recognized leader in the long-term care industry, has established two new endowed scholarships with the DCC Foundation. These scholarships will play an essential role in the lives of students pursuing careers in Nursing and Human Services, two fields that are vital to the health and well-being of our society, the DCC Foundation stated.

"With a shared mission to nurture talent and foster growth, The Community at Brookmeade has created these scholarships to empower students with the resources and support they need to succeed," the newsletter reported.

The Brookmeade Nursing Scholarship is dedicated to students enrolled full-time in DCC's esteemed Nursing Program. This scholarship reflects The Community at Brookmeade's appreciation for the contributions of future healthcare professionals, providing financial assistance to help students thrive in their studies and prepare for meaningful careers.

Similarly, the Brookmeade Human Services Scholarship is designed to uplift students pursuing degrees in Human Services, a field focused on compassionate care, advocacy, and making a positive impact in the lives of others. This scholarship is open to continuing students enrolled full- or part-time in any of DCC's Human Services programs, ensuring flexibility for those balancing education with other responsibilities.

The DCC Foundation noted that these endowed funds represent a remarkable investment of $30,000, with annual awards of $1,500 to be granted to promising Nursing and Human Services students. These scholarships are a testament to The Community at Brookmeade's belief in the transformative power of education and their desire to cultivate the next generation of dedicated professionals.

"Through these scholarships, The Community at Brookmeade is planting seeds of opportunity that will grow into a brighter future—not only for the recipients but for all who will benefit from their knowledge, care, and contributions," the DCC Foundation stated. "We extend our deepest gratitude to The Community at Brookmeade for their extraordinary vision and unwavering dedication to supporting education. Together, we are shaping the future, one student at a time."

"At Brookmeade, we believe in growing the next generation while also investing in our own team through internal scholarships, training, and career development opportunities," Brookmeade Community posted on its Facebook page. "Thank you, Dutchess Community College, for partnering with us to shape the future!"

$9.6 million to provide mental health support for NY rural areas and farmers

Governor Kathy Hochul announced last week $9.6 million in state funding is available to provide additional mental health assistance services for rural areas of the state, including a program dedicated to helping farmers, agribusiness workers and their families. The State Office of Mental Health is providing $7.6 million to establish four new Critical Time Intervention teams to support individuals living with mental illness in rural areas of the state during periods of transition and $2 million for the Farmers Supporting Farmers program to help those working in agriculture to navigate the stress often associated with the industry.

"We have an obligation to bring mental health assistance to New York's farmers and the rural areas of our state where these supports aren't always readily available," Governor Hochul said. "The combined impact of the Farmers Supporting Farmers program and Critical Time Intervention teams will help bring additional mental health resources to parts of our state where behavioral health services are much needed."

OMH is providing $7.6 million over five years to establish two new Critical Time Intervention teams to serve counties in Western New York, and two others to serve counties in the North Country. These teams will join three others awarded last year and expected to be operational later this year, with the unique flexibility to offer support services and care coordination in rural communities.

Each team must have a well-defined working relationship with at least one community-based hospital and be involved in discharge planning so they can provide subsequent linkages to services. These teams will continue to work with individuals to ensure that their immediate needs are met and that they remain connected to community support.

OMH is also providing $2 million over five years for a service provider to implement the Farmers Supporting Farmers program statewide, specifically in the 44 counties that support farms and agribusinesses. The state has roughly 43,000 square miles of rural land area with about 3.4 million New Yorkers — more than 17 percent of the state's population — living in communities considered rural.

Farmers Supporting Farmers was developed in response to the well-documented link between economic crises and the resulting stress that puts farm workers and their families at an increased risk for poor behavioral health outcomes. The funding will provide this population technical assistance to address their business and financial needs, along with wellness support to promote improved behavioral health outcomes.

Approximately 20 percent of rural residents aged 55 or older live with a mental health issue, according to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. Likewise, rural communities report significantly higher suicide rates than urban areas for both adults and youth.

OMH Commissioner Dr. Ann Sullivan said, "Our effort to strengthen New York State's mental health care system includes bringing services to traditionally underserved areas, which include many of our rural communities. These programs are providing critical supports to an at-risk segment of the population that might otherwise be disconnected from our system of care. Through investments like this, Governor Hochul is demonstrating her continued commitment to expanding mental health services to all New Yorkers, including traditionally underserved New Yorkers."

New York State Agriculture Commissioner Richard A. Ball said, "From unpredictable weather to rising costs, farmers face many challenges that are specific to the industry and can take not only a financial toll but also an emotional toll. This new program, through the Office of Mental Health and supported by the Governor, will provide invaluable mental health resources to farmers and their families, helping New York's agricultural industry manage and better cope with uncertainty and stress for their overall health and well-being."

Hans's life took a dramatic turn following a life-altering accident that occurred when he was in the second grade. Despite the challenges he faced from a young age, Hans's indomitable spirit never wavered. His education continued in a different form, as he taught all who knew him the true meaning of resilience and the power of an unbreakable spirit. For many years the Boice family called Red Hook Home until relocating in 2011 to Hyde Park.

Hans was the cherished son of Donna Boice, who was also his devoted primary caregiver. Gwendolyn Olive Cardarelli Gwendolyn Olive Cardarelli, 83, an area resident for 62 years, died unexpectedly on February 2, 2025 at Vassar Brothers Medical Center. Gwen always said, "You've got to participate in life!" and that she did. Every day of her life was full.

Gwen was born in Schenectady, NY on May 17, 1941, the youngest of 4 children born to John Henry Albert Tomkins and Olive (Stephens) Tomkins. She is predeceased by her siblings John "Jack" Tomkins, Keith Tomkins, and Sheila Lindsay.

She was raised in a very musical family with the strong religious influence of the Salvation Army. She described having a wonderful childhood playing, climbing trees, and singing. She went to Bryant College in Providence, RI where she met the love of her life, John Cardarelli, who would blow up her teetotaling upbringing and give her new ways to share her energy and love.

They were married on September 1, 1962 and went on to start their family in Dutchess County having 3 daughters. John died on June 4, 1994.

Gwen achieved her Master's Degree in social work in 1983 with most of her professional life as a Social Worker at Vassar Brothers Hospital. She was an active member of various organizations including the New Hackensack Reformed Church, Adirondack Mountain Club, Hudson Valley Ski club, and Mid-Hudson Bicycle Club. She volunteered for Meals on Wheels, the Boardman Library, and a host of other groups over the years.

Gwen was the picture of gregarious. Everywhere she went she saw someone she knew, and if she didn't know anyone, she would make a friend before she left. She was always sports and activity focused as a kid and this never slowed down. From Jazzercise in the 80's, skiing, bicycling - including weeks long cycling tours in Europe and other destinations - to hiking, bowling, golfing, kayaking, and pickleball. She was probably most known for dancing, often 4 nights a week and having no hesitation to drive an hour or more to go. She was known for hearing a song and saying, "I know a dance to that one!" And when shoe shopping she had to try a pair on and do a little shimmy to make sure she could dance in them.

Gwen was always up for a shopping trip or an art gallery, movie or concert, an educational talk or lecture. She regularly took adult learning courses and loved to share the fascinating things she learned. She was interested in everything and loved to read and learn. She took tap dancing lessons, piano lessons, Italian, painting, just to name a few. Her energy, excitement for life, and constant interest in learning paired well with traveling. A typical question for her daughters was "Where is your Mom? What's she up to now?" The answer was often another country, sailing the south of France, ziplining in Costa Rica, camping on the Mexican Baja, bicycling through Europe, or something of the like. Everyone wanted to "be like her when I grow up!"

Gwen was exceptionally thoughtful and generous, always thinking about what she could do for someone else. She would often cook or bake something to bring to someone, sometimes for no particular reason. She never went anywhere "empty-handed." She always wanted to help, to make people feel better. She did that. She made people feel good, better, everywhere she went.

Perhaps her greatest joy was being a mother. She told her daughters always that they were her blessings, her treasures, that she couldn't have imagined her life without them. She showered them with endless love in endless ways. She is survived by her daughters, Beth Donohue and her husband, Matthew, Sharon Strack, and Janet Cardarelli and her husband, John Audi. Her endless love was also extended to grandchildren, Matthew Donohue and his wife Destiny, Ryan Donohue, Jesse Strack, Estelle Strack, and her great-grandchildren, Jonathan and Carmen Donohue.

Because you are reading this, there is still time to be like her when you grow up.

Calling hours were held at the McHoul Funeral Home, Inc., 895 Route 82, Hopewell Junction. There was a celebration of her life.

In Gwen's memory, her family has asked that everyone "pay it forward" by donating in her memory to an organization that would mean something special to her.

Joan Fanelli

Joan Margaret Fanelli, 93 died peacefully on Friday January 31, 2025.

Joan married her husband Daniel Fanelli on February 15, 1957. She gained three teenaged children from her husband's previous marriage and soon welcomed a daughter. Joan and Danny raised the kids in Pleasant Valley, New York, where Joan worked on the family owned farm known as Quattro's Farm. She remained on the farm for many years following her husband's death in 1984. Joan enjoyed spending time outdoors walking the neighborhood and cooking. Marrying into an Italian family came with many "Sunday dinners" with wonderful food and amazing memories. She spent over 20 years traveling to Vermont by bus alone to spend every Christmas with her daughter and grandchildren. Most of all Joan loved spending time with her family. She was loved by so many and gave to others when she did not have much.

Joan was pre deceased by her husband Danny, brothers Col. Gordon Pink, Robert Pink, children Lorraine Christy, Maryann Fanelli, Frank Fanelli and Joseph (Danny)Fanelli.

Mary Hornung

Mary Hornung, a lifelong resident of Poughkeepsie, passed away on Friday, January 31 at the age of 100. Born Mary Gallante on July 9th, 1924, she was affectionately known in her early years as "Rosie," a name given in honor of her mother, Rose Krakower, who passed shortly after Mary's birth. A lifelong resident of Poughkeepsie, Mary grew up at 56 South Clover Street in a multigenerational, Italian-speaking household. She spoke fondly of her childhood, recalling the simple joys and time spent with her Sicilian grandparents who raised her.

Mary helped her grandmother manage the household, tending to their backyard garden and canning tomatoes and vegetables for the seasons ahead. She translated for her grandmother, who would barter with their German and Polish neighbors, exchanging her homegrown preserves for staples of their cuisines. Mary's first paying job was at a bakery on Main Street, where she saved her dimes to treat herself to the occasional picture show. These formative years instilled in her the values of prudence, preparation, and hard work – qualities that would define her character throughout her life.

During WWII, Mary worked in the Cylinder Press Department at the Western Printing factory in Hyde Park. In 1946, at the age of 22, she married Wallace "Duke" Hornung, and together they raised two daughters. A skilled homemaker, she took pride in maintaining an exceptionally orderly home and managing her finances with the same precision. She lived by the words, "A place for everything, and everything in its place," and "A penny saved is a penny earned." Mary became the wise matriarch of a large, blended family who gathered in July to celebrate her 100th birthday.

Our Mary was a meticulous woman with a sharp wit, a playful sense of humor, and a tender heart. She always managed to keep herself occupied, whether she was cleaning and tidying, line dancing, working on a crossword, walking long distances, or treating herself and others to lunch. She was as generous as she was disciplined, balancing her kindness with her strong principles and high standards. Her unwavering work ethic and caring nature left a lasting impact on all who knew her. A devoted volunteer with the Foster Grandparent Program, she retired after 30 years of service at Violet Avenue Elementary School at the age of 94.

She is survived by her daughters: Patricia Harding and Karen Souza; her sons-in-law, William and John; her cousin Richard Gallante and his wife Kay; her grandchildren, Patrick, Andrea, Courtney, Kelly, and John; as well as 11 great-grandchildren: Angela, Johnny, Dean, Chloe, Addison, Sophia, Justin, Alexa, Lauren, William, and Caroline.

Mary lived a life full of love, hard work, and devotion to her family and community. Her wise and generous spirit will be remembered by those whose lives she enriched. May her memory be a blessing. Cent' Anni.

Kathleen 'Kate' Kennedy

Kathleen "Kate" Kennedy, 83, a beloved sister, aunt, and friend, passed away peacefully on February 1, 2025, after a brief illness. A resident of The Woods in Rhinebeck, NY and formerly of Livingston, NY, Kathleen lived a life filled with love, faith, and service to others.

Born on July 9, 1941, in Woodside, Queens, Kathleen was the daughter of Patrick and Beatrice Kenny, who predeceased her. She was also predeceased by her husband of 36 years, Joseph Kennedy, and her brothers, Jack and Patrick. Kathleen was a woman of deep faith and devotion, attending 8 AM Mass every morning at The Good Shepherd Roman Catholic Church in Rhinebeck. She was an active member of the church community, embodying kindness and generosity in all she did. Her compassion extended beyond her family—she volunteered for numerous charitable organizations, always eager to lend a helping hand. She frequently drove friends to doctor's appointments, ensuring they had support when they needed it most.

A dedicated lifelong learner, Kathleen graduated from St. Agnes High School in College Point, Queens, in 1959 and went on to earn her degree from Fordham University in 1963. She spent 32 years as a special education teacher in the New York City Department of Education, touching countless lives with her patience and dedication. Never one to shy away from a challenge, she pursued a second career in law, earning her Juris Doctor from Fordham University Law School in 1991. After retiring from teaching, she worked as an attorney for the Brooklyn District Attorney's Office for two years.

Kathleen found joy in simple yet meaningful activities. She was an avid reader and a devoted member of her local book club. She was in a weekly Scrabble club, where she enjoyed spending time with friends. A passionate gardener, she was an active member of the Germantown Garden Club. Above all, she was known for her thoughtfulness, always sending beautifully handwritten cards to celebrate birthdays, express gratitude, or offer condolences.

Michael C. Mazzarella

Michael Mazzarella - A life worth sharing...

After 66 years of an incredible journey, I tearfully said farewell to my loving husband on February 4, 2025, one month from his 91st birthday. Together with our four children, Joseph, Michelle, Frank and Elizabeth, Mike's daughter Dawn and all their loved ones, we struggled with the tremendous physical challenges and loss of dignity Michael was plagued with over the past year and a half. I was so fortunate and thankful to my children for the love and amazing care they gave their dad. Donna, his aide, was a Godsend, and in his final days the dedication of Hospice care givers was comforting and heartwarming.

Michael deeply loved his children, his 8 grandchildren, a great-grandson and hoped he'd be here to meet his newest great-granddaughter. His Italian heritage was very important to him. He especially enjoyed our family celebrations and mealtime gatherings filled with love and laughter. He would reminisce and enjoyed telling stories that left our grandchildren in awe. He'd shared stories of his Huck Finn childhood, war time experiences and of course, hospital tales.

Michael was an amazing dad. Even though pressured by 60- and 80-hour work weeks he always made time for our children's activities. He'd drop in to a basketball, soccer or baseball game between meetings, he attended their concerts and special events. He taught them to ski, play golf and tennis. He took great pride in their accomplishments. As our children married, we were blessed with grandchildren, each unique and special, they were an important part of Mike's legacy and represented that great circle of life.

Michael and I were so blessed, we shared an incredible life together. We each cherished family life. We traveled throughout the world, enjoyed each other's professional and volunteer involvements and respected the time we each needed to fulfill our community commitments.

Michael was born in Philadelphia and at the age of five suffered the tragic loss of his mother. He was sent off to live with his elderly grandparents in a small country village on Long Island. They led a simple life, living off the land. He cherished spending time with his granddad hunting for rabbit and other wildlife. He felt indebted to them for the love and nurturing they bestowed upon him. Their influence was manifested in many of the decisions he made throughout his life, especially during his career. While CEO of Northern Dutchess Hospital, he paid homage to them with the development of the Wells Manor subsidized housing project and honored their legacy when he opened The Thompson House Senior Living facility. These initiatives were unique and bold for hospitals at that time.

Growing up in a home with immigrant grandparents who spoke very little English motivated Michael to achieve good grades and excel academically. At the age of 12 he moved in with his dad and a very loving stepmom. He lived happily through the typical high school years and decided on his 18th birthday to surprise his parents by enlisting in the United States Army. He spent 18 months in Korea during war time, working as a heavy weapon specialist. This exposure resulted in a significant hearing disability that had great manifestations throughout his life and career.

Michael was a prolific reader. He would often have three books opened at the same time. He was a wiz at crossword puzzles and unscrambled letters into words in seconds. I believe these attributes compensated for his childhood where neither a book nor a newspaper could be found in his home.

Michael and I began our life long journey together at his homecoming celebration upon returning from the Korean War. Four years later we were married, I continued work as secretary to the Bishop of Brooklyn, while Mike attended Adelphi College's psychiatric nursing program. After graduation he worked double shifts at Mt. Sinai Hospital in New York City while attending Columbia University School of Hospital Administration. Mike did his Internship at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in New Jersey and soon after was offered a position as Assistant Administrator at Hackensack Hospital. During his fourth year, he received a call from the Dean of Columbia recommending he apply for a job opening as CEO of a small 100 bed country hospital in rural upstate, Rhinebeck New York.

Alas, the beginning of Michael's 34-year illustrious career as CEO of Northern Dutchess Hospital. I've heard him many times describe the hospital in the early days of his arrival as not much more than a first aide facility. He knew that there would be monumental challenges and if he were to chart the destiny of this institution it would need his grit, perseverance and boldness to pursue the best health care for the people of this region. Medicare had just emerged and every hospital throughout the country was frustrated with the chaotic government protocols. He needed to attract board-certified doctors with diverse specialties and find a niche that would bring patients from throughout the region. This was a time when many small hospitals were closing their doors throughout the country due to economic strife.

Mike knew that he had to seize the opportunity and create a course that would gain the recognition and respect of the health care industry in New York State. He courted doctors from large prestigious hospitals, served on State-wide health care boards and took on leadership roles to network with the best of the best. He developed the first Birthing Center in New York State, where women from throughout the region flocked to have their babies delivered in a safe, more natural environment. This pursuit also paid homage to his mom, whose death resulted from a child-birth tragedy. He built a reputation for NDH as an institution that specialized in orthopedics, he ensured that there was state of the art medical equipment for his doctors and nurses, he had numerous capital campaigns to make possible the many construction projects needed to achieve excellence. Mike was grateful to the Thomas Thompson Trust for their significant generosity and participation in every brick-and-mortar project pursued during his 34-year tenure as CEO.

When the timing was right, he facilitated a merger with Vassar Hospital to guarantee the longevity of an institution he loved and was devoted to.

Mike was highly respected in the health care, non-profit and private industry communities. He was awarded Governor's appointments and was honored by over 35 prestigious awards from organizations throughout NYS. He took on leadership and chairmanship roles in the numerous organization he served.

I have no doubt that the legacy of Mike Mazzarella will live on. As one travels through the Rhinebeck village one can't help but notice our community hospital. I feel nostalgic thinking of the extraordinary health care it provides, the thousands of jobs it made possible, as well as the diversity of employment opportunities it offers. The enormity of Mike's accomplishments helped strengthen the economic well-being of our region.

Those who know and love him take great pride in a man who dedicated his life to improving the lives of thousands and thousands of people who were in need of special care. Michael Mazzarella is indeed that ordinary person that did extraordinary things and for that we celebrate his life and legacy.

Michael, this remarkable legacy is further defined by the tremendous love and devotion you've shared with your family. Your amazing influence on our lives will be cherished forever. Arrivederci amore mio.

Diana Reyes of Amenia conducts research on foods of local immigrant communities with African Community Education in Worcester

WORCESTER, MA - Clark University has signed a partnership agreement with African Community Education (ACE), a Worcester agency that works to help African refugee and immigrant youth and families achieve educational and social stability.

In December, students in Professor Anita Fabos' Culture of Exile course held their final class session at the ACE Center on Gage Street, where they presented the culmination of a series of semester-long research projects involving the foods of local Haitian and African immigrant communities.

The presentations were widely varied, focusing on ingredient availability, urban farming, and Haitian foodways, and provided interactive maps, recipe videos, and vegetables and fruits to community members as a way to strengthen Haitian and African cultural ties to foods from their homelands. The themes of food security, food habits, identity, and cultural accuracy were central to the projects.

Diana Reyes '25, of Amenia took part in the presentations. Along with four other students, Reyes developed an interactive map of community food resources for Worcester's Haitian populations based on their culinary practices and traditions.

Following the student presentations, several community members offered their reflections, stressing the projects' success in illuminating the cultural significance of food and suggesting that Clark continue to find avenues for collaborating with immigrant populations.
