

Local employers
wrestle with ‘crazy’
labor market

by Rich Thomaselli

Last week, New York Gov. Kathy Hochul announced a new state-wide initiative to help connect job seekers with employers.

It’s a noble effort considering the world is still very much in the midst of the COVID-19 pandemic, especially with the news that, at press time, the state of New York had confirmed eight positive cases of the Omicron variant.

But as far as local business owners are concerned – particularly restaurateurs and manufacturers where employees can’t work remotely and need to be on-site – Hochul’s project is a moot point.

“We are severely understaffed,” said Luigi Coppola, owner of the Coppola’s Italian American Bistro that he and his brothers run in Hyde Park. “I’ve never seen anything like it in all my years in the business. We are basically hiring anyone with a pulse, and once people are hired, they don’t last.”

There has been a sea change, employers say, ever since the pandemic hit in early 2020. And “sea change” is a polite description. In actuality there has been a seismic shift in attitude due to a variety of reasons.

To wit:

- Some people have been content with simply taking unemployment benefits, even though the extra benefits finally ran out in September.
- Some have decided to retire early.
- Some accepted buyouts.
- Some have shifted career perspectives and moved on to other fields.
- Still others have used the time to go back to school and/or learn a new trade.

Bean ‘Jets’ from original to new ‘West Side Story’

Family now home
in Clinton Corners

by Jim Donick

One doesn’t expect to find a product of the Renaissance in Clinton Corners, New York - maybe at the Metropolitan Museum, but certainly not in a deli in Clinton Corners. Never-the-less, the Beans, David and Jeanie, are indeed just that. One suspects that they can do nearly anything they put their minds to - and do it exceptionally.

The Beans were not always in the food service business. They have enjoyed long and storied careers in the entertainment world. They met in England during the London production of “West Side Story.” They’ve also done a whole pile of other things. David notes that they have had 26 career changes between them. One suspects he’s missed a couple.

David’s latest triumph can be seen in the new Steven Spielberg production of “West Side Story.” Bean had been one of the legendary dancers, known as “Tiger,” in the original Broadway production and then in the movie version that starred Natalie Wood and damned near everyone else in the musical theater who mattered at the time.

Spielberg wanted some of the “magic” from the first movie for his own. Casting Bean in a small part and the legendary Rita Moreno in a larger one allowed him to - borrowing a bit from Bean’s first Broadway show, “Peter Pan” - to sprinkle some faerie dust on the production. Initial reviews indicate that it must have helped.

Bean muses that, when he first went on the set and met the dancers for the new movie, they were so excited about doing the parts that he had created that “I felt like a rock star.”

The 180 percent theory

The David Bean story is the stuff that, in another time, legends would have been made from. His father, a junk dealer in Los Angeles, encouraged David to approach every task with a commitment to giving it 180 percent. That seems a bit much for a small kid, but it worked. He started tap dance lessons early. His mom was a piano player. Being the youngest of the kids, he stayed on the truck while his father and elder siblings would clean out people’s stuff.

“I had to take my tap shoes, though,” he says. “Dad would often say, ‘these people would like to see you dance,’ so I’d dance right there in the street. It seemed perfectly normal to me.”

Thus, Bean’s career went from tap dancing off a junk truck in the street to being one of the top dancers on Broadway. At 14, he was given a role as one of the “Lost Boys” in the Mary Martin production of “Peter Pan.” That took him to New York and to an ever-unfolding world.

By the age of 18 or 19, he was already a veteran dancer. He was a “Jet” in the

Merry & Bright Holiday in Hyde Park

Pleasant Valley's annual Festival of Lights parade always features trucks and equipment from many of the local industries and businesses decorated for the season and sharing holiday wishes with the community. The above machine in the lead was from Peckham Industries, one of the town's larger employers. Gilmore Trucking from Hyde Park brought a few trucks in various decorations. One was a truck on top of a truck and the one above, a more traditional Christmas toy float. It's hardly a Christmas parade without Santa. Photos by Jim Donick.

The Town of Hyde Park's Merry & Bright Holiday Kickoff Parade of Lights event took place on Sunday, Dec. 5. Residents with candles lined Route 9 in front of Town Hall to view the parade and Christmas Tree lighting. Above, a fire truck displays a snowflake and lights. Children gather around Santa inside Town Hall. Supervisor Aileen Rohr welcomes guests. The event also included Councilman Ken Schnieder reading "Twas the Night Before Christmas. Wreaths were presented to business and resident decoration winners from 2020. A Pop-Up Market greeted guests from 3-8 p.m. Photos by Curtis Schmidt

County Legislature's Minority leader: Republican Majority ‘rubber stamp’ for County Exec

To the editor:

At a recent meeting of the Dutchess County legislature I said, “This legislature is doing nothing.” A letter to your newspapers last week questioning that statement provides a welcome opportunity to explain.

The work of a normal (County) legislature - such as Ulster County’s - centers on standing committees, small bipartisan groups who research and develop policy in discussion with key staff. In the Dutchess County Legislature, standing committees don’t do that. They just meet briefly to rubber-stamp whatever the (County) Executive sends over. In 2020, the Family and Human Services Committee deliberated for less than 30 minutes total, during the year, and the Environmental Committee for less than 18 minutes.

Our (Democratic) caucus has proposed three dozen bills on a range of topics, from extending line-of-duty benefits to probation officers, to setting fossil-fuel reduction targets. The Chair blocked almost all from being discussed. In response to the hardships brought by COVID-19, our caucus proposed funding for a Poughkeepsie non-profit that was expanding free WiFi access for schoolchildren. The Republican caucus asked for revisions to the bill, which we promptly provided, but at meeting time they hadn’t read the revised bill, so they voted it down.

Many appointments on community task forces have lapsed. The Airport Committee, on which I serve, has met once in four years. Republican legislators appointed to the Criminal Justice Council and Police Reform Task Force, among other special committees, rarely attend. (The claim that no Democratic legislators attended a recent budget meeting, by the way, is false. At least two, and up to eight, lawmakers in our caucus attended each budget meeting. On several occasions recently, legislators who were in quarantine requested that a remote-participation option be restored, as permitted under New York emergency orders; the Chair denied those requests.)

In July 2020, when we discussed cost-effective community-based alternatives to incarceration, the Chair promised to appoint a bipartisan committee to research options. We are still waiting.

In 2021, the Chair never bothered to ask the legislature to adopt rules for the year.

Republican legislators have raised no substantive questions about the 2022 budget, which sharply increases spending and engineers a “dip” in debt service for 2022, kicking repayment down the road until the current Executive is out of office. (Debt service—including on the exorbitant new jail, by far the county’s largest current investment—will now peak at over $37 million in 2027, more than triple the amount in 2010.)

All these things seem to indicate a legislature that is doing nothing.

It’s possible that the Republican majority is having extensive policy debates. If that’s the case, they are doing so behind closed doors, holed up in their caucus room with the Executive. That is worse than doing nothing. It’s secret decision-making that is not accountable to voters. That’s not how democracy should work.

Any member of the public can watch the online meeting videos and decide for themselves: Is this legislature doing nothing? Or is the Republican majority pre-arranging everything secretly with the Executive, on a partisan basis, before voting in lockstep? Whichever it is, Dutchess residents deserve better.

AFD commissioner candidate states goals

To the editor:

I am asking for your vote in the Arlington Fire District commissioner election. I am running for the unpaid job of Arlington Fire District Commissioner, a five-year term. The election will be held Tuesday, December 14 between 5:00 p.m. and 9:00 p.m. at Red Oaks Mill firehouse (213 Vassar Road for Wards 1, 2, and 5) or District Headquarters (11 Burnett Boulevard for Wards 3, 4, and 6).

All district residents who live in the Arlington Fire District and are registered with the County Board of Elections for general elections are eligible to vote.

About 45% of my land taxes go to the Arlington Fire District (AFD). It is not reasonable that we pay more in Fire Taxes than we do in Town or County taxes to the AFD.

I think it is possible to make a difference. Please elect me so that I can work to use the fund balance applied to reduce taxes. I want to continue high-quality safety and fire protection without spending on privately-owned firehouses so that the landlord can raise the rent. We need to spend wisely.

AFD has been run by commissioners who have been associated with individual fire companies. Now that AFD is staffed by professionals, AFD needs to be run like a $20 million business that it has grown to be. Contracts should not be prematurely revised. Penalty clauses should be enforced, not canceled.

Please vote for me on Tuesday, December 14, 2021. Thank you!

Phil Van Itallie
Poughkeepsie, NY

Van Itallie would work on behalf of AFD taxpayers

To the editor:

Phil Van Itallie is running for commissioner in the Arlington Fire District on December 14. Taxpayers need to vote for Phil to help stop the run-away costs, nepotism and shady deals that are being approved by the current, devious and incompetent board. Put this on your calendar now.

In the Arlington Fire District, in Poughkeepsie, we pay more in fire taxes than we do in Town or County taxes.

The current board added $2 million in spending over the past two budget cycles: A ten-percent increase in taxes driven by a sweet labor contract, for the 77 union firefighters, that was approved eighteen months before the previous contract was due to expire. They also approved giving $350,000 in taxpayer dollars to the Croft Corners Fire Company, where two AFD commissioners are members, for construction on a building privately owned by that fire company.

Phil Van Itallie has taken a personal interest and has attended district meetings this year to educate himself. He spoke at the budget hearing in defense of taxpayers. Phil has been a district resident since 1970. He’s willing to do this unpaid job of commissioner and is asking for our vote.

All district residents who live in the Arlington Fire District and are registered with the County Board of Elections for general elections are eligible to vote.

The election is on December 14 from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. The two voting locations are Red Oaks Mill firehouse (213 Vassar Road for Wards 1, 2, and 5) and District Headquarters (11 Burnett Boulevard for Wards 3, 4, and 6).

We taxpayers have a choice this year. Let’s not miss an opportunity to save ourselves from out-of-control spending. Let’s get out and vote Van Itallie.

Sharpe emphasizes solutions

To the editor:

At least as far back as 2012, political candidates have strongly urged people to vote against opponents. Think back to that presidential election, and you’ll remember that the Obama/Romney camps warned their respective bases to vote against the other guy. Fast forward to 2020’s presidential race, and the respective campaigns’ main message to voters was that the other guy would wreck the country. From voting “for” the lesser of two evils, we’ve fallen just to voting against evil, which means that every election we’re asked to vote by our hatreds.

There is a better way, and a Bronx native running for New York Governor has found it. Larry Sharpe, 53, is running on a platform which emphasizes solutions rather than demonizing opponents. Whereas other candidates talk about the harm their opponents would cause if elected, Sharpe focuses on actual policy, going so far as to post white papers on his website. In this context, anybody attacking Sharpe ad hominem has to counter with competing proposals. This shifts discussion back to actual solutions, which is Sharpe’s only focus on campaign.

Some may call Sharpe’s policies “radical,” but I challenge critics to contrast his website with those of other gubernatorial hopefuls. Absent are the vague platitudes about “supporting and caring,” replaced by Sharpe’s detailed plans. Though professional political consultants nowadays advise candidates just to bad-mouth opponents, the only radical thing about Larry Sharpe is that he’s offering actual plans New Yorkers can vote for!

Man arrested in Amenia after alleged break-in, assault of victim

On Dec. 2, the New York State Police from the Dover barracks arrested Thomas E. Ryan, age 54, of LaGrange, for Criminal Sex Act in the first degree, a Class B felony; Burglary in the second degree, a Class C felony; and Sexual Abuse in the first degree, a Class D felony.

On Nov. 1, at approximately 10:50 p.m., troopers were dispatched to a residence in the Town of Amenia for a report of a burglary in progress. Investigation determined Ryan illegally entered the residence through a window and sexually assaulted the victim.

Ryan was arraigned before the Town of Dover Court and remanded to the Dutchess County Jail in lieu of $20,000 cash bail or $50,000 bond. He was scheduled to appear before the Town of Amenia Court on Dec. 8 at 11 a.m.

first Broadway production of “West Side Story” and went with much of the cast to bring the show to London.

A chance meeting

That would have been in 1959. The show was a smash, but the personal impact on Bean was even greater. It was in that show he met a new English dancer. Her name was Jean Deeks. Jean notes today, “We had never seen dancing like these Americans did. It was simply so much more dynamic.”

This young graduate of the Royal Academy decided this sort of dance might make a more interesting career than ballet, her original genre. It took a few months for the two of them to actually figure out that they had been made for each other. But today, they’ve been married the better part of 60 years and the partnership begun on that London stage has seen countless stages, countless shows, and those 26 or so career changes between the two of them.

How great is that? Little did the lovely young Miss Deeks realize that going from the ballet to the musical theatre would open up a most amazing set of vistas.

David and Jean came back to USA shortly after their wedding. There was a show that wanted them. One show led to another but, not always in the most timely manner.

It’s a bit of theatre lore among Equity Actors that, after one’s stage talents, it isn’t a bad idea to be able to do a good job waiting on tables between gigs. One year around Christmas, the two of them were between shows and a bit short of cash, so David became the manager of the department store Santas for Abraham and Strauss in Brooklyn. Jean worked in the jewelry department peddling bling. With that they were able to have a good Christmas.

Somewhere along the line, David learned to be a pressman. He loved working the printing presses and, to this day, he’s perfectly capable of running the press that prints this very paper.

Today they own a farm in Dutchess County with livestock and a view that one would die for. During the day for many years now, they are running Jeanie Bean’s Cafe in Clinton Corners. Their daughter, Jennifer, works with them. Jennifer, they say, keeps an eye on the front counter, Jeanie runs the kitchen. (David says, “We keep her chained to a table back there.”) David “works the crowd.”

The regulars swear the coffee and tea are first-rate and the overall ambiance well beyond that.

Now, with the latest Spielberg version of “West Side Story” bringing back a focus on this most wonderful of musicals, the world is again taking a well-deserved interest in David and Jean.

The Beans were in New York as Spielberg’s guests for the premiere. He rates the choreography as outstanding.

The Beans note that their world has all but come full circle. His career really took off with “West Side Story” and now he has been brought back to be a part of it yet one more time.

Tom Sipos of local radio station WKIP is a fan.

“I had David and Jeanie on my show a few weeks ago,” he said. “It was one of those dark grey gloomy mornings and raining. We had a ball together. Later I heard from one of my listeners, a woman named Sue. She told me she graduated from Lakeland High School in 1969 and Jeanie Bean used to come there to teach ballet. ‘Hearing her voice again and remembering the impact she had on us brought brightness to my whole day,’ she said. These two have that kind of effect on people.”

The new “West Side Story” movie will debut in the Hudson Valley on Friday, Dec. 10, so Sipos will be doing his morning broadcast from Jeanie Bean’s Cafe from 6 to 9 a.m. that day.

“I call my Friday shows ‘Family, Friends, Fun, Food Fridays.’ This one with the Beans covers all of those bases,” said Sipos. Everyone is welcome to stop in during the show for a bite of breakfast.

David Bean has just published his autobiography. He calls it “When You’re a Jet,” reflecting the well known song of that name from “West Side Story.” He sang it in various productions and in the movie. The book is a collection of short chapters relating memories of life events, of people he and Jeanie worked with, and able. Written in the first person, the book is almost as good as spending an evening swapping stories with David and Jeanie.

“When You’re A Jet” is available from Amazon but it’s also available at Jeanie Bean’s Cafe. If one acquires it there, David just might be convinced to sign it.

“When you’re a Jet, you’re a Jet all the way - from your first cigarette to your last dying day.”

If the lyricist was right, then David Bean’s days as a Jet should continue for many years to come.

Local employers wrestle with ‘crazy’ labor market

Nationwide, unemployment figures continue to drop incrementally, but the number of workers is also less. In essence, the labor market is upside down.

“The numbers just don’t add up,” said Sandra Jackson, who owns the Poughkeepsie office of Express Employment Professionals, a staffing agency and career counseling service.

Jackson’s business caters to both employers looking to fill positions, and potential employees looking for jobs.

Jackson called it a “talent war.” Employers are having to re-think the packages they offer to prospective employees, including wages - and workers are holding out for the best deals. Where Jackson was once able to place people at jobs paying a $14 or $15 hourly wage, she now says people won’t even talk to her unless a position has a starting pay of $18 an hour.

“The labor market is crazy,” she said. “In September after the unemployment benefits expired, we thought we were going to have an influx of people. We didn’t. There’s been a big uptick in early retirement. Then, we have another group who were re-assessing their jobs. Some went back to school, some took up another trade. Then we have the childcare issue. The uncertainty is big there. Someone has to be home to take of their kids. And then you have COVID, which is not over. A lot of people are looking to still work remotely and workers are waiting it out. And frankly, they can be a little selective.”

Coppola knows that all too well. Simply put, a restaurant offers no remote option. You can’t serve Tortellini Alfredo via a computer screen.

“We’ve tried everything we can think of,” Coppola said. “We are hiring full-time and part-time, and we’ve tried to become very flexible with schedules. We have found that people are filling out applications in order to fulfill their unemployment requirements, but not wanting to work. People are either afraid, lazy or both.”

Coppola said he is one of the lucky ones, with brothers and other family members who have picked up the slack on a family-run business.

But not everybody can do that, hence Hochul’s plan.

The initiative will build upon extensive efforts already under way by the New York State Department of Labor to connect job seekers to the record 220,000-plus available jobs in the state through tools and training resources.

“After the hardship New York’s workforce has experienced as a result of COVID-19, it is crucial that we connect individuals looking for jobs with businesses looking to hire,” she said in a statement. “Streamlining the recruitment process benefits everyone involved, as well as the state as a whole. I look forward to seeing the good that will stem from this initiative as we build New York back better and stronger than it’s ever been before.”

The Department of Labor will expand existing services to collaborate with additional community partners across the state to educate New Yorkers about no-cost resources available to connect them with jobs.

The Department of Labor will also partner with Community Based Organizations, including those who assisted New Yorkers through the Emergency Rental Assistance Program (ERAP) to connect those in need to jobs, training and other resources.

State Department of Labor Commissioner Roberta Reardon said, “The COVID-19 pandemic has created a massive shift, not only in the type of jobs that are available, but also who is looking for work — when, where, and how — and the systems and programs needed to assist them. We have to reimagine how we connect job seekers to these jobs while also meeting the needs of our employers and we need all of our partners, from workforce development to our local community organizations, to help us educate New Yorkers about these critical resources.”

It sounds good in theory, but employers remain skeptical when it comes to putting in practice given what they’ve seen in the recent past.

“We have been trying to fill out our staff for over a year now. It is very, very difficult,” Coppola said. “I have friends who own restaurants who have had to close altogether or have closed two days a week because they can’t find staff.”

Count fellow restaurateur Paul Iannucci among them.

Iannucci owns two successful businesses — Nooch’s Pub and Grill in the Village of Millbrook and the Fireside BBQ & Grill in Salt Point. Both places are now closed on Mondays and Tuesdays, and Iannucci is desperately seeking two hostesses and a cook at Fireside.

“It’s a complete nightmare. It’s been 20 months of a nightmare,” he said. “I’ve never seen anything like it in the 20-plus years I’ve been in the business. Finding front-of-the-house staff used to be easy. Now it’s hard. And back of the house? Forget it.”

Iannucci agreed with Jackson as to the reasons why there is such a staffing shortage — flexibility, the ability to work remotely, wages.

Especially wages, he said, noting that chain restaurants owned by corporations have deeper resources and are offering far more money than he can.

As far as restaurants go, Iannucci also has another theory.

“The pandemic is uncharted territory. A lot of people just don’t want to deal with the public,” he said. “There are a lot of triggered and entitled people out there.”

Jackson said there needs to be a happy medium between what employers can offer and what employees will accept.

“People are demanding flexibility and work-life integration. So people are looking at time-off policies, vacation, career development, training, and wellness programs,” she said.

For some, that might be a lot to ask for.

But Jackson said she thinks it will resolve itself.

“This too will pass,” she said. “It’s cyclical. It’s not going to stay the way it is.”

A gift that will keep on giving

The holiday season is such a special time for so many folks here in the Hudson Valley. It's a time to celebrate family, of course, but it's also a time to be thankful for all the blessings we have experienced throughout the year by giving back to our communities and sharing our good will with others. Personally, that's my favorite part of the holidays: the chance to bring joy to our neighbors who might be struggling.

Thankfully, I'm not the only one who feels that way! Just last week, the Mullaney family at Hudson Cadillac Buick GMC stepped up with an amazing act of giving: They donated a beautiful vehicle to the VetZero Heroes ride program! Mike Mullaney had heard about how the veteran community really needs this service that gives free rides to Dutchess County veterans, and he decided to do something about it! If that's not the holiday spirit, I don't know what is!

It's no secret the VetZero Heroes ride program has been trying to add a second vehicle, to be able to give even more free rides to our local veterans to get to their doctor, pharmacy and other vital appointments. So far, the program has given an astounding 1,500 rides to veterans – and that's just with one car, and one driver!

The VetZero Heroes ride program began in November 2019 when Christa Hines, Executive Director of Hudson River Housing, and myself came up with the idea to offer free rides to veterans in Dutchess County. Back then, we really didn't fathom how vital this simple program would become to so many local veterans who struggled to make their doctors' appointments.

As it turns out, the lack of transportation options is a huge obstacle for many of our veterans, especially those older vets who no longer drive, or those struck by financial hardship who don't have a reliable form of transportation themselves. We are so proud this program has been so helpful, and we are excited to expand the VetZero Heroes ride program in the future.

Enter Mike Mullaney and his team at Hudson Cadillac Buick GMC. In the spirit of the holidays, Mike decided to help those less fortunate by donating a wonderful new vehicle, which allows us to double the number of free rides we can offer our heroes. Mike said to me, "It's just the right thing to do." We couldn't agree more, Mike!

As soon as we can get the second VetZero Heroes vehicle wrapped and ready to go, you will probably see us a lot more on the roads here in Dutchess County! When you see one of the green and black VetZero Heroes rides in traffic, give them a wave or a friendly honk and let the driver know you support this important program!

The Mullaney family embodied the spirit of giving with their amazing donation of a vehicle to our VetZero Heroes ride program. But you don't have to donate a car to truly make a difference in the lives of our veterans, this Christmas! There are plenty of things you can do to get into that holiday spirit. A great start is contacting Hudson River Housing at (845) 454-5176 or www.hudsonriverhousing.org and asking how you can support local veterans through the VetZero program. It's easy, and we could really use your help!

Thank you to the Mullaney family for their wonderful donation. And thank you, for listening! I wish everyone a Happy Hanukkah and a very Merry Christmas season. See you next time!

A Navy veteran, Tom Zurhellen has been Commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) in Poughkeepsie for the past three years. In the summer of 2019, he walked across America from Portland, Oregon, to Poughkeepsie to raise awareness on veteran suicide and veteran homelessness in our country. He continues to work with local veterans in need through the VetZero Project, in partnership with Hudson River Housing.

TAKE THE HIGH ROAD AND BUY 'THE LOW ROAD'!

Tom Zurhellen chronicles his 2019 VetZero Walk Across America in his new book, "The Low Road: Walking the Walk for Veterans." The Walk raised awareness of the plight of many veterans in our country, and called attention to the fact that, every day, 22 veterans take their own lives. Proceeds from "The Low Road" will go directly to help local veterans in need through the VetZero Project at Hudson River Housing. The book costs $22 and can only be purchased at www.hudsonriverhousing.org.

Delgado announces Holiday Cards for Heroes program

U.S. Rep. Antonio Delgado (NY-19) recently announced his Holiday Cards for Heroes program for the 2021 holiday season. Residents of New York's 19th Congressional District are invited to create holiday cards for active-duty service members and health care workers. Delgado's office will share the holiday greetings with local heroes who have worked hard to keep us safe this year. Cards will be accepted starting today through Wednesday, Dec. 15.

Holiday cards should be placed in an unsealed envelope, addressed to the Congressman's Kingston office, 256 Clinton Avenue, Kingston, New York 12401.

This is the third year Delgado's office has conducted a Holiday Cards for Heroes Program. Over the last three years, Delgado's office has also collected and distributed Valentines for Veterans.

Call the Kingston Office at (845) 443-2930 with any questions.

VETERANS CORNER: NEWS YOU CAN USE

Deadline Dec. 9 to register for 'Holiday for Our Heroes'

Marist College, Mike Arteaga's Health & Fitness Centers, VetZero and MHA Dutchess Veteran Programs are sponsoring a "Holiday for our Heroes" event on Sunday, Dec. 12, in Poughkeepsie. The event will be completely free for all veterans and a guest, and will include:

2 p.m. Marist Men's Basketball vs. Navy at Marist College: Marist has donated free tickets for all veterans and a guest to attend the game. There will be a special halftime ceremony honoring our local veterans. Tickets can be picked up at the gate for veterans.

4 p.m. Holiday for our Heroes celebration at Mahoney's Irish Pub & Restaurant in Poughkeepsie, directly after the game. There will be a buffet and limited bar. There will be holiday gifts for veterans who attend.

This is not a fundraiser. It's just a fun way to bring some holiday cheer to our veterans, and bring the people who take care of them together.

Maloney joins veterans to unveil Purple Heart Commemorative Coins at Castle Point campus

Rep. Sean Patrick Maloney (NY-18) recently joined local veterans and leaders from the National Purple Heart Honor Mission and Purple Heart Hall of Honor at the Castle Point VA to unveil the design of the Purple Heart Commemorative Coins, which will be produced as a result of Rep. Maloney's bill, The National Purple Heart Hall of Honor Commemorative Coin Act.

"We can never do enough to thank the veterans who put their lives on the line to protect and defend our nation. But, we can ensure their service and sacrifices are never forgotten. That is why, for years, I have led the effort create the Purple Heart Commemorative Coins, which will ensure our veterans stories are preserved for generations to come," said Maloney. "Today, we finally unveiled the design of the Purple Heart Commemorative Coins which will forever honor the service of America's Purple Heart recipients and support the critical work done at the National Purple Heart Hall of Honor to tell their stories."

The National Purple Heart Hall of Honor Commemorative Coin Act was signed into law on Dec. 22, 2020.

The law authorizes the U.S. Treasury to mint $5 gold coins, $1 silver coins, and half-dollar clad coins at the United States Mint at West Point for the 2021 year. After production costs are recouped by the U.S. Treasury, proceeds from sales of the coin will be directed to the National Purple Heart Hall of Honor, Inc.

Honor's mission is to collect and preserve the stories of Purple Heart recipients from all branches of service and across generations to ensure that all recipients are remembered and serves as a living memorial to their sacrifice.

The National Purple Heart Hall of Honor is operated by the New York-New Jersey Palisades Interstate Park Commission. The hall's work is supported by the National Purple Heart Honor Mission, a 501c3 nonprofit organization whose goal is to honor America's Purple Heart recipients, through various outreach and educational programs, including promoting visitation at the Hall of Honor. The National Purple Heart Honor Mission also undertakes other forms of outreach to honor the nation's estimated two million Purple Heart recipients, such as the Purple Heart Patriot Project that brings Purple Heart recipients from across the country to the New York for a multi-day tribute program.

FATAL CRASH IN RHINEBECK

On Nov. 27, the New York State Police in Rhinebeck began investigating a fatal motor vehicle crash on State Route 9G in the Town of Rhinebeck.

Initial investigation indicates Jared T. Hammerling, age 29, of Hyde Park, operating a 1997 Honda Civic northbound on State Route 9G just south of Slate Quarry Road, crossed the double yellow lines for unknown reasons and struck a southbound 2018 Subaru Outback.

The Subaru Outback was then rear-ended by a southbound 2019 Honda Ridgeline. The operator and passenger of the Subaru Outback were transported by EMS to MidHudson Regional Hospital for non-life-threatening injuries.

Unfortunately, Jared Hammerling was pronounced deceased on scene. This investigation remains ongoing.

A Tourist Christmas

Tree farms attract many visitors to Dutchess during the holiday season.

James Bishop drove up from Sag Harbor, Long Island to cut down a Christmas tree. He does it every year, ever since his sister moved to Rhinebeck. “Christmas has become too commercial,” says James. He enjoys the traditional Mid-Hudson Valley Christmas, especially the Sinterklaas event in Rhinebeck. James and I were warming ourselves by the fire pit at Battenfeld’s Christmas Tree Farm in Red Hook (or more specifically, Rock City) early on a chilly Saturday morning. I was waiting to meet up with a film crew from Dutchess Tourism. James was about to set up a pop-up tent, where his extended family would be spending the day “tailgating” in the Battenfeld parking lot, and cutting two trees. The film crew was late so I hunted down Fred, the “son” in the official company name – F.W. Battenfeld and Son Wholesale Growers. He was bunching anemones in a nearby shed, midst a cluster of ladies putting together holiday centerpieces and wreaths. Battenfeld’s was a vegetable and cattle farm until Fred’s grandfather jumped into the violet craze that was sweeping the nation around 1907. Fragrant bunches of cut violet flowers were the fashion item of the day, and northern Dutchess County became the headquarters of an industry that featured hundreds of glass greenhouses up and down Route 9G, still called

Violet Avenue today. As the violet fashion waned (as all fashions do), Battenfeld’s pivoted to become a world-renowned grower and breeder of hybrid anemones. Fred’s dad started a Christmas tree farm, selling his first tree for a dollar in 1956. Nowadays the farm is home to 120,000 trees on 100 acres. Which brings us to Saturday morning, December 3. When the film crew arrived, I met up with Melaine Rottkamp, president and C.E.O. of Dutchess Tourism. Her mission that day was to create a promotional film about cut-your-own Christmas trees to use in advertisements around the New York City area, and on the Dutchess County YouTube channel. Melaine (pronounced m’lane) is the new Mary Kay Vrba, having taken over the lead role at Dutchess Tourism in June, 2020. (She started as a volunteer 10 years ago). Melaine is bubbling over with enthusiasm as she explains that tourism, which brings half a billion dollars of visitors’ money into the county every year, should be a year-round adventure – from maple syrup, to fresh vegetables, apple picking, leaf peeping, historic parks and estates, art galleries, to cut-your-own Christmas trees. The film crew spent most of the day shooting families enjoying the views, riding the horse-drawn sleigh, listening to bagpipers, visiting Santa and cutting trees. For close ups, they used a couple of families hired expressly for the film – no hassles with personal release agreements, plus the model families provided ethnic diversity, and you could tell they were having a blast.

By noontime the scene was really happening. Tractors were buzzing up and down the hills, hauling trees to be strapped to car roofs. Hot cocoa and cookies were a big hit. A dozen tents were set up in the tailgating lot, where people grilled hot dogs and relaxed in beach chairs. Fred came down from the anemone greenhouse with his son Lance, who is the farm manager, and daughter Morgan, to meet Melaine and the film crew. He told us that 2,500 families cut trees on one day last week – the Saturday after Thanksgiving.

Battenfeld’s is open every day, 8 a.m.-4 p.m., until Christmas. For more info, look up www.christmastreefarm.us, or go to the Dutchess County Conell Cooperative Extension website for a list of all 18 Dutchess County cut-your-own tree farms.

By the way, I’ve heard that woodchucks are not a big problem during cut-your-own Christmas tree season, since they hibernate during the winter. Unless a tourist falls into one of their holes.

Local student to appear in Eastside Studio production of ‘Miracle on 34th Street’

Lilly Martin, an 11-year-old experienced actress, is scheduled to play the part of Susan Walker in the Eastside Studio Theater production of “Miracle on 34th Street,” being presented on Dec. 11 at 7:30 p.m. and Dec.12 at 3 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall of the Freedom Plains United Presbyterian Church on Rt. 55 in Lagrangeville.

Lilly has studied with several professional training programs, including Denise Summerford’s Broadway Arts Collective Workshops. She has played major characters in over 10 productions, and she has appeared on Apple TV and Hallmark television. Some of her stage credits include the roles of Annie and Matilda in the Random Farms Theater, and The Cat in the Hat in the musical “Seussical” at the Beacon Performing Arts Center.

The role of Susan Walker is one that young actresses have always coveted since Susan is the major character who must come to believe in the magic of Christmas. Kris Kringle, played by John Paul Porter, is the unlikely Santa Claus who will create the miracle in this iconic holiday classic, and the joy of the story is how this child comes to love Christmas and all it stands for.

Joining Lilly is veteran Broadway

actress Nancy Auffarth. She is a favorite performer with Eastside Studio Theater, the recently activated company, originally known as the Queen City Stage.

Auffarth appeared on Broadway and the National Tour of “On the Twentieth Century” and in regional theaters such as Paper Mill Playhouse, St. Louis Muni Opera, The Actors’ Theater of Louisville and many others. In “Miracle on 34 Street” she will play Doris Walker, another character who must eventually come to believe in Kris Kringle as the real Santa Claus.

The holiday classic will be performed by additional versatile actors, including Deborah Coconis, Andrew Joffe, Glen Macken, Deidre Sepp and Patrick Spaulding. In addition to Lilly, the children and teen roles will be created by Austin Miller and John Ryan.

Heading the production as director is Marie Hasenpflug. She is familiar to local theatergoers from the many roles she has played locally in regional theaters and a few Off-Broadway theaters. Currently she can be seen as Sadie in “Small Time” on Amazon under her professional name, Maria Hasen.

Arts Mid-Hudson event to highlight groundbreaking work of its first folklorist

As part of the 20th anniversary of the Folk Arts Program at Arts Mid-Hudson, the broad-reaching work of its first folklorist, Jean Crandall, will be the focus of a discussion. Join Arts Mid-Hudson on Wednesday, Dec. 15, from 7 to 9 p.m. as folklorists discuss the program that Crandall built from 1998 to 2004.

Register at <http://weblink.donorperfect.com/Crandall>.

Under the umbrella of Dutchess County Arts Council (now Arts Mid-Hudson), Crandall became the first staff folklorist for the organization. Previously, Ellen McHale had done vital consulting work in the area laying the foundation for Crandall's work and that of subsequent folklorists Eileen Condon, Polly Adema and Elinor Levy.

Crandall built on that foundation, reaching out to the many ethnic communities in Dutchess County and beyond including but not limited to the Latino, Black, South Asian Indian and Ukrainian populations.

Join folklorist Elinor Levy along with folk artists Ray Watkins, Kantham Chatlapalli and others, as well as folklore colleagues as they remember and honor Crandall's legacy. This event will be recorded and uploaded to social media.

The Arts Mid-Hudson Folk Arts Program researches the arts and traditions of the region's rich cultural, ethnic, religious and occupational heritages. Through educational and public programs like Kakizome, the Folk Arts Program shares these traditions. The program is open to ideas and suggestions about how to assist in celebrating your community's heritage.

Arts Mid-Hudson is the pre-eminent nonprofit arts service organization serving the Mid-Hudson region. Since 1964 its initiatives have engaged and promoted the arts benefiting the region's artists, arts organizations and communities. Arts Mid-Hudson provides vision and leadership to support thriving and diverse arts in the Mid-Hudson region.

For more information about Arts Mid-Hudson and future art events, sign up for the monthly E-newsletter at www.artsmidhudson.org.

Lyceum to offer free Christmas movies Dec. 11

Lyceum Cinemas, Rhinebeck Bank and Mid- Hudson Valley Federal Credit Union along with local merchants of Red Hook are once again sponsoring free Christmas movies for children and their families on Saturday, Dec. 11, in conjunction with a food drive to aid needy families in the area.

Now in the 30th year of hosting this annual event, the Lyceum has once again decided to offer two films for attendees to choose from.

"Prancer," rated G, starring Sam Elliott and Cloris Leachman, is a story about a wounded reindeer and a precocious 8-year-old girl. They form an everlasting bond in this tender holiday drama about true devotion and friendship.

"National Lampoon's Christmas Vacation," rated PG13, stars Chevy Chase, Beverly D'Angelo and Randy Quaid. Clark Griswold (Chase) wants to have a perfect family Christmas, so he pesters his wife and children, as he tries to make sure everything is in line.

Both films will be offered at 10:15 a.m. on Dec. 11, and upon entry everyone may choose which film they prefer to see.

Admission is free, but tickets must be obtained in advance from any of the following local merchants: Rhinebeck Bank (Red Hook branch), Minuteman Press, Subway, Mid- Hudson Valley Credit Union (Red Hook branch), Griff's Southside Deli, Red Hook T's, Village Pizza III, The Bagel Shoppe, Historic Village Diner, Ben & Gracies & Charlie O's Restaurant.

Santa will be on hand at the Lyceum when the doors open at 9 a.m. to talk to the children.

Everyone who attends the movie is asked to bring a non-perishable food item for collection by the Dutchess County Community Action Agency office in Red Hook for distribution to needy families in the area.

Those who do not plan to attend a movie, but might wish to donate food items, may do so after 12:30 p.m. on any day through Dec. 11.

Lyceum Cinemas is at 7270 S. Broadway in Red Hook. Call (845) 758-3322 for more information.

Christmas dinner

Make it special, but leave time to savor the holiday as much as the meal.

In my family, we celebrate on Christmas Eve the way many do on Christmas Day: We go to church in the evening and go Home (that would always be my parents' house) to open our gifts. I love our tradition in all its warmth, exchanging presents by the fire, the glow of the tree, carols playing softly and the love and closeness of family.

Christmas morning is a special breakfast, again just with immediate family, and opening our stockings, which are always stuffed full and overflowing into bags set beneath them on the floor. The rest of the day is relaxing and then dinner together.

You might be thinking this is a bit of a letdown, that by cramming the best parts of Christmas into the night before takes all the magic and fun out of it. But the opposite is true. Having all of Christmas Day to just be together peacefully is absolutely a gift in itself. As children, the excitement that comes with the holiday is on a whole other level and the energy that results, while almost as fun for the grownups in the room, can be exhausting for everyone. And all the frantic shopping and preparing and chaos that seems to be the typical precursor for most people? At this point in my life, I'll take the quiet and togetherness.

Over the years the number of people we have for Christmas dinner has whittled down. The usual head count is now four to six. I have the pleasure of making that particular meal, and my menu has run the gamut from roast goose with fruit compote (never again) to classic crown roast (probably not again any time soon). But those were years ago when we had a slightly bigger crowd and I, frankly, had more ambition.

These days we keep things simpler. Not that it isn't still special, but the menu will be one that doesn't require hours in the kitchen, which was always kind of my thing. At my mother's insistence I've simplified things and, of course, she was right because now I get to relax, too.

If you can, or want to, follow suit, I suggest choosing recipes that can be made ahead or that can be cooked along with the main dish. A treat for us is beef since it's rare (no pun intended) that we have a roast any other time; and with so many cuts out there, you can get the size and quality that you need. Last year we had a pork roast, which only needed to be seasoned and put in the oven for a few hours and so fit the easy part. But this year I'm opting for some tender, flavorful beef. You might be thinking filet mignon, but you'd be off the mark.

Filet mignon is special, to be sure, and it's been the star of a few Christmas dinners past; but if I'm honest, it isn't the most flavorful cut out there. For tenderness and flavor without breaking the bank, spoon roast is the answer. It's so tender, in fact, that it's said you can cut it with a spoon, hence the name. It's actually a top sirloin roast, so if your butcher doesn't have it labeled as spoon roast, look or ask for that.

As far as prep goes, there's nothing fancy you need to do at all. Season with salt and pepper, maybe some garlic, place it in a roasting pan with some liquid (water is just fine) in the bottom and roast, uncovered, in a preheated 350 degree oven for 12-15 minutes per pound until done. And by done I mean medium-rare. This is a tender cut of beef and overcooking it won't do it any favors. Oh, and this might be a good time to remind you to put MEAT THERMOMETER on your Christmas list, because cooking any meat to a specific temperature is safest and best.

Back to medium-rare ... Most spoon (or top sirloin) roasts will be 3-5 pounds on average, so it should be to temp in under two hours. And the temp you want? A meat thermometer placed in the thickest part of the roast after cooking for 40-45 minutes should read 125-130 degrees. It will continue to cook after it's out of the oven. But just as important as cooking it to the right temperature is waiting before you jump in with the knife. When you remove it from the oven, place it on a cutting board (without puncturing it, so no meat forks please. You can leave it in the pan, too.) and loosely tent it with foil. Then let it rest that way for 15-20 minutes. No really. I mean it! You'll thank me if you didn't already know this.

Why rest? If you were to carve the roast when it's hot, all those lovely, flavorful juices end up being wasted on your cutting board. Great for making gravy, sure, but not for a tender, juicy roast. Resting, and therefore cooling slightly, gives those juices time to soak back into the meat and essentially being redistributed throughout. Don't worry – you'll still have enough to make a sauce!

If you want sauce, that is. Use some of that juice to make a gravy, pour it into a pitcher to serve au jus or add it to sauteed mushrooms with a little butter and red wine. Serve your roast with your favorite vegetables (I'll be making creamed spinach and roasted Brussels sprouts), potatoes your favorite way (I'll roast baby potatoes at the same time as the meat). For dessert we'll have crème brulee, which, in addition to being a favorite, can be made days ahead.

I look as forward to our family Christmas now as I did when I was little, but for different reasons. It's not about the presents we wrap nowadays. For me, it's a different kind of gift, one that is lovingly made by hand and heart, is delicious without taken much time (if I do it right) and is the perfect ending to a perfect day spent with the people I love most. Have yourself a merry little Christmas!

The heavy lines indicate areas, called cages, from one to five squares in size. Fill each cage with unique digits, counting up from 1. So for example a 2-square cage contains the numbers 1 and 2; and a 5-square cage contains the numbers from 1 to 5. Adjacent (touching) squares, even ones that touch diagonally, may never contain the same number.

Fatal crash in Dover

On Nov. 30, the New York State Police in Dover began investigating a fatal motor vehicle crash on State Route 22 in the Town of Dover at approximately 6:30 p.m.
Initial investigation indicates a 2012 Hyundai Accent operated by David C. Elwell, age 51, of Pawling, was northbound on State Route 22 south of North Nellie Hill Road and entered the southbound lane for unknown reasons. Elwell struck a southbound 2003 GMC Envoy which was subsequently rear-ended by a 2019 Hino truck.
Unfortunately, David Elwell was pronounced deceased on scene by responding paramedics.
Three occupants of the GMC Envoy were transported to MidHudson Regional Hospital with non-life-threatening injuries. The Hino truck operator was evaluated at the scene by Northern Dutchess Paramedics.

This investigation remains ongoing.
The Hudson Valley Chapter of the American Red Cross announced that volunteers provided immediate emergency aid to two people after one of the vehicles smashed into their home on Brady Place in Dover Plains.
The Red Cross provided financial assistance which can be used for necessities such as shelter, food, and clothing to two adults. Volunteers also offered emotional support. In the coming days, Red Cross staff and volunteers will remain available to help those affected by the incident as they navigate the road to recovery.

Jan. 4 new deadline for FEMA assistance for Hurricane Ida recovery application

The deadline for homeowners, renters, and businesses to apply for Hurricane Ida recovery assistance from FEMA has been extended until Tuesday, January 4, 2022. Those who have already applied need not apply again. One should apply to FEMA even if one has insurance. Disaster assistance may include grants to help pay for temporary housing and essential home repairs as well as other serious disaster-related needs such as medical and dental expenses, transportation, childcare, and moving and storage expenses.

To apply for FEMA assistance, visit DisasterAssistance.gov, use the FEMA mobile app or call the FEMA Helpline at 800-621-3362.

FEMA’s Individual Assistance program includes grants for repairs and for rent of alternative housing, low-interest disaster loans from the SBA and grants for other serious unmet needs. Learn more at fema.gov.

Dutchess County received a major disaster declaration in late September, following Hurricane Ida’s estimated $2.5 million in damage to public assets and municipal facilities earlier that month. The County received the additional Individual Assistance declaration in October, which will help homeowners and businesses recover from more than an estimated $1 million worth of damage to private homes, apartments, and businesses so far.

County residents, businesses urged to take internet speed survey

As part of “Dutchess Invests,” Dutchess County Government’s program announced in June to prioritize the one-time funding allocated through the Federal Government’s American Rescue Plan (ARP), Dutchess County Executive Marc Molinaro announced the county’s High-Speed Internet Access Survey is the county’s first step in investing $1 million of the funds in critical communications infrastructure.

Dutchess County residents, nonprofits and business owners, whether with or without Internet access, are asked to complete the survey to help determine the quality and quantity of high-speed internet, often referred to as broadband, available throughout the county.

High-speed internet technology has revolutionized the way services are provided and business is conducted globally by improving communication and the speed at which information flows. From school districts adopting hybrid learning to healthcare offices offering virtual telehealth visits to government and nonprofit agencies providing the high-quality critical services many Dutchess County residents rely on, high-speed internet’s utility touches all aspects of residential and commercial life.

Due to numerous Internet Service Providers serving different parts of Dutchess County, reliably identifying gaps in service is challenging. Similar surveys, such as those conducted by New York State and the Town of Stanford, are being circulated; however, it is important to also complete the county’s survey to help build a more comprehensive map and identify under-served and un-served areas as well as barriers that may be preventing access to high-speed Internet service.

After collecting basic information such as address and type of location (home or business), the survey will ask users with Internet access to complete an optional “speed test” that will accurately measure the upload and download speeds in their home or office. The speed test should be completed on a device connected to the internet or wi-fi at the location to be tested. For those without Internet access, the survey can be completed without the speed test on any connected device, or a paper version of the survey is also available.

Additionally, to assist those with limited or no Internet access, the county is partnering with local libraries as well as Senior Friendship Centers. Contact the Department of Emergency Response at (845) 486-2080 or email broadband@dutchessny.gov for assistance or to obtain a paper copy of the survey.

The survey is being conducted in coordination with NYSTEC, an independent technology consulting firm. The firm will use results from the survey to develop a strategic plan, which will be released in summer 2022 and will be used as an investment road map for the county to address infrastructure and access needs and areas for improvement.

To take the survey and learn more about the County’s High-Speed Internet Access Initiative as well as the importance of broadband access for all, visit dutchessny.gov/highspeedinternet.

Lacan Reading Group returns to Morton Library Dec. 10

After a two-year hiatus, the Lacan Reading Group will return to Morton Memorial Library with a reading of Jacques Lacan’s Seminar of 1971-1972, which he titled, not without humor, “...Or Worse: The Knowledge of the Psychoanalyst.” The reading will be held on Friday, Dec. 10, at 4 p.m., at the library, located at 82 Kelly St. in Rhinecliff.

This seminar combines the weekly readings given at the Pantheon to a large audience, with a private seminar given the night before to a select group at Saint Anne Hospital. Together the seminar marks a turning point in Lacan’s thought. In these later teachings Lacan has abandoned his efforts at revisioning Freud’s own more didactic teachings – which had gone so awry in their dispersal to the next generation of followers – and is working through his own more radical position regarding the human subject. At the heart of Seminar XIX emphasizing “Oneness” is the explosive aphorism “there is no sexual relationship.”

As Jacques Alain Miller says in his introduction to the English edition, “Everything he has already taught you is here, and yet everything is new, overhauled, topsy turvy.”

This is a fun ride; delightful, and at the same time resounding with insight in the workings of the human subject.

The group will be reading Lacan’s two weekly seminars in chronological order, so they will hear both his overview as well as what is reserved for his private audience.

The meetings, held Fridays at 4 p.m., are open to those interested. In addition to the weekly meetings, Dr. Anna McLellan will create a blog, building it around key points addressed each week as well as other readings that complement Lacan’s teachings.

Call the library at (845) 876-2903 for more information.

56 firearms turned in during gun buyback

New York Attorney General Letitia James announced that 56 firearms were turned in to law enforcement at a gun buyback event hosted by her office and the Poughkeepsie Police Department. The Office of the Attorney General (OAG) accepts — with no questions asked — working and non-working, unloaded firearms in exchange for compensation on site. Last week’s event — which marks the last OAG gun buyback this year — is a part of Attorney General James’ initiative to combat gun violence and protect New Yorkers throughout the state. In 2021, Attorney General James recovered nearly 2,100 guns from 18 buyback events and other measures that were held throughout the entire state. To date, Attorney General James has taken nearly 2,700 firearms out of communities through gun buyback events and other efforts since taking office in 2019.

Last week’s community gun buyback resulted in the collection of 56 guns, including 15 handguns, 33 shotguns and rifles, 6 assault rifles, and 2 non-working guns. Since 2013, the OAG has hosted gun buyback events throughout New York state and has successfully collected nearly 4,700 firearms.

In exchange for the firearms, the OAG offered monetary compensation, in the form of prepaid gift cards, when an unloaded gun was received and secured by an officer on site.

“Over the past year, areas throughout New York state have experienced record high levels of gun violence and devastation,” said Attorney General James. “In an effort to crack down on this violence and protect our communities, we held 18 gun buybacks and successfully took nearly 2,100 guns off the streets. Every gun that is turned in at our gun buybacks is a potential tragedy averted and a potential life saved. I thank the Poughkeepsie Police Department and our other partners in law enforcement for their invaluable support and collaboration in keeping our neighborhoods safe.”

Legislature adopts 2022 Budget

The 2022 Dutchess County Budget was adopted with bipartisan approval of the Dutchess County Legislature on Thursday, Dec. 2, with more than $20 million in annual tax relief, including the largest property tax decrease in county history, as well as the elimination of sales tax on clothing and footwear items up to $110.

Several legislative amendments were made to County Executive Marc Molinaro's Proposed County Budget to further increase grant program funding, including not-for-profit infrastructure projects, Fire and Safety equipment for local emergency services as well as the popular Learn, Play, Create: Supporting Our Kids grant program.

As previously announced, the 2022 County Budget expands and enhances county services and programs that residents rely on. The budget includes new initiatives addressing mental health and substance use, among others, while continuing critical programs for children, families, seniors and veterans, as well as funding for County parks and other vital programming.

Legislative Amendments to the 2022 County Budget include:

- $1 million increase to the Department of Planning and Development's Agency Partnership Grant Program (APG) for not-for-profit infrastructure projects.
- $2 million increase to the Department of Planning and Development's Municipal Innovation Grant Program (MIG), including:

Expanded Fire/Safety grant opportunities focused on one-time equipment and capital investments.

Additional grant opportunities for community projects

- $500,000 increase to the popular Learn, Play, Create grant program to provide opportunities for youth in sports, libraries and arts.

- $500,000 increase to the Department of Community & Family Services Youth Services Division focused on youth violence in schools.

- $88,000 increase to the Department of Behavioral & Community Health for additional recovery coaches.

- $50,000 increase to the Department of Community & Family Services to create new competitive grant program to assist destinations with improving access and experience for those with special needs.

- $50,000 increase to Division of Veterans' Services to expand the HERO program for housing, employment and events for Dutchess County veterans.

The above amendments, as well as additional staffing support to the Legislature, were funded with appropriations from the county's General Fund Balance. The county's unassigned fund balance increased more than $3 million to just over $60 million in the 2020 year-end audited financial statement and, because Molinaro's proposed budget did not appropriate any fund balance, the amended appropriations will have little impact, keeping Dutchess County's fiscal foundation solid for the future.

The adoption of the 2022 Dutchess County Budget followed several town hall forums, including a countywide telephone town hall, during which residents had the opportunity to speak with Molinaro to learn about the details of the budget, ask questions and share their feedback.

The budget, with amendments, will now be forwarded to Molinaro for review and signature. The final step in the 2022 Dutchess County Budget process – override consideration of any amendment vetoes by the County Executive and the adoption of the tax levy – will be on Monday, Dec. 13, at the Dutchess County Legislature's Board meeting.
