Brain surgery survivor Torres turns to life of 'giving back'

By Rich Thomaselli

It's a special anniversary for Joe Torres. It's been 10½ years since the Wappingers Falls resident was given 10 years to live. He had a tumor in his brain that was bleeding, and he was initially misdiagnosed as having a stroke. Once the diagnosis of a brain tumor was confirmed, he went through a 13½-hour surgery.

That was at Columbia-Presbyterian Hospital in New York City.

Today, he and his family and his doctors are marking a milestone. He appeared in a commercial that will debut next year in which he praises the staff of the hospital. It was something that would have been unthinkable even five years ago. But Torres is resilient and has surrounded himself with an entire community of supporters.

"I wouldn't be alive if it wasn't for them," he said.

Today, he is a beloved bus driver for the Arlington School District. Back then, he worked for a large commercial bank and said he found himself mumbling when speaking with clients. And he had some severe facial drooping. With the urging and support of his wife, Selina Wesley-Torres, who is a registered nurse, he has found a new purpose in life with the children.

"When people ask me what I do," he said, "I tell them that I help protect and deliver our greatest asset ever."

To that end, he and his fellow bus drivers have helped raise funds for the Children's Home in Poughkeepsie, as well as the Grace Smith House.

Torres has always been an advocate for Columbia-Presbyterian and, in fact, through his social media, the hospital contacted him and asked him to appear in the new commercial.

Mitten program makes sure children receive a holiday gift

The Mitten program, where one adopts a family for the holidays, was a huge success this year at Fishkill Elementary School in the Wappingers Central School District, according to an organizer. The event will culminate this week, when the gifts will be organized, wrapped and distributed to the families.

Melinda Potter, who is the school nurse at Fishkill Elementary and organizer of the Mitten program, said this year the program is serving 15 families.

Potter explained, "This program is staff and community driven. We make it possible for the magic of Christmas to happen for those who may not be able to this year. Students do not know about this program as some parents need these gifts for Santa to leave under the tree."

Carol Drive bridge now open in East Fishkill - six months ahead of schedule

By Kristine Coulter

Six months earlier than the estimated completion date, the bridge on Carol Drive is now open. A small ribbon-cutting ceremony was held earlier this month in East Fishkill in the neighborhood which has nearly 70 homes.

The $3.5 million dollar project was funded 80 percent with federal funds, 15 percent with state funds and 5 percent with town funds, said Nicholas D'Alessandro, supervisor for the Town of East Fishkill.

"Traffic engineers HVEA were a tremendous help, along with our Town engineer Scott Bryant and his staff," remarked D'Alessandro.

The supervisor also noted New York State assemblyman and senator Anil Beephan and Rob Rolison assisted with getting funding for the project. Beephan attended the ribbon cutting ceremony.

Beephan thanked residents for their patience. Now, he said, "there is a new, safe bridge for residents."

Ribbon-cutting ceremony celebrates $3.5 million project completion

Lydia Biskup, from Rolison’s office, presented a commendation for the work done on Carol Dr.

D’Alessandro thanked county legislators John Metzger and Steve Caswell who represent East Fishkill in the Dutchess County Legislature.

Jacob Crowell, with OCS Industries in Poughkeepsie, remarked it was “definitely a pleasure” working with town officials and the engineers on the bridge project. “They all did their part,” he said.

Crowell said “the longest part [of the project] was getting Phase 1 done. There was a huge existing bridge” to deal with, which took about four months, he said.

There was also flooding – a lot of flooding – which occurred after a storm in July.

“The flooding definitely impacted us. Trying to pick up the pieces that were left - that was the most difficult part,” Crowell stated.

Luckily, he said, there were abutments that were not destroyed, and rebar left.

“I think it looks wonderful. It looks nice for the community. They don’t have to worry about the bridge being closed anymore. They can come and go now to and from work and home (easily),” said Crowell.

35 students to receive gifts from Mitten program at Fishkill Elementary

Potter stated, “This program started before my employment as the nurse at Fishkill Elementary School. I was given the opportunity to continue the program and decided to reach as many people as I could who needed assistance.”

As for what Potter would like to say to anyone who has donated to the program, “A huge thank you! This program would not be successful without all of the support I receive! Thank you to the staff and parents of Fishkill Elementary School, the Fishkill Rotary Club, Lucielle’s Floral, The Town of Fishkill PBA, The Fishkill Elementary School PTA and Ann Aquanita (Elks Ladies Auxiliary).”

WCSD Superintendent of Schools Dr. Dwight Bonk commented, “A number of our schools in our District adopt families at this time of the year to assist those families throughout our community who require assistance. The Mitten Program at Fishkill ES is one example of how staff give back to our community. They are to be commended for expressing their care and concern by their participation in these types of events that are of benefit to our students and families.”

What message does she hope this program sends?

“I hope to share that this is the season of giving! I hope to make the community aware what wonderful people we have that are willing to give to those less fortunate,” Potter remarked.

Potter noted she did an outreach to families and determined needs and then she asked for a wish list.

“Each child served is guaranteed 4 gifts from our program. We strive to obtain 100% of wishes received,” said Potter. “I am proud to say that we have gone above 100% this year and will be providing the magic of Christmas to 35 children this year.

“This program is my pride and joy! I am so fortunate to be able to ease parents’ burdens as well as put smiles on so many faces each year with the help of all my supporters,” exclaimed Potter.

Urban trail connecting City, Town of Poughkeepsie named 'Marcus J. Molinaro Northside Line'

U.S. Congressman Marc Molinaro, former Dutchess County Executive, recently attended the ceremony for the urban trail connecting the City and Town of Poughkeepsie, which is called the "Marcus J. Molinaro Northside Line."

-Courtesy photo

The first phase of Dutchess County's urban trail project in the City and Town of Poughkeepsie is open for public use and touting a new official name – the Marcus J. Molinaro Northside Line (MJM Northside Line) – honoring Dutchess County's seventh County Executive for his commitment to Dutchess County Parks and his service to the County.

Dutchess County Executive William F.X. O'Neil announced the new name Dec. 16 at a gathering on the trail that included Rep. Molinaro, his predecessor, as well as community leaders and stakeholders –including Scenic Hudson, Walkway Over the Hudson, New York State Office of Parks, Recreation and Historic Preservation and Marist College – to celebrate a soft opening of the trail in the City and Town of Poughkeepsie and spread the word that the trail is now open for year-round use.

The MJM Northside Line is a 16- to 22-foot-wide, dual-lane pathway for pedestrians and cyclists stretching 1.2 miles from the new Hudson Heritage Plaza in the Town of Poughkeepsie to Parker Avenue (State Route 9G) in the City of Poughkeepsie. The trail connects many community assets, providing easy access between housing, jobs, schools, businesses, hospitals and parks. The trail features lighting and is monitored by security cameras and law enforcement patrols to enable safe, 24-hour use, and will be plowed, as necessary, during the winter months. Other amenities include secure bike parking, bench seating and bike-repair stations.

County Executive O'Neil said, "This trail is a fantastic new connection for residents, visitors and students alike. For those looking to save on gas, the Northside Line is a fast, safe path to bike or walk to work or school. And for those looking to get more exercise, this split-use trail is a perfect way to safely connect to our popular WRS Dutchess Rail Trail and the world-renowned Walkway Over the Hudson. Thanks to the vision and dedication of our own former County Executive, Marc Molinaro, as well as community stakeholders, we are proud to bring this new kind of trail – which will be open, lit and monitored 24/7/365 – to fruition."

Initially known as the Dutchess County Urban Trail project, the MJM Northside Line was constructed along a former CSX rail line that was purchased by Scenic Hudson as part of its mission to increase public use trails throughout the county. Scenic Hudson transferred ownership of the property to the County in late-2019 and, following an extensive public outreach process that informed the final design in partnership with Scenic Hudson, construction began in mid-2022. Construction of the spur between Parker Avenue and West Cedar Avenue was completed in 2022, with the remaining spur completed earlier this fall. The project, which totaled $11.6 million, was funded in part by federal American Rescue Plan (ARP) dollars.

"We were proud to work closely with CSX to secure this land and then turn it over to Dutchess County - it is gratifying to see this project come to realization. The Northside Line, going past our future Scenic Hudson headquarters and community space, is so important to Poughkeepsie, providing an important link for the City's northside neighborhoods, where many households face economic challenges and do not have access to a household vehicle. Being able to walk or bike to educational resources, recreation, groceries and more is vital," said Seth McKee, Executive Director for The Scenic Hudson Land Trust, Inc. and Land Programs.

"Projects like this help close the 'Nature Gap' – a term coined by the Center for American Progress to detail the inequity and lack of access to open space in the nation's cities – bringing open space into neighborhoods. We are proud to continue to work alongside with the County, City of Poughkeepsie to bring open space into neighborhoods, by building climate smart infrastructure and ensuring equity and nature are front and center," McKee continued.

As part of the event, the County also highlighted the City of Poughkeepsie Fire Department and its new Utility Terrain Vehicle (UTV), which was acquired with funding from the County's Municipal Innovation Grant (MIG) and will be used along the trail, among other areas, to assist with faster emergency medical response for trail users. To expedite response time, the vehicle is stored in a shed adjacent to the trail that was also funded by the department's MIG award.

"We appreciate Dutchess County stepping up once again and delivering a Municipal Innovation Grant to the City of Poughkeepsie," said City of Poughkeepsie Fire Chief Joe Franco. "This grant has allowed us to purchase a vehicle that will be used to protect the safety and health of people, residents and visitors alike, who are using the rail trail and might require medical assistance. The Fire Department is grateful for the county partnership, and the timing is perfect, as the county expands the rail trail with a northside spur."

The trail's new name provides recognition of the numerous contributions of Rep. Molinaro, who during his 11 years as Dutchess County Executive, championed historic investment and expansion of Dutchess County's parks system. From improvements at Quiet Cove Riverfront Park, Bowdoin Park and Wilcox Memorial Park, to purchasing and developing properties such as Camp Nooteeming in Pleasant Valley, the Lake Walton Preserve in East Fishkill and the Northside Line. His staunch support of a wide range of recreational avenues for residents of all abilities fit his personal motto, "Marc's for Parks!" From Heritage Financial Park, formerly Dutchess Stadium, to the more than 35 miles of rail trail spanning the county, Rep. Molinaro saw numerous projects to fruition, resulting in positive impacts on residents' lives, creating connections and building opportunities.

Congressman Marc Molinaro said, "Introducing: the Marcus J. Molinaro Northside Line Urban Trail! Thank you, and what an honor. I was proud to have a hand in developing this linear park as County Executive and can't wait to see the connections it makes and potential that's now unlocked - for everyone of every age, background and ability."

The potential next phase of the trail would provide an interface with the Marist College campus, providing connections to residential housing at One Dutchess as well as Upper Landing Park, Waryas Park and the Poughkeepsie Train Station along the Hudson River waterfront.

Marist College officials, including Marist College Executive Vice President Geoff Brackett and Tim Murray, Athletic Director, were also on hand for the event along with members of the Marist track program as well as runners from the Eastern Dutchess Road Runners Club.

According to Marist Executive Vice President Geoffrey Brackett, "This project will have a meaningful impact on all residents of the County, including the students, faculty, and staff at Marist, and is another example of the inclusive, forward-thinking, and well-executed planning by our county's officials. Marist is proud to partner with communities throughout Dutchess County and excited to support initiatives like this that make our community better."

While the trail is considered to be "substantially" complete, there are still finishing touches to be completed including installation of wayfinding signage and permanent, decorative safety railings. A formal ribbon cutting event featuring family-friendly activities will be held in the spring of 2024.

Christmas poems to celebrate the holiday

To the Editor:

Christmas 1958

Christmas is the time of year,
When people start to sing and cheer.
Halls are decorated with mistletoe and holly,
The Christmas dinner is bright and jolly.

While the carolers are outside singing,
The church bells are softly ringing.
For soon on earth they will rejoice,
The Prince of Peace, Gods Only choice.

Hail the Prince who is blessed,
Hail the son of righteousness.
May his birth bring peace for all to see,
The Prince has come to set men free.

Christmas 1994

Christmas is the time of year,
When people start to sing and cheer.
Halls are decorated with boughs of holly,
Children singing, let's be jolly.

Santa will be coming soon,
With his sleigh, he will jump the moon.
Bringing presents to all the girls and boys,
Down the chimney with his sack full of toys.

Christmas is also the time of year,
We celebrate Christ and all his good cheer.
Born in a stable, no room at the inn,
To help the world and cleanse it of sin.

So, when opening presents or trimming the tree,
Remember our savior who died for thee,
Take a moment of silence and say our Lord's Prayer,
So, the spirit of Christmas will always be there.

Remember which legislators 'did the right thing' when it came to voting on pay increase

To the Editor:

I am in agreement with the Dutchess County Conservative Chairman's responses to the Dutchess County Legislators' outrageous raises in his Dec 6, 2023 letter to the editor. Fifteen lawmakers (14 Republicans and 1 Democrat) voted to give themselves a 68% raise. In addition to the raises for legislators, the county executive, county clerk, comptroller and sheriff also got very large raises. Including stipends and higher salaries for the majority and minority whips.

It appears the increased taxes on hotels and sales tax are going into the pockets of those elected instead of being fiscally responsible. They should donate their raises to the homeless or veterans in need. This action along with the excess millions of dollars spent on the Renegades facility upgrades and the County Justice and Transition Center should have been utilized to create a countywide ambulance service.

If you believe you need to have high salaries to attract better quality candidates - you are wrong. Those are the candidates we don't want.

A slight raise along the lines of whatever the employees who work for the county received would have been the right thing to do. It does not matter what party you are in to know that we must elect fiscally responsible candidates.

It is equally important to remember their blatant lack of transparency by adding this as a last-minute amendment to the budget. Actions like these confirm what people normally think of politicians - they are just no good.

I hope the voters remember the names of the fifteen greedy legislators when their terms are up and they ask for your vote again.

To the legislators who voted against this increase, 'thank you' for representing the people and being fiscally responsible.

I hope those who said 'No' don't face any retaliatory actions for doing the right thing for the people.

Dutchess County Sheriff's Office, Dutchess County SPCA team up to assist neglected animals

The Dutchess County Sheriff's Office and Dutchess County SPCA announced a new more extensive partnership to enhance the protection of abused and neglected companion animals in all of Dutchess County. Prior to the partnership, Dutchess County SPCA utilized its own peace officer to investigate allegations of abuse and neglect. It did so under contract to the Sheriff's Office. Under this new arrangement, investigations into alleged abuse and neglect of animals will be conducted directly by the Sheriff's Office, and DCSPCA will spearhead the care of animal victims, assuming responsibility for their housing and medical care, as well as providing medical and forensic evidence for the prosecution of their abusers. This will be the core function of DCSPCA's new Saving Animal Victims with Empathy (SAVE) program.

"We are proud of the cases we've been able to prosecute and the animals we've been able to save," said DCSPCA executive director Lynne Meloccaro, "but in recent years it has become apparent that one humane law officer working in-house at DCSPCA is not sufficient to provide enforcement throughout the entire county. With the extensive resources of the Sheriff's Office, it will be possible to protect animals on a whole new level. DCSPCA will provide the specialized support needed for these cases, including the medical treatment and recovery of abused animals and the collection of the necessary evidence to assist the Sheriff in prosecuting abusers. Our new SAVE program will allow us to focus our effort on the care of animal victims."

Sheriff Kirk Imperati agrees that the enforcement of humane law, and the prosecution of offenders, should be the purview of the county's lead law enforcement agency. "People who harm animals with malicious intent are criminals just as much as people who harm people," he said. "Cases of this sort should be dispatched through this office like other criminal cases. In partnership with DCSPCA and the district attorney's office we will be able to provide greater protection to the companion animals of Dutchess County."

The new arrangement will go into effect January 1, 2024.

Habitat for Humanity of Dutchess receives $18,700 grant from Lowe's

Habitat for Humanity of Dutchess County recently received a $18,700 grant from Lowe's. A portion of the grant money was used to assist a local veteran with getting heat and hot water by installing a new boiler in his house.

Habitat for Humanity of Dutchess County received a $18,700 grant from Lowe's to help support repairs for 8 homes and complete our revitalization project in Fairview Park.

With the support of this grant, Habitat for Humanity of Dutchess County performed repairs for a local veteran, local seniors, and revitalized Fairview Veterans Memorial Park. Included in this grant, the team completed a critical home repair for a local veteran and his family. The family was without heat and hot water. The team worked diligently to repair the heating system and ensured this winter season the family will be warm and safe in their home.

In this veteran's words "Thank you folks for the help in getting the boiler installed! It's working great, and we are enjoying the warmth on cold nights. No more washing my hands in ice-cold water! Wow, it's so great."

The funding from Lowe's is part of a two-year, $6 million donation to Habitat for Humanity International to support home repair and preservation efforts in owner-occupied homes. Through this partnership, more than 75 local Habitat affiliates will complete more than 480 projects this year to address critical health and safety issues in homes across the U.S. Since 2003, Lowe's and Habitat have worked together to help more than 18,000 people build or improve a place to call home.

Marist initiates fundraising for new track and turf facility

By Rich Thomaselli

With the approval of the Board of Trustees, Marist College has embarked on a fundraising campaign to support the construction of a state-of-the-art track and turf field facility.

This is a matching campaign since the school has already donated some money toward the construction.

It will be located on the north end of campus, overlooking the Hudson River.

The project will benefit many of the school's 23 athletic teams, including men's and women's track and field, cross country, lacrosse, and soccer. It will also be used as a recreational space for students, faculty and staff.

Marist's track and field and cross country programs have been around for 60 years, but have never had a true home campus facility. You can often see the school's runners practicing on the campus grounds or on the streets of the town of Poughkeepsie.

"Our teams have achieved an impressive number of school records, as well as conference and regional level success, in the absence of a home field," said coach Pete Colaizzo, who has run the programs for more than 30 years. "A new on-campus track and turf field facility will only further elevate their training, conditioning, and competitiveness, and will attract a wider pool of future recruits to Marist."

The school itself has already kicked in $1 million.

Trustee Tim Tenney said "I'm excited to support our student-athletes through this long overdue project. I encourage others to contribute in any way they can, because this is a win-win that benefits not only Marist Athletics but also the entire community because of how wide-ranging the uses will be for the facility."

His recovery was not easy. He said that for the first 11 months after the surgery, he had severe headaches that rivaled migraines - sometimes worse.

But he persevered and is a respected political activist in the county and a community leader.

Oh, and a well-loved bus driver for the district.

"It's the most rewarding experience I've ever had," said Torres, who once drove a city bus route through the streets of Brooklyn. "I needed to do something different."

So when he saw an advertisement for the need for school bus drivers in the Arlington District, he jumped at it and passed all of the required tests. Still feeling like he had to do more, he organized his fellow bus drivers and became involved in community service. He has even dressed up as Santa Claus himself.

All of this is with the encouragement and support of his wife.

"She did everything," Torres said. "She made all the appointments and came to all the visits. She always encouraged me. She told me to always remember where I am at today, because it's only going to get better in the future."

Though he said his body is still recovering, his mind is fully intact. So with great pride and passion, he is back to his first love.

Children and helping others.

"Kids have always been like my weak point. I will literally put everything on the line for kids," Torres said. "But I wanted

Cary Institute to host Jan. 11 presentation on spongy moths; in-person and virtual

Last summer, this invasive pest chewed up trees across the Hudson Valley. Experts will discuss where it came from, and what happens next.

On Thursday, Jan. 11, at 7 p.m., Cary Institute of Ecosystem Studies will host a presentation on spongy moths, an invasive forest pest that has recently resurged. Outbreaks of very hungry caterpillars have defoliated trees in the Hudson Valley and beyond. Will this happen again in 2024? Will defoliated trees recover? Can we do anything to protect our trees and forests?

This event will feature Cary scientists Clive Jones and Charles Canham, who bring deep expertise on the topic. Jones studied the spongy moth for 30 years as part of a long-term project on Cary's 2,000-acre research campus. Canham has been researching the ecology of Northeastern forests for 40 years.

Spongy moth caterpillars prefer to feed on oak trees but will defoliate a wide variety of deciduous species, and sometimes conifers. Learn where the spongy moth came from, how it was introduced, how it spread, and the history of outbreaks and defoliation in the US. Discover how outbreaks get started and why they collapse. Find out about forest pest impacts now and in the future.

Free and open to all, this hybrid event will feature time for Q&A. Participants are encouraged to submit questions in advance during registration, so they can be woven into the presentation.

Register at EventBrite - search for "The Spongy Moth in Our Yards and Forests (In-person)" - for in-person seating at the Lovejoy Auditorium in Millbrook.

For virtual access, register at EventBrite, but search for "The Spongy Moth in Our Yards and Forests (Virtual)."

New financial literacy proposal to graduate high school receives praise from Jacobson

Assemblymember Jonathan Jacobson (D-104) praised the new State Education Department Blue Ribbon Commission proposal to require financial literacy classes to graduate high school. This requirement mirrors Jacobson's own bill (A2298), according to his office. "Graduating high school seniors should enter adulthood with a basic understanding of personal finances. By requiring financial literacy in public high schools, New York can help ensure that every student, regardless of their current socioeconomic status, is equipped to make informed personal financial decisions," said Jacobson. Jacobson said he is hopeful that this proposal to require financial literacy classes will be adopted when the Board of Regents makes final changes in the spring and will be implemented as soon as possible. To learn more about the Blue Ribbon Commission and New York State graduation requirements, visit nysed.gov/grad-measures.

Reversal of fortune in the wake of the Revolutionary War

By Bill Jeffway

The story of two persons living locally during the colonial and the early American period in northern Dutchess County (the area that by 1824 became the town of Pine Plains) reveals the positive and destructive power of the 1776 American Revolution.

Both men were born at the Manor of Morrisania, today known as the Bronx. Morris Graham (1747–1804) was born into a wealthy, well connected family. His father was one of the nine partners granted thousands of acres of land in both the Upper Nine Partners of northern Dutchess, and the Great Nine Partners, which is a large chunk of central Dutchess County.

Andrew Frazier (ca. 1742–1846) was a person of color tied closely to the Graham family. His name and birth were noted in the family Bible, as enslaved persons sometimes were. A 1755 survey of enslaved persons at Morrisania did not include children under 16 years old, so we cannot be certain that he was enslaved. But it is most likely. Andrew Frazier moved from Morrisania to northern Dutchess County at the same time as Morris Graham.

Both served in the Revolutionary War. Morris Graham was made Colonel. And Andrew Frazier served as a wagon driver, and at times, body servant to Col. Graham. He also patrolled to capture and jail persons thought to be loyal to the King of England.

Morris Graham never married. He had no children. By 1903 Graham's headstone was reported as not found in the small family plot in Deerfield, Oneida County, upstate New York where he moved in 1798 when his farm was sold to pay debts. Today the whole plot is overgrown, lost in a suburban development.

Andrew Frazier had so many descendants, some of whom remain living locally, he was known as "the ancestor." His great-granddaughter, Susan Elizabeth Frazier, was a national voice and advocate for the equal opportunity of women, and persons of color based in New York City.

Andrew Frazier's headstone stands proudly at the family plot in Rhinebeck, visited and cared for today by veterans groups. Several years ago, a group raised money to raise a headstone at the grave of Susan Elizabeth Frazier.

Graham family

From both the earliest Dutch, and subsequent English period of the Hudson Valley, the wealthy elite were granted huge tracts of land. The highest form was the grant of a Manor. The Morris family (as in Morristown, New Jersey) and the Graham family, had intermarried in two successive generations and came to share the Manor at Morrisania.

James Graham, one of the nine Partners mentioned earlier, died at Morrisania in 1767. Upon his death, three of his children (one of whom was Morris Graham), along with Andrew Frazier, quickly moved to what is today Pine Plains to claim thousands of acres granted to their father.

Rectangular lots of roughly 900 acres were randomly allocated to partners. The Graham family was fortunate that two such parcels were adjacent to each other at what would become the center of Pine Plains. Two sons in particular were involved in building houses there: Lewis Graham built in the northern lot and Morris Graham in the southern lot. Both are still standing with the former restored, and the latter not habitable but stabilized.

Morris Graham

The Revolutionary War became a test of patriotism and many in the Graham family stepped forward as officers or in one instance, an aide to Gen. George Washington.

Morris Graham became a colonel in the war but quickly had a setback. Perhaps driven by political motives, in October of 1776 at the famous Battle of White Plains, Graham was court-martialed when he was accused by a Colonel Reed of cowardice, of retreating without firing. Washington called for the court martial to happen quickly. It happened within a few days. Graham was quickly and fully acquitted. And he served in visible and active roles through to the very end of the Revolutionary War. But the incident must have haunted him.

The above map shows two adjacent lots of about 900 acres each that were owned by the Graham family at the time of the American Revolution. Lewis Graham built a house that still stands at the center of Pine Plains, while the house of his brother, Morris Graham, is shown in a 1942 photograph, and is located about one mile south of the village center.

The end of the war was not kind to Morris Graham. Like many wealthy individuals, Graham spent his own money in support of the war effort that was greatly underfunded. By 1798, Morris Graham's stone house and 377-acre farm were being sold off.

He moved north to Deerfield New York where he lived with his sister Arabella and died shortly after, in 1804 at the age of 58.

Andrew Frazier

Frazier may have earned his freedom by serving in the Revolutionary War. Although it took ten years of petitioning, Andrew Frazier was successful in getting a significant pension for his war service, after Congress created the opportunity in 1833.

He became patriarch to a large family that included soldiers in the Civil War, WWI and WWII.

Andrew Frazier had an extraordinary life after the war. He had 11 children.

He was able to buy farmland in Milan, a strip of land that runs between what is now Willow Glen Road and Woody Row Road, building a house there in 1809. His son Robert was able to greatly expand the farm in size and acreage in subsequent years.

Susan Elizabeth Frazier, mentioned earlier, became the first person of color allowed to teach White students in New York City in 1896. She founded and led the Women's Auxiliary of the Harlem Hellfighters in WWII.

As was the tradition, he was buried on his Milan homestead in 1846 with other family members until around 1920, in an effort led by Susan Elizabeth Frazier, the family plot was purchased and set not quite within Section E, the section for persons of color, but adjacent to it, and overlooking it.

With the recent addition of a headstone for Susan Elizabeth Frazier, the family plot has grown to 19 headstones. Andrew Frazier's headstone reads "In the Revolutionary war 1776, In memory of Andrew Frazier who died June 2, 1846 aged 102 years 11 months and 18 days." The words "her voice endures" are engraved on the headstone of Susan Elizabeth Frazier.

These stories remind us that what the historical record maintains, and publishes, and what remains in the collective consciousness and memory of society, is affected by many factors.

VETERANS NEWS WITH ADAM ROCHE

PTSD and the Holidays

The holiday season is a time of gathering with family and friends, often considered a time of goodwill, peace and reflection. For too many veterans, however, that's not the case. For them, the holiday season can be a time of loneliness, isolation and depression because scores of our vets are quietly dealing with Post-traumatic Stress Syndrome, or PTSD.

Most of the public has heard of PTSD. In fact, the expression is so common, many genuinely caring and sympathetic individuals often have only a modest reaction when they hear it; they don't know PTSD is considered a disability under the Americans with Disabilities Act.

Mental health professionals say this disability can develop after going through or witnessing any number of horrendous or life-threatening situations. Personal exposure to, or witnessing life events such as assault, physical or sexual abuse, terrorist attacks and, of course, engaging in the theatre of combat, are just some examples that can cause the condition. PTSD is often debilitating, causing serious problems in one's ability to function in social situations and the workplace, putting severe stress on relationships.

Through my counseling work with hundreds of veterans suffering with a variety of PTSD symptoms, I have seen how tepid – and often unintentional – responses from others causes feelings of shame. When we don't recognize PTSD as a true disability, our veterans may be perceived as weak as they cope with it, causing many to fall into a lifestyle of seclusion and a sense of despair.

Unless a person, or someone close to them, has had close contact with anyone dealing with one or more of the symptoms of PTSD, the condition would understandably seem abstract with little tangible understanding.

Symptoms of PTSD often mimic other forms of clinical anxieties, making it hard to diagnose. Symptoms range from observable traits like a short temper, over-reactions, excessive drinking, mood swings and road rage, to the less overt, such as sadness, inability to express emotion, boredom or a feeling of doom.

These characteristics are often triggered and heightened during the holiday season, causing those suffering to miss out on holiday joy. The expectation of having to be jovial around family and friends heightens the trauma, invoking stress and anxiety. In fact, being around groups is a prime reason bad memories surface in PTSD sufferers, often causing "survivors' guilt" about those they once served with who didn't make it back home.

Having served two terms of active duty in battle, both in Iraq and Afghanistan, I understand this feeling. Even with the years of knowledge and learned skills I have acquired in my work with the Vet 2 Vet program and now as Director of Dutchess County Veterans Services, helping others cope with, and in numerous cases overcome, this mental health condition, I still sometimes feel the effects of my own personal struggle with PTSD resurface. If it were not for the coping strategies I've learned through years of support from my peers, I, too, might struggle a lot more with my own ongoing battle with PTSD.

Statistics show nearly 60 percent of veterans experience mild to severe symptoms of PTSD. With Dutchess County home to some 13,000 veterans, it's likely most people reading this column know someone in their day-to-day life who struggles with some form of PTSD.

My goal in my current role is to teach the public of the trauma many local veterans experienced during their time defending our country, and help open dialogue with their loved ones who may be dealing with PTSD. Explaining its complexity and gravity helps give those struggling full access to the treatment and benefits available to them. There are many service providers available in Dutchess County to help those coping with the disability.

Successfully treating people with PTSD, especially during the holidays, has many levels to it – both clinically and personally. Communicating with those you trust; setting limits on the amount of time spent and the kinds of activities you can handle; taking exercise and mental health breaks; and having a plan in place to cope with anxiety are helpful strategies to practice during this time of year.

Those who have served in the military, going into battle under some of the most dangerous conditions one could imagine, are some of the bravest people I know. Let's help them win their battle with PTSD. We at Veterans Services and Mental Health of America (MHA) want all our vets to know they are not alone.

Please call us at 845-486-2060 for an appointment or learn more at dutchessny.gov/veterans.

Food banks, restaurants team up on 'Holiday Hunger Appeal'

This year, in an effort to make an even bigger impact on lives of individuals and families, the Regional Food Bank of Northeastern New York and Food Bank of the Hudson Valley have teamed up with the New York State Restaurant Association (NYSRA) and local restaurants for its "Holiday Hunger Appeal."

The campaign is the Food Bank's largest and most significant fundraising event of the year. It runs until Christmas Eve.

Participating restaurants have Food Bank signage driving diners to a customized landing page where they can make donations on the spot from their mobile phones. Restaurants on board include Wildfire Grill, 88 Charles Street, Blue Java Coffee and Market, Iron Café, Il Cenocola, Shadows on the Hudson, West Hills Country Club, and Cosimo's. NYSRA has been recruiting members throughout the Food Bank's 23-county coverage area to participate in the campaign. Restaurants can sign up to participate by contacting Kyleigh Cherry at kyleighc@regionalfoodbank.net.

Additionally, a Holiday Hunger

Appeal display has been set up at Woodbury Common Premium Outlets and the Galleria at Crystal Run, and fliers are being distributed at Bethel Woods Center for the Arts during its Peace, Love & Lights month-long event as a way to share the holiday spirit.

"Food insecurity is an issue for millions of New Yorkers 365 days a year. But it is especially difficult during the holiday season. We are incredibly thankful for the participation of local restaurants to help raise the funds needed to put food on the tables of the community members we serve across the Hudson Valley. These efforts can truly make a difference," said Tom Nardacci, CEO of the Regional Food Bank of Northeastern New York.

"Cosimo's Restaurant Group is proud to be a partner for the Regional Food Bank's Holiday Hunger Appeal. We feel very strongly about the Food Bank and its mission," said Nick Citera of Cosimo's Management Group.

"We are extremely proud to participate in this community appeal. We understand how difficult the holidays can be for so many families in our area. Anything we can do to increase awareness and help make a positive change is our honor," said Michael Bonura of Bonura Hospitality Group.

Wonderland

Wonderland Farm is a Rhinebeck tradition.

Steven Lobotsky was sold out of Christmas trees, 43 days before Christmas. Every year, I try to stop at a local cut-your-own tree farm to scare up a story about a local farmer trying to make their way in the world.

But not today. Steven explained that Wonderland Farm can only supply 300 trees each season, and people were buying their trees earlier and earlier every year, a trend that started during the Covid era. All of this year's balsam, canaan and fraser firs had found a home. He will replant a thousand saplings next spring.

I took in the scene – a warm fire, hand-decorated wreaths, families dragging in the last of the trees, followed by the inevitable family dog. I couldn't really write an article about it, since Wonderland Farm was closing for the season. As I was about to say goodbye, I turned and asked, "Say, Steven, how's your dad doing?"

Everyone around the fire perked up at the mention of the iconic John Lobotsky, Jr. "He's doing great. Still living at home, right up the road," Steven said. "You ought to go visit him. He's 97 years old. He'd love to see you."

I tried to call. There was no cell service on the summit of White Schoolhouse Road in Rhinebeck. Steven told me to go up to John's house and walk right in. Which I did.

Steven was correct. John was doing great, and it was as if we hadn't missed a beat. Lounging in his recliner, gripping a pair of divining rods which he uses to direct the flow of water into various ponds and streams, John regaled me with stories about the old days on the farm.

Eighty years ago, before interstate highways and refrigerated trucks, all fresh vegetables were grown locally. Sweet corn, tomatoes, beans, strawberries, and asparagus were the main crops at Wonderland. The harvest was hauled to markets in Poughkeepsie, like Mohican Market on Main Street, or put on trains bound for Manhattan. In the winter,

John and local merchant Sam Ianna would drive their old rack body truck up to the Adirondacks to cut Christmas trees and bring them home to sell in town.

"We made good, honest money," John exclaimed.

John was born a little too late to serve in World War II, so he got a job after the war working for the Department of Environmental Conservation. It seems there was a rabies epidemic among the wild foxes in the Harlem Valley. John and brother Walter were hired to kill foxes – 2,300 of them. He showed me photos to prove it.

Wonderland Farm was founded in 1921, by John's father John Lobotsky Sr., who fled the country Belarus right after the Russian Revolution. In modern parlance he'd be called an asylum seeker.

Lots of immigrants started farming in the Hudson Valley around that time, including my grandfather Ralph Adams. My dad and John Jr. became friends, or more like comrades in arms, as they traded products back and forth, depending on who had too many or too few boxes of tomatoes or bushels of corn. As a teenager, I picked corn at Wonderland when our fields ran low. During a dry summer in the mid-1960s, I remember my dad standing on the side porch staring into the distance.

"Look at those clouds," he cried. "They're headed right over to John Lobotsky's place."

As the vegetable deal lost steam in the 1970s, Wonderland started raising cut flowers – asters and delphiniums, which led to the rise of Wonderland Florist, Nursery and Farm Market in the Village of Rhinebeck, still thriving under the direction of John's daughter Lynn. I stopped by to chat with daughter Susan (there is also daughter Joann) about her experiences growing up on the farm. Susan lives in Texas, but comes "home" to help out at the busy times. She had just returned to the shop after delivering a van load of flower arrangements.

"I used to love picking beans," she told

John Lobotsky Jr.

John and Walter with foxes me, which she started doing at age 8. "You'd be out there dragging your burlap sack, not a worry in the world."

John Lobotsky's wife, Joan, died a few years ago. John's sister Julia, who just turned 100, lives with him. She is a famous scientist, known for her work with the Society for the Study of Reproduction.

There's some confusion about where the name "Wonderland" came from. Possibly because of the wonderful food and flowers the farm produced. A more prosaic version has it that it was a wonder anything would grow at all since the ground was so full of rocks. Perfect for Christmas trees.

Merry Christmas Cookies

Vicki's version of this time-honored treat kicks up the lemon flavor.

Vicki's version of "Betty Crocker's Merry Christmas Cookies" calls for extra-lemony flavor.

-Photos by Vicki Frank Day

My sincerest wish is that you feel the spirit of Christmas. I hope, as you shop and wrap and prepare, that your heart is full because that is a gift you give yourself. If you have managed to hold joy and peace there during this hectic time, then all will be merry and bright and that is a beautiful thing.

I have often written about the true meaning behind this holiday because it gives me hope to think that the magic of Christmas is alive and well, being passed along through the generations through the traditions we keep. As I decorated my tree and began planning this year's menu I was, as always, filled with happiness, warmth and lovely nostalgia, things I find I need now more than ever. It is a time when traditions bring comfort and fill me with love and gratitude.

Of course, food plays a big part for me in all of this and, again, this brings comfort and calms the stress that swirls around in my mind. I find I can set bad thoughts aside this time of year as I go through the routines of the season. Simple things, like breaking out favorite recipes, planning Christmas dinner, wrapping gifts as I sit beside the tree and going through my vintage ornaments are rituals that heal and just plain make me happy. Most of this I do for the ones I love but in doing so I find it's just as much for myself.

How fortunate I am to have strong family traditions! Our Christmases have always been filled with time-honored rituals and I dearly love adding to them as I put them into practice each year. My mother has baked Christmas cookies for as long as I can remember, recipes that have become an important part of the holiday for me. I'm not sure if I really helped her when I was little, but I know she always loved having me there, even as I got older. As I grew up and life pulled me away, she would do it by herself. When my nephew came along, he took my place and he and his girlfriend still make it a point to help her. Even my father has stepped in, something I love picturing and am grateful for.

Mama always makes several kinds, and we all have our favorites. For my father there are thin, delicate cream cheese cookies and cheesecake bars. For my sister and me, her date-filled balls rolled in coconut or nuts, dubbed meatball cookies, are a must. And who doesn't love gingerbread? Every year, my mother pulls out the impressive bin filled with cookie cutters, most vintage, and specific ones are used for certain types. Houses, people, trees, snowflakes and bells, a lion, camel, cat, pig, cow and even a hippo to name a few all make their mark and add fun and whimsy, whether decorated with icing, sugar or left plain.

There's one more kind that my sister and I love, and I have taken over making them because they're not mama's cup of tea. We grew up calling them lemon dough cookies but the original recipe from our well-worn 1960s Betty Crocker cookbook says they are, in fact, Merry Christmas Cookies. Kissed with honey and lemon extract, they are soft and light and lovely and the ones I'm sharing with you today.

Before I do, a few quick notes: because I love the lemon aspect of these (and just can't leave well enough alone), I have taken liberties with the original recipe, adding a bit of fresh lemon juice and zest. The cookies will spread when baked so don't be surprised if you use a detailed cutter but get somewhat blobby results. Also, when it comes to decorating, I keep it simple with a sprinkling of colored sugar. Betty's recipe suggests using a thin royal icing, which you would do once they've baked and cooled, but I think it overpowers the delicate flavors of the cookie and I prefer mine less sweet.

LEMON-HONEY CHRISTMAS COOKIES

I recommend doubling this recipe, adapted from "Betty Crocker's Merry Christmas Cookies." You will need to chill the dough before rolling and cutting. Even so it will be sticky, so you'll also need to flour your surface and the rolling pin. The cookies should be golden in color with a soft texture and a lovely honeyed lemon flavor.

INGREDIENTS

1/3 cup (5 1/3 tablespoons) butter, room temperature
1/3 cup sugar
1 egg
2/3 cup honey
1 teaspoon lemon extract
1 teaspoon fresh lemon juice
1 teaspoon fresh lemon zest
2 3/4 cup flour (plus more for dusting the rolling surface)

1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt

METHOD

In a large bowl, mix butter, sugar, egg, honey, lemon extract, juice and zest thoroughly.

In a separate bowl, sift or whisk together flour, baking soda and salt.

Add flour mixture to dough a third at a time, mixing well to combine. Chill for at least 30 minutes.

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Lightly grease 1-2 baking sheets and set aside.

Sift flour over your surface and rolling pin. Place some of the dough on the surface. You will likely have to add flour as you go. (It's OK to lightly dust the top of the dough too if you find it sticking to the rolling pin). Roll out to about 1/4-inch thickness (I make mine a little thicker), then cut into shapes. If using sugar to decorate, sprinkle it on now. Transfer to prepared baking sheets with a spatula and bake 8-10 minutes (Betty says 'until no imprint remains when touched lightly.') I recommend checking after 8 minutes. Transfer to a cooling rack.

Betty claims this makes about 5 dozen cookies, but I find it makes 2-3, probably because I use cutters of different sizes.

There's still time to bake some Christmas love. With all you likely have to do you may not think so, but I promise you, taking the time to do something like this will do wonders for your spirit. Just let go, turn on some holiday tunes, find your rhythm and make it fun. Take your mind off everything else for a little while and gift yourself and the ones you love some fresh-baked magic. If you do, I hope it becomes part of your family's traditions, too, filling your hearts with comfort and joy. Merry Christmas!

Cunneen-Hackett Arts Center to host 3 new eclectic art exhibitions

The Cunneen-Hackett Arts Center, located at 9 and 12 Vassar Street in Poughkeepsie, will kick off 2024 with three new eclectic art exhibitions in their Visual Art Galleries that will run from January 3 to February 29. Featured in the Victorian Gallery at 9 Vassar Street will be Stacy Pearl, and at 12 Vassar Street will be Jane Ehrlich in the Reception Gallery and Rebecca Zeh in the Hancock Gallery. Free Public Art Opening Receptions will be held on Friday, January 5, from 5 pm to 7 p.m. for Jane Ehrlich and Rebecca Zeh at 12 Vassar Street, and again on Friday, January 12, from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. for Stacy Pearl at 9 Vassar Street.

Stacy Pearl was born in Brighton Beach, Brooklyn and attended Rhode Island School of Design, The Art Students League of New York, and Tyler School of Art and Architecture at Temple University. Her exhibition at the Cunneen-Hackett Art Center, the Meaningless Paintings series, was completed over the past few years, mostly during the COVID-19 pandemic, and consists of representational imagery. "These works incorporate imagery from 'high' art to popular culture, from sports to science, to food, to tools and machines, to idyllic scenery — it's all fair game," she relays. "Choosing the images is intuitive, random, and fun...when a specific image speaks to me, that's when I know it's right." Previously working in an abstract minimalist style that focused on color, pattern and texture, Pearl's current artwork removes any sort of narrative and has no secret meaning. Her works have been exhibited at Barrett Art Center (Poughkeepsie, NY), Vestige Concept Gallery (Pittsburgh, PA), Cerulean Arts (Philadelphia, PA), Prince Street Gallery (New York, NY), Greenpoint Gallery (Brooklyn, NY), and The Art Center Highland Park (Highland Park, IL). She has lived all over the world and now resides in New York with a model-maker husband, a perpetually knitting mother, and a great dog.

Jane Ehrlich attended the School of Visual Arts, Pratt Institute and The Brooklyn Museum School. Her exhibition of paintings at the Cunneen-Hackett Arts Center are part of an ongoing series called "Fragmented Transparencies" that have a single "color field" activated by the addition of accumulations of transparent and opaque layers of white, straight, zig zag, and curvilinear layers. "The layers refer to the base color implying a degree of spatial context but intentionally maintain a shallow depth, creating tension within the visible field...forms are painted one at a time, each form referring to the one before as it transports its individual information, nuances and accidents of application," she explains. "The shapes repeat and transmute as they inhabit the painting but never as pattern; as the surface is mapped some forms collide, some connect and some coalesce, and through this process, the layers of monochromatic transparencies, and tonal variations begin to resonate with light and the painting becomes activated." Ehrlich has exhibited in New York, Florida, New Hampshire, and Maine, with her work recently showcased at Radius 50 (Woodstock, NY), 72 A -One A Silvermine Gallery (New Canaan, CT), Hudson Eye (Hudson), Lockwood Gallery (Kingston), Salon Zurcher - Women of Spirit (New York, NY), Mohawk Hudson Regional (Albany), and 3 Abstract Artists - Susan Eley Fine Arts (New York, NY) to name a few. A recipient of the 2022 and 2023 Community Arts Grant, New York State Council of the Arts, Ehrlich lives and works in Hudson, NY and is the founder of the annual Open Studio Hudson.

Rebecca Zeh is an interdisciplinary artist who received her BFA with a concentration in drawing from Pratt Institute in 2012. She is also an improvisational dancer who has studied movement since she was 6 years old. Utilizing mixed media and print-making techniques, she creates a visual space where dance, creative movement, nature, and art-making intersect evoking the feeling of moving as one with the elements of the outdoors. "The imagery depicted is inspired by photographic references, video references, and recounted memories of adventures exploring movement in outdoor settings," she explains. "My unique experiences dancing outdoors and in dance class strongly inform my artistic practice." Ms. Zeh has exhibited her work in several art galleries and businesses throughout New York State that include The Art Center of the Capital Region, Saratoga Arts, LARAC, Albany Center Gallery, The Hallway Gallery at Second Street Studios, 344 Storefront, The Blooming Artist Gallery, Spring Street Gallery, Paul Nigra Center for Creative Arts, and North Country Arts Council. Her work has been published in Barzakh Magazine and The Crit Zine by Symmetry Art Space as well as featured in The Daily Gazette and 518 Profiles Magazine. In 2023 she was the recipient of an Honorary Mention Award at the Annual Expressions Juried Art Show at North Country Arts Council in Glens Falls. Her home, which is also her studio, is located in Ballston Lake.

The Hancock Gallery and Reception Gallery at 12 Vassar Street are open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. but visitors must call the Cunneen-Hackett Arts Center Office at 845-486-4571 for access. The 12 Vassar Street Galleries are also open during events at the VBI Theatre. The Victorian Gallery at 9 Vassar Street is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Visit the Cunneen-Hackett Arts Center website at cunneen-hackett.org for more information on the artists exhibiting their work in the Visual Art Galleries.

Holidays 'round the world'

Mount Saint Mary faculty share international seasonal traditions

Lights twinkle, store shelves are stocked, and more than 50 years after the original airing of "A Charlie Brown Christmas," Linus is still ready to tell us about the reason for the season.

The holiday season is in full swing, and members of the Mount Saint Mary College community bring many cultural traditions to the holiday table, inspired by customs from around the world.

Charles Zola is the assistant to the President for Mission Integration, director of the Mount's Catholic and Dominican Institute, and an associate professor of Philosophy. Zola, of Polish and Slovak heritage, said that the heart of the Christmas celebration in Poland is the Christmas Eve meal, called Wigilia, derived from the Latin word "vigil."

The meal doesn't begin until after the appearance of the first star on Christmas Eve, and the youngest member of the family is usually charged with looking for it. The table is spread with a white tablecloth, under which is placed small pieces of straw, representing the manger.

The typical Christmas dinner in Poland consists of red borscht or mushroom soup, various types of fish such as haddock, pike, and herring, pierogis with various fillings, sauerkraut and peas, and boiled potatoes sautéed in dill butter. Dessert is an array of pastries, like poppy-seed rolls, nut rolls, fruit compote, and cookies.

After the meal, families attend midnight Mass, called the Mass of the Shepherds.

Mount Professor of Hispanic Studies Victor Azuaje, who moved to the United States in 1998, notes that Christmas is a time of family and faith for Catholics in Venezuela.

The main Christmas meal, served at midnight on December 24, is "the most important thing," he explained.

The meal centers around hallacas, a calzone-like "pocket" of cornmeal filled with chicken, pork or other meats, onions, bell peppers, green olives, and seasonings. Hallacas are large, so one or two could make up an entire dinner, said Azuaje.

Families exchange presents after the late meal. But instead of writing a letter to Santa Claus, children in Venezuela ask Baby Jesus for their gifts. The Nativity holds a prominent place in the home during the holiday season, but it isn't until midnight on Christmas Eve that Baby Jesus is placed in the manger, Azuaje explained.

For about a week before December 24, early morning Masses are held. At Christmas Mass, attendees wear new clothes.

"It's a very special night," Azuaje said. "You're going to wear something new."

Suparna Bhalla, a Mount associate professor of Biology who originally hailed from India, said the Hindu tradition of Diwali (the Festival of Lights) is in some ways a combination of Christmas and New Year's Eve. Falling between mid-October and mid-November each year, the Festival of Lights lives up to its name: fireworks fill the sky and Hindu homes are decorated with lights.

Gifts are given between families, including dried apricots, almonds, cashews, figs, and walnuts.

"It is the celebration of the triumph of good over evil," she explained. "In Indian mythology, it is welcoming the gods back to their hometown."

The Mount has cherished holiday traditions of its own. For example, students, faculty, and staff look forward to the annual Christmas tree lighting ceremony which includes a blessing by Fr. Gregoire Fluet, Interim President of the college. The Mount also helps families in need with the annual Toy Drive, which this year, exceeded 1,000 toys for local girls and boys.

The heavy lines indicate areas, called cages, from one to five squares in size. Fill each cage with unique digits, counting up from 1. So for example a 2-square cage contains the numbers 1 and 2; and a 5-square cage contains the numbers from 1 to 5. Adjacent (touching) squares, even ones that touch diagonally, may never contain the same number.

Union Vale Fire Department welcomes Girl Scout troop

Members of the Union Vale Fire Department gave the Brownies of Girl Scout Troop 10564 a tour of the fire engines and apparatus used in fires on Nov. 29.

The Union Vale Fire Department recently welcomed the Brownies of Girl Scout Troop 10564 to Station 1, located on the north side of town in Verbank, for a tour of the firehouse on Nov. 29.

Union Vale District Chief Steven Schmoke, Captain Scott Geider and Firefighter Bill Liguori showed the Brownies the apparatus used in fires and motor vehicle accidents and various tools kept on the trucks and their use. They were able to hold the hose, climb into the trucks and ambulance and wear a real helmet.

The members demonstrated the use of the "jaws of life" (a hydraulic extrication tool used to spread and breach doors in accident damaged vehicles) and what a firefighter looks like with a Scott Air-Pak SCBA (self-contained breathing apparatus) on when they enter a burning building.

The girls were pleased to see everything up close and have some hands-on experience.

"Our girls had the best time meeting all of you and learning about all of the important equipment you use to help others. My daughter has not stopped talking about the trip there and wants to learn more about the important work that the fire men and women do. They thought it was really "cool" that the President of the fire department is a woman (something to aspire to)," said troop leader Kristen Baurczarski.

Mount Saint Mary College students 'paws' and relax with therapy dogs

For Mount Saint Mary College students who finished up their classes earlier this month, a group of therapy dogs provided a stress-busting break on December 6. These pups were sweeter than Christmas candy for the Mount community. Research has indicated that watching, petting, or talking to an animal can lower blood pressure and heart rate. The animals came to the Mount via Hudson Valley Paws for a Cause. The popular event has become a tradition at the college. For more information, visit www.msmc.edu
